When therefore your Royal Wisdom shall think fit to call a Parliament, we your most Loyal Subjects intirely engage our selves and the utmost of our endeavours for the Election of such Members as will heartily concur with that Divine Principle of your Majesty, that Mens Consciences should not be forced in matters of Religion, nor they distinguished in the service of their Country, by other Tests than that of Loyalty. Wherefore the many Blessings we enjoy under your most Sacred Majesty engage us in daily Prayers to Almighty God, That as your Royal Virtues exceed all example, so your Reign above comparison may be the longest: Nor may we omit a Prince of Wales born of your Royal Consort our most Gracious Queen hath learned by a long experience the most Hearty Gratefulness of your Royal mind: In Testimony whereof we have unanimously caused our Common Seal to be affixed hereunto this 8th Day of May, in the Fourth Year of your Majesties Reign, Auno; Domini, 1688.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

You on the Throne of Your Royal Ancestors, do humbly offer our hearty Thanks to Your Majesty, for Your Gracious Declaration to all Your Loving Subjects for Liberty of Conscience, and for Your most Gracious Intention and Royal Resolution to have the same established by a Law; whereby the Church of England will be secured, and all Differences protected in the free Exercise of their Religion, and enjoyment of their Civil Rights. Venice, May 21. The Convoy designed for the Levant failed on Sunday last with a fair Wind; and another is preparing; with which will go the Prince of Brunswick and the Prince of Turenne, with the 1400 Swissers that are now at the Lido. The Proveditor General of Dalmatia has written to the Senate for more Troops, proposing in case they be sent him, to attack D. I. cigno. We have no fresh Advices from the Levant.

Vienna, May 23. On Friday last arrived here an Express from Alba Regalis, with an account, That the two Aga's being returned thither the 17th Instant, with the Capitulation signed by the Emperor, the Bassa immediately assembled the Divan, where the Imperial Satisfaction being read, it was resolved to deliver up the Place pursuant to the Articles. That the 18th they were employed the whole Day in Lading their Baggage upon the Waggons provided by the Treaty; That on the 19th they marched out of the Forticks, but went no farther than the Suburbs, where they passed that Night under a good Guard, being in all about 4000 Souls, among which there were but 700 bearing Arms; And that the next Day they were Conducted towards the Danube, being to Embark 4 Leagues below Buda on the Vessels that are to carry them to B-grade. The Imperialists having taken possession of the Town and Castle, found there 84 pieces of Cannon, with a great number of small Arms, and almost an incredible Quantity of all sorts of Ammunition, but no Provisions.

This Day Te Deum was Sung here in the Great Church for the Reduction of this Important Place; The Emperor coming purposely from Luxemburg to assist at it, which was concluded with 3 Royal Salvo's of all the Artillery of this City. The 21th Instant two Expresses were dispatched from hence, one to General Caraffa, and the other to General Caprara; with orders to hasten the march of the Troops that are appointed to Rendezvous at Esseeke; From whence we have Advice, That General Caprara going with 600 Horse and 200 Dragoons to observe the Fortifications of Illocke, the Turks put some Men into a Mosque that stands before the principal Gate, from whence they made a continual Fire upon the Imperialists to hinder their approach: When upon General Caprara caused the Dragoons and some of the Horsemen to alight and attack the Mosque, which they performed with that vigor that the Enemy were forced to abandon it and to retire into the Town; Our Men pursued them as far as the Gate, and might have entered the Town with them; had the number of the Dragoons been sufficient for such an attempt; Ge-
