

are appointed or whose salaries are fixed by the Master of the Rolls, either solely or jointly with the Lord Chancellor, to determine the conditions on which the officers of the Court of Chancery appointed after the commencement of the Act above-mentioned are to hold their offices. And whereas, on or about the third day of September, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, George Thomas Jenkins was appointed to the office of Principal or Chief Secretary to the Master of the Rolls, and became upon such appointment an officer of the Court of Chancery within the meaning of the said section, and liable to the operation of the same. Now we, the undersigned, being two of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, with the concurrence of the Right Honourable Roundell, Baron Selborne, Lord High Chancellor, and with the concurrence of the Right Honourable Sir George Jessel, Master of the Rolls, signified by their respective signatures hereto, do by this order under our hands, made in pursuance of the aforesaid section of the Act before-mentioned, determine that the said George Thomas Jenkins holds his said office of Principal or Chief Secretary to the Master of the Rolls, on a salary of six hundred pounds per annum, subject to revision hereafter in the event of any change taking place in the nature of the duties, and without any claim to compensation if the result of such revision, or of any steps which may be taken after the coming into operation of the Judicature Act should lead to the alteration of the duties or salary of the office.

Given under our hands at the Treasury Chambers, Whitehall, this seventeenth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three.
