FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1874.

Windsor Castle, June 29, 1874.

THIS day the Archbishop of Canterbury, accompanied by the Bishops of London, Gloucester and Bristol, Winchester, and Rochester, and the Prolocutor and certain of the Clergy of the Province, waited upon Her Majesty to present the following Address:—

To the QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty.

Madam,

WE, your Majesty's faithful subjects, the Archbishop, Bishops, and Clergy of the Province of Canterbury in Convocation assembled, approach your Majesty with the assurance of our loyal and affectionate attachment to your Majesty's Throne and person.

We rejoice that it has pleased God to continue to your Majesty during the years which have passed since the opening of the last Convocation that measure of domestic happiness which has hitherto comforted your Majesty under the trials of widowhood; calling to mind the anxiety which stirred the heart of the whole Nation two years ago from the danger then threatening the life of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, we record our thankfulness that God at that time was graciously pleased to hear the prayers of a united people, and to avert the calamity which for weeks hung over this country, and that He has since blessed your Majesty in the health and increasing prosperity of the members of the Royal House.

In particular, we would offer our humble congratulations on the marriage recently contracted between His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh and the only daughter of the Emperor of Russia. We pray that all blessings from above may attend this auspicious union, and that, while it is a source of happiness to your Majesty, it may also tend to strengthen the bonds of amity uniting two great Christian nations, the Churches of which, equally protesting against the usurpations of Rome, have hitherto been kept too widely apart.

We rejoice with your Majesty that the war on the coast of Africa, which, short as it was, brought mourning to many families amongst us, has been happily terminated, and that the vast dominions which own your Majesty's sway are now enjoying perfect peace.

And while we look with great anxiety to the famine now afflicting a large portion of your Majesty's dominions in India, we feel confidence in the prompt Christian sagacity with which our rulers seem determined to meet this great calamity and we trust in God's goodness that this cloud may pass without bringing irremediable evils on our Indian fellow subjects.

Your Majesty's dominions extend over the globe, and the Church of England has endeavoured in every quarter of this vast Empire to spread the truth of Christ and to mitigate the sufferings of humanity; but the sad death of an eminent missionary bishop of our Church reminds us of the atrocities which may be committed even where the name of Christ is not unknown, and where the flag of Britain commands the seas. We rejoice that your Majesty's attention has been directed to those miseries of the Slave Trade which still desolate so many lands, and we feel sure that vigorous efforts will not be wanting to restrain such horrors as those which caused the murder of Bishop Patteson.

But the chief field of our Church's operations is among our own people at home, and we are thankful to believe that amidst some unhappy differences of opinion, which impede their usefulness, our clergy of this generation are united in more earnest efforts than seem ever before to have been made to reclaim the vicious and instruct the ignorant. In these efforts they are upheld and supported by the sympathy and co-operation of a faithful laity. We cannot indeed but deplore that so much sin leading to misery should still be found in all ranks, and especially we are pained that, amongst those to whom we look as the very strength of our population, so many families should be ruined by the degradation of a wide spread intemperance. The returns made to the late Convocation on this subject have shown how terrible is the evil and how great the efforts required to meet it. To resist this particular form of wickedness, the Church of England has lately made special efforts, in which we are glad to know that we have received your Majesty's countenance; indeed we should be ungrateful if we did not acknowledge how, in all efforts to spread that morality, of which the Christian faith is the best guardian, we have ever found your Majesty our willing patron.

We desire to take this opportunity of thanking your Majesty for the Royal letters of business issued to the last Convocation. Under your Royal authority the Convocation was empowered to propose certain alterations in the Act of Uniformity, and we are thankful to believe that the legislation which followed on the recommendations thus made, has been the means of better adapting some of the public services of our Church to the wants of the age and increasing its influence over the people.

To which Address Her Majesty was pleased to return the following most gracious Answer:—

"I thank you very heartily for your loyal and dutiful Address, and for the kind expressions of your affectionate interest in all that concerns my domestic happiness and the health and prosperity of the members of my family.

"I trust that the marriage of my son with the daughter of the Emperor of Russia will tend to strengthen the bonds of friendship between two great Christian nations.

"The termination of the war on the Gold Coast, and the peace that reigns throughout my dominions, are matters in which I thankfully share your gladness; and, with you, I trust in God's goodness that through the measures which have been taken to relieve the famine now afflicting a large portion of my Indian subjects, the cloud may soon pass over.

"It is a source of the greatest happiness to me to witness the efforts now being made by the clergy of the Church of England, both at home and abroad, to spread the truth of Christ, to mitigate the sufferings of humanity, to reclaim the vicious, and to instruct the ignorant. In these efforts they will, I feel assured, be upheld and supported by the sympathy and co-operation of a faithful laity.

"They may rely upon my continued desire to suppress the slave trade, and to promote true Christianity and morality among all my people.

"With you, I am thankful to believe that the recent alterations in the Act of Uniformity will prove the means of better adapting some of the public services of the Church to the wants of the age, and of increasing its influence over the people."

The Archbishop of Canterbury and the Procurator were severally presented to Her Majesty by Mr. Secretary Cross, and had the honour of kissing Her Majesty's hand.

Harbour Light at Progreso.

INFORMATION is derived through a notice issued by the United States Government, that a fixed white light is exhibited from a mast on the roof of the Custom-house (a square white building near the pier-head) at Progreso, (Tuxula) north coast of Yucatan. In clear weather the light should be seen from a distance of about 6 miles. Approximate position, lat. 21° 18' N., long. 89° 33' W.

Directions.—As the wind and current are both usually from the eastward, care should be taken when approaching the port not to fall to leeward. In the daytime the land should be made about Point Yalkubu, or Jungle Point, and at night, in a vessel of moderate draught, the 5 fathom line should be struck 10 miles to the eastward of Progreso. The usual, and best, anchorage is in 4 and 5 fathoms, sandy bottom, with the Custom-house bearing about S.E. From this position the cargo lighters have a leading wind to and from the shore with the sea-breeze.

Progreso is now the only port of entry on the north coast of Yucatan, Sisal having ceased to be such.

THE Netherlands Government has given notice, that from the 10th May, 1874, two lights would be exhibited near the village of Rilland, westward of Bath, as leading lights through the channel to the south towards the Doel Light Vessel.

The lights are fixed white lights when seen from the southward, and the northern light shows red when seen from the south-westward. The northern light is 26 feet above the level of high water, and the lower light 13 feet, and they are 220 yards apart. The northern light is visible through an arc of 45°, and the southern light through an arc of 110°.

Directions.—Vessels from the south must keep the two Rilland lights in line until the most westerly light at Bath changes from red to white, when the line of the two lights must be left, and those of Bath brought in line to proceed through the Bath Narrows towards Valkenisse Light Vessel. Vessels from the south-west or from Valkenisse Light Vessel must keep the Bath lights in line until the northern Rilland light changes from red to white, near the white buoy marking the elbow of the Saeftinge Plaet, when the Billand lights must be brought gradually in line and kept so in proceeding towards the Doel light.

And whereas, pursuant to the Standing Orders of both Houses of Parliament, and to an Act of the 9th and 10th years of Her present Majesty, chapter 20, a sum of £7,751 17s. 10d. Bank £3 per Cent. Annuities, being equal in value to the sum of £7,170 10s., being 5 per cent. upon the amount of the estimate in respect of the railway authorised by that Act, was transferred into the name, and with the privity, of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery in England, in respect of the application to Parliament. And whereas by the said Act of 1871, sec. 62, it was enacted as follows:—

"The said sum of money deposited as aforesaid shall be applicable, and after due notice in the London Gazette shall be applied, towards compensating any landowners or other persons whose property may have been interfered with or otherwise rendered less valuable by the commencement, construction, or abandonment of the Railways, or any portion thereof, or who may have been subjected to injury or loss in consequence of the compulsory powers of taking property conferred upon the Company by this Act, and for which injury or loss no compensation or inadequate compensation shall have been paid, and shall be distributed in satisfaction of such compensation as aforesaid in such manner and in such proportions as to the Court of Chancery in England may seem fit; and if no such compensation shall be payable, or if a portion of the said sum of money shall have been found sufficient to satisfy all just claims in respect of such compensation, then the said sum of money, or such portion thereof as may not be required as aforesaid, shall be paid to or on the application of the person or persons named in such Warrant or Order as aforesaid, or the survivor or survivors of them; provided that until the said sum of money shall have been repaid to the depositors, or shall have become otherwise applicable as herein-before mentioned, any interest or dividends accruing thereon shall from time to time, and as often as the same shall become payable, be paid to or on the application of the person or persons named in such Warrant or Order as aforesaid, or the survivors or survivor of them."

And whereas by "The Alexandra Park Railway Abandonment Act, 1874," the Company is authorised and required to abandon the making of the said Railways, and it is by that Act enacted as follows:

"3. The abandonment by the Company under the authority of this Act of the Railway shall not prejudice or affect the right of the owner or occupier of any land to receive compensation for any damage occasioned by the entry of the Company on such land for the purpose of surveying and taking levels, or probing or boring to ascertain the nature of the soil, or setting out of the line of Railway, and shall not prejudice or affect the right of the owner or occupier of any land which may have been temporarily occupied by the Company, to receive compensation for such temporary occupation, or for any loss, damage, or injury which may have been sustained by such owner or occupier by reason thereof, or of the exercise, as regards such land, of any of the powers contained in 'The Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845,' or the Act of 1871.

"4. Where before the passing of this Act any contract may have been entered into or notice given by the Company for the purchasing of any land for the purposes of, or in relation to, the Railway, or any portion thereof, the Company shall be released from all liability to purchase or to complete the purchase of any such lands, but notwithstanding full compensation shall be made by the Company to the owners and occupiers, or other persons interested in such lands, for all injury or damage sustained by them respectively by reason of the purchase not being completed pursuant to the contract or notice, and the amount and application of the compensation shall be determined in manner provided by 'The Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845,' as amended by any subsequent Act, for determining the amount and application of compensation paid for lands taken under the provisions thereof.

"5. Subject to the provisions of Section 62 of the Act of 1871, the Court of Chancery may and shall at any time after the passing of this Act, on application by the persons, or the majority of the persons, named in the Warrant or Order mentioned in the sixty-first section of the Act of 1871, or the survivors or survivor of them, by petition in a summary way, order that the sum of seven thousand seven hundred and fifty-one pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence, Bank Three Pounds per Centum Annuities, mentioned in the said sixty-first section of the Act of 1871, and the interest or dividends thereon may be paid or transferred to the person or persons so applying, or to any other person or persons whom they or he may appoint in that behalf; and upon such Order being made, the said sum of seven thousand seven hundred and fifty-one pounds seventeen shillings and ten pence, Bank Three Pounds per Centum Annuities, and the interest or dividends thereon, shall be paid or transferred to such person or persons accordingly."

Lot 1. An improved rental of £326 per annum, arising from extensive manufacturing premises, situate in Eagle Wharf-road, having a wharfed frontage of 174 feet 9 inches next the Regent's Canal, and occupying an area of 49,355 feet, together with the substantially erected machine shops and factories, dwelling-house, board-room, and offices, let upon lease to the Henry Rifled Barrel Company Limited, in consideration of a premium of £3,500 paid by them for the whole term for which the property is held, less 10 days, at the very low rent of £500 per annum, and held by a separate lease from the freehold for a term, whereof 61 years were unexpired at Midsummer, 1874, at a ground rent of £170 per annum. The lessee has made a large outlay in improvements.
