Foreign Office, September 21, 1874.

THE Italian Minister in London has communicated to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of the will of the late M. Girolamo Ponti, of Milan, of which the accompanying document is a translation, by which he has bequeathed a portion of his property to the "Academies of Science of London, Paris, and Vienna."

It is understood that the relatives of the testator intend to dispute the will, and as it does not clearly appear what British Society is indicated, the Secretary of State hereby gives public notice of the bequest, in order that those Societies which may wish to put forward their claims, may take such steps in the matter as they shall think fit.

Mr. E. S. S. Mildmay, the Acting British Vice-Consul at Milan, who is also Vice-Consul for Austria, reports that he has been appointed to support the claims of the Academy and of the Hospital at Vienna.

It appears desirable that any institution claiming the legacy, should do so at as early a period as possible.

DERBY.

(Translation.)

On this 5th day of the month of January, 1856, I, the undersigned, Girolamo Ponti, son of the late Signor Guiseppè Ponti and of the still living Signora Maria Antonia Longhi, of Gallarate (a town of Lombardy), declare as the expression of my last will that, born contemporaneously with the fortune with which Providence has been pleased to endow my house, I have never ceased from my earliest infancy to take part in the vicissitudes thereof, and to act to the best of my ability in the limited sphere which, according to my age, was assigned to me, for its greatest increase, so much so, that at the death of my father, of ever lamented memory, every member of his family was in a comfortable and independent position. Having now for a period of about four years consolidated such a state of things to my full satisfaction, and the combinations having so worked that I, on this day, find myself entirely free and independent.

I dispose of the whole of what belongs to me on this day in favour of the three Academies of Sciences, of London (capital of England), Paris (capital of France), and Vienna (capital of Austria), so that my said patrimony is to be divided amongst the said three Academies, in equal parts, for the purpose of founding with the produce thereof the institutions mentioned below, after deduction of the following charges, that is, there shall be deducted from my patrimony:—

1st. The sum of 600 Austrian lire, and not more, for the celebration of my obsequies; and a capital sum corresponding to 30 Austrian lire per annum, to be paid to the parochial authorities of the parish of the Catholic faith in which my funeral takes place, in order that six funeral masses may be said annually for the aid of soul, on the day itself of my death, or the nearest one possible to it.

2nd. The obligations undertaken by me, and appearing in my registry and book of accounts, shall be discharged with the same precision as if I myself were still living, and therefore the salary due to the person or persons in my personal service, the commissions unexecuted, and other matters, as well as the annual provision of my father in favour of my mother, consisting of my part per annum, 666 Austrian lire 67 centimes, payable in two equal instalments, in advance, one on the 1st of February, the other on the 1st of July, of every year during her natural life. My patrimony consists for the greater part of mortgages, and taking account of interest, amounts at present to 865,000 Austrian lire, free from all debts, appearing in my books and from the dispositions of the present, the charges, that is, above mentioned. Each of the three Academies above named shall be bound to invest in a perfectly safe and profitable manner, the third part of my patrimony which falls to its share, and with the proceeds to institute two annual competitions for ever, in equal amounts, so that together they may correspond to the total sum of the proceeds of the respective quotas, free from any expenses which may happen to be necessary for the institution of the said competitions. Consequently, each of the aforesaid Academies will have to appoint a Committee fit to decide upon the grant of the rewards annexed to the two competitions, which are to embrace the following branches:—

1. Mechanics.
2. Agriculture.
3. Physics and Chemistry.
4. Travels by sea or by land.
5. Literature.

The object of the Committee must be to give the preference to whomsoever among the competitors that shall have advanced the sciences by the discovery of new and simple appliances, and this refers to mechanics, physics, chemistry, and agriculture; in regard to travels by sea and by land, whoever has distinguished himself by a long journey by land and by sea, or has been able to make propositions fitting to diminish the dangers inherent in the present systems should have the preference; in default of inventors and distinguished travellers, the Committee will turn its attention to the most distinguished publications of original works, or at least of translations from other languages of works upon the above-mentioned sciences and travels, including literature, that is:—mechanics, agriculture, physics, chemistry, travels by land and by sea, and literature. Moreover the decisions of the Committee must be considered as final. The competitions, as I have said, are to be two in every year, and they are to begin one year after each of the above-mentioned Academies shall have received its own third part according to this present disposition.

Only natives of the country are to be admitted to the said competitions, therefore only native English by the Academy of London, French by that of Paris, and Austrian Germans by that of Vienna (I say again Austrian Germans).

If my mother should outlive me and have any claim on my estate I beg her to renounce it, but in case she should wish to enforce it she can do so, so far as she may by force of law, upon the patrimony renounced by me, diminished, however, by the equivalent of the annual provision in her favour as above. I declare that my personal effects, the furniture that I may have at the time of my death, and the books are not included in the above disposition. I leave them to the exclusive disposal of the Academy of Vienna, in order that, as regards the effects and furniture, the proceeds of their sale may be added to the third part of my patrimony which falls to its share, and as to the books, that they may be added to its own library or any other in Vienna which shall be chosen by it for public use.

Referring here to the deficiency of German books which will be found in my library, I will state that it has not been from aversion to that language that I have not provided myself with them, but from the impossibility of my learning it on account of ill health or the cares of life, and a proof of this will be found in the various translations from the said language, which will be met with among my aforesaid books. I declare that I am not at enmity with any one, and that from a principle of education well rooted in me I have never done or said evil to or of any one, wherefore I believe I have no enemies, but if I have made any I beg them to observe that it is without my knowledge and therefore to forgive me.

I declare, finally, that I wish to every one the greatest possible amount of welfare, but especially to my nearest relations, and that I have made the above-mentioned dispositions in the firm persuasion that every one of my said relations is in a sufficiently independent position, and to carry out in some degree the ideas which I have always cherished in the course of my life, by which, besides the particular benefit of my family, I have always wished to be able to do good to many, but have been, by various circumstances, prevented.

I have made this, my present testament, in haste certainly, but with clear and free mind, as the true and inmost expression of my last will, and all in my own hand.

GIROLAMO PONTI, son of the late Signor Guiseppe, and of the still living Signora Maria Antonia Longhi, both natives of Gallarate.

Addition.—I leave to the Local Tribunal the charge of appointing an upright and able person for the execution of my above-expressed will, notifying that the present writing will be found in a closed cover, with four seals in red sealing-wax. I say again four seals in red sealing-wax, of which three are outside and one inside, all bearing the initials of my name and surname, G. P., in Gothic characters. [* See the end.]

GIROLAMO PONTI, son of the late Signor Guiseppe, as above.

Second addition to my testamentary dispositions.

I notify that in the above-mentioned testamentary dispositions all the increments are to be considered as included which may have accrued to the time of my death from the fund of my present patrimony only (5th January, 1856). Any other acquisition, whether from maternal inheritance or otherwise, and the proceeds thereof, shall be considered as disposed of, as I now dispose of them, in favour of the Grand Hospital of Vienna, capital of the Austrian Empire, in order that they may be profitably employed, and in the most secure manner possible, in augmentation of its present endowment. The present addition is also made by me with fully clear and free mind; and I subscribe myself
