*Board of Trade (Harbour Department),
London, November 1, 1888.*

THE Board of Trade have received through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs the following copies of circulars, dated 1st and 5th October respectively, from Her Majesty's Representative at Washington, respecting the sanitary treatment of ships and freight in the United States:—

No. 1.

Oranges, lemons, and limes, unless packed in towns known to be infected by yellow fever, will be passed without fumigation.

Cigars and leaf-tobacco will also be passed without fumigation.

No. 2.

In order to stimulate ship-masters to aid in securing a clean ocean-going fleet, the following regulation concerning the treatment of foul ships is hereby adopted, and will be observed at all national quarantine stations:

1. When a vessel arrives at any national quarantine station from an infected port, and requires disinfection, she will be subjected to ordinary disinfection, as provided in former regulations.

2. When any vessel shall arrive at a national quarantine station in such foul condition as to render her dangerous from a sanitary point of view, and is found to require cleansing and disinfection, having at any former time within one year been subjected to ordinary disinfection, such vessel will be required to undergo extraordinary disinfection, which, in addition to the ordinary measures, will include holy-stoning, scraping, the taking out of rotten wood, a second disinfection, and interior repainting, all of which will be required before granting a certificate of free pratique.
