Whitehall, April 30, 1889.

THE following Address from the Tenantry of the Sandringham Estate was presented to the Queen, on the 25th day of April, 1889, at Sandringham, on the occasion of Her Majesty's Visit to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales:—

To Her Most Gracious Majesty The QUEEN.

Madam,

UPON the occasion of this auspicious Visit, we, the Tenantry of the Sandringham Estate, humbly venture and desire to express our joy and pleasure that Your Majesty is again enabled to visit the Norfolk Home of Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. The recollection of Your Majesty's last visit to this county is not and indeed never can be effaced from our memories. At that moment a dark and heavy cloud was hanging over this home; happily by the merciful goodness of an all-wise Providence, in answer to the prayers of the nation, this cloud was removed, and the object of our hopes and desires was spared. The remembrance of this cannot but fail to be most vividly brought back to Your Majesty's mind, but we trust Your pleasure in witnessing all that has since been effected by Their Royal Highnesses will speedily dispel those sad thoughts of that occasion. Even at this date this little village of Sandringham had acquired a familiar name in every home in Great Britain from the fact that its young and Royal owners were devoting themselves in every way to promote the welfare and happiness of all connected with their property. The works and improvements then commenced have steadily continued to the present date, and will, we venture to add, prove how great has been the interest and attachment displayed by Their Royal Highnesses in making the Sandringham Estate what it now is, an illustration of what can be achieved by an owner who daily remembers those never-to-be-forgotten words, "Live and let Live," and also that "Property has its Duties as well as its Rights."

As Liege and Loyal Subjects, we pray that Your Majesty may long be spared, and that the recollection of Your visit to the Norfolk Home of Their Royal Highnesses may ever remain one of the brightest and happiest epochs of your Life and Reign.

To which Her Majesty was pleased to give the following most gracious reply:—

"It has given Me very great pleasure to receive your loyal Address, and I thank you sincerely for the terms in which you welcome Me to Sandringham, and for the kind expressions you have used towards the Prince and Princess of Wales.

"After the anxious time I spent here seventeen years ago, when, by the blessing of God, My dear Son was spared to Me and to the Nation, it is indeed a pleasure to find Myself again here among cheerful homes and cheerful faces, and to see the kind feeling which exists between a good landlord and good tenant, and I trust that this mutual attachment and esteem may long continue to make you happy and prosperous and to strengthen, if possible, the affection of the Prince and Princess of Wales for the tenants of Sandringham."
