Board of Trade (Harbour Department), London, November 11, 1892.

THE Board of Trade have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch, dated 6th October, 1892, from Her Majesty's Representative at Samoa, reporting that, to prevent the introduction of cholera, quarantine has been put in force at Apia, and only the mails will be landed should cholera break out to any extent at San Francisco. By the last steamer from San Francisco favourable reports were received, and though the mails were fumigated, cargo and passengers were landed after inquiry and examination by the Health Officer.

Board of Trade (Harbour Department), London, November 11, 1892.

THE Board of Trade have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch, dated 28th September, 1892, from Her Majesty's Representative at San Salvador, enclosing the following Translation of a Quarantine Notice, issued by the San Salvador Authorities:—
 Decrees:

All vessels proceeding from Europe or from any such countries infected by the above-mentioned pestilence (epidemic) are declared interdicted unless the Committee of Health of the respective ports should have conferred on them a certified clean bill of health.

All correspondence proceeding from those places already indicated shall be fumigated carefully and properly during the space of twenty-four hours on reception at the ports, such fumigation being obligatory even should the vessel carrying the correspondence have received the clean bill of health already mentioned in a former number. In like manner all cargo shall be disinfected on disembarkment.

Any such Captain of a vessel under interdict found breaking the said interdict will be liable to a fine of five hundred to one thousand dollars, according to Article 297 of the Law of Navigation and Marine.

Should the interdict be broken by any other person such person shall be punished in a fine of one hundred to five hundred dollars.
