

clothes, even if these are not brought as passengers' effects (S. 1 Law of 1st July, 1887), on the condition that proper disinfection takes place on the responsibility and at the cost of the person concerned.

This Mandate to enter at once into force.

Notice is hereby given, that an infringement of this Mandate, or of the rules given in accordance with its contents, is punishable under Section 21 of the Quarantine Law of 12th July, 1848. Articles which, in contest with it, are sought to be imported or have been imported, shall be forfeited to the State Treasury if not possible of destruction.

The prohibition in the first paragraph of the Mandate does not apply to linen or articles of clothing which any one may bring with him for his own use, as passengers' effects.

Which is hereby communicated, while directing attention to the fact that in virtue of the Royal Mandate of 19th August, 1892, the importation into the Kingdom from Russia of used linen, used articles of clothing, and used bedclothes, clouts, rags, and used wadding is forbidden.

The importation of clouts and rags from that country is however in virtue of the Royal Mandate of 26th September, 1893, until further notice, permitted on the conditions laid down by the Department, and given below, which shall also be applicable for permission to import clouts and rags from Galicia and the Bukhovina, namely:—

That it be established either by a certificate from the proper Norwegian or Swedish Consul, that the clouts and rags in question have been collected only in places which have been free from cholera, or have been properly disinfected at the place of shipment, before it shall have taken place, or;

That at the place of importation immediately after their arrival, they are disinfected under the control of the Sanitary Commission of the place.
