Translations of inscriptions on guns.

No. 1.— * * * *

No. 2.— * * * *

No. 3.—This iron voluntarily being, produced this heavy gun, a most tremendous roarer. What can I say? Is it a gun, or is it a dragon? In Hindustan or Kabul no such gun is to be found. Maker's name—Ustad Gulamdin.

No. 4.—Iman Gulam Rasul's workmanship. Sha-bash that he such a gun for Bunnyah Malka did prepare in Jandoul!

In the times of the first Badshahs, the Khan of Jandoul was a great Bahadur against enemies; also of great intellectual power. With cleverness and soft words he obtained possession of the whole world (the Valley of Jandoul): (as to the gun) there is no such gun which would cause the enemy's blood to flow.

Such an enormous gun was made by Yar Ahad (or Ahmad,—might be either) of Jandoul. Sha-bash, oh, Khan, who art like the Egyptian Badshah to have done such work!
