Regulations in Connection with the Assembly of the Home Fleet in August, 1907.

The Naval Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth has, on behalf of the Admiralty, issued the following regulations to be observed by all vessels navigating the Solent and Spithead on the occasion of the assembly of the Home Fleet between the 30th day of July, 1907, and the 6th day of August, 1907.

1. In order to reduce as far as possible the chances of collision, directors of steamship companies, owners of steam-vessels, yachts, &c., are earnestly requested to give directions to the Masters of their ships to follow closely the instructions herein laid down, and to pay implicit attention to the requests of the officers in charge of the patrol tugs and steamboats, who will be specially charged with the duty of keeping clear the anchorage ground.

Vessels disobeying these directions are liable to be removed from the anchorage ground, and the Masters proceeded against summarily.

2. The patrol vessels will carry a white ensign on a staff at the stern, and a red flag on a staff in the bows, to enable them to be readily distinguished from other vessels.

3. The fleet will be anchored to the southward of the Bramble Bank, and the space to be kept clear is that enclosed within a distance of 2 cables (400 yards) from any of the ships of war at anchor.

4. In the crowded condition of the fairways between the Isle of Wight and the mainland, navigation must be conducted with the greatest caution, and sailing-vessels and small craft must remember that large steam-vessels will not always be able to give way to them.

water in close order, renders it impossible for them to give way to individual vessels. Masters of sailing vessels, yachts, and small boats must remember that the wash in the wake of the large ships of war may cause sailing vessels to miss stays and become unmanageable.

6. All steam vessels in the vicinity of the Fleet are requested to burn Welsh coal, so that the smoke may not obstruct the view of the Fleet nor cause danger of collision. Vessels neglecting this rule will be removed to a distance.

7. Private steam vessels, steam yachts, and sailing vessels are permitted to pass between the columns under the following regulations, except on Saturday, 3rd August, between 1.0 P.M. and 4.0 P.M.

(See plan of the position of the Fleet, published by the Admiralty, to be had of all sellers of Admiralty Charts.)

a. For the purpose of these regulations the term "steam vessel" shall be held to include any vessel propelled by a motive power other than oars or sails.

b. The course of vessels between the different columns of ships of war is to be as follows:—

Vessels proceeding to the eastward shall pass between the battleship line and the first-class cruisers, the latter forming the southern line of big ships.

Vessels bound to the westward shall pass between the battleship line and the second-class cruiser line, the latter forming the northern line of big ships.

Vessels are recommended to use the channel to the southward of the Ryde Middle whether bound to the eastward or to the westward. All vessels should avoid the destroyer's anchorage to the eastward of the Bramble bank, as the space between each of these vessels is very small.

Vessels must adhere to the rule of the road, i.e., keeping to their own starboard side of the channel.

c. The number of ships anchored between the Ryde Middle and the Bramble bank will render it difficult for ships to navigate this channel at night, and they should use the channel between the Ryde Middle and the Isle of Wight. It will be difficult for large mail steamers to pass to and from Southampton by the eastern route on the nights between 30th July and 6th August, and the Needles channel should be used in consequence.

d. At any time after sunset on the night of the 3rd of August, 1907, the ships of war may be illuminated, and search lights may be used, rendering it difficult for vessels to distinguish lights, buoys, and navigation marks.

(e) While the ships of war are illuminated, vessels of over 200 feet long will not be permitted to pass between the columns.

(f) The speed of steam vessels, when within the columns, is to be limited to 7 knots. Neglect of this rule, especially by paddle steamers, causes danger to small boats, which may result in loss of life. This rule will be strictly enforced.

(g) While between the columns no vessels are to overtake and pass one another, and no vessel is to stop unless to avoid collision.

(h) Should circumstances render it undesirable that vessels should pass between the columns, the ships of war at each end of the space which is closed to traffic will hoist a blue ensign where it can best be seen, which will indicate that no ship is to pass between these columns; any such ship must then pass south of the Ryde Middle. Should the ships of war be dressed, the blue ensign will take the place of one of the ensigns ordinarily displayed.

8. All vessels are to make use of the sound signals mentioned in clause 28 of the Regulations for the Prevention of Collision at Sea when altering course or stopping, viz.:—

When altering course to starboard, one short blast.

When altering course to port, two short blasts.

When engines are going astern, three short blasts.

9. During the time that His Majesty the King is passing through the Fleet, no vessel of any kind will be permitted to cross the lines of the ships of war, nor pass between the columns, nor follow the procession of Royal yachts.

10. Any vessel at anchor in such a position as to obstruct the fairways, or interfere with the navigation of the ships of war from the anchorage ground to Spithead, will be requested to weigh, and if necessary, will be removed.

11. Unless she should be disabled, no vessel will be permitted to anchor in the fairway of the channel between the Ryde Middle and the Isle of Wight between noon on the 30th of July, 1907, and 6.0 P.M. on the 6th August, 1907.

12. Masters of vessels are cautioned that for some time before the dates mentioned lines of buoys will be laid to mark the positions of ships' berths. These buoys should be carefully avoided, as they are liable to injure small vessels coming into contact with them, and might cause injury to the floats of paddle vessels.

13. Sailing yachts actually competing in the various yacht races of the Royal Yacht Squadron and the Royal London Yacht Club will not be required to observe the regulations laid down for vessels passing between the columns of the Fleets. They will be free to pass in any direction between the ships of war.

To lessen the chances of collision, lookout men will be stationed in the ships of war to warn vessels passing up or down between the columns when yachts are about to cross their course. Vessels passing between the columns must be prepared for yachts coming from behind the ships of war and crossing their course, they must stop or stop and go astern if hailed to do so by megaphone from the ships of war.

NOTE.—Nothing in this notice is to be construed as absolving vessels from closely observing the provisions of the Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea.
