

2nd Lt. Leonard William Hugh Stevenson, 1st Bn. (attd. 9th Bn.), R. Innis, Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and promptness during a successful raid on the enemy's trenches. His quick decision at a critical moment saved two minutes of time, and the enemy were actually issuing from their dug-outs as his party entered their trench. Later he went out and brought in a wounded man at great risk.

Temp. 2nd Lt. Bryan Desmond Hughes, 8th Bn., R. Dub. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Though severely wounded, he organised the battalion bombers and led them against the enemy, who had penetrated a portion of the front line. It was largely owing to his personal example and good leadership that the enemy were driven out.

2nd Lt. (temp. Lt.) Raymond Delaforce Hume, 1/4th Bn., Suff. R., T.F.

For conspicuous gallantry during a raid on the enemy's trenches. Although hit by a bomb he continued to throw bombs himself. He was also largely responsible for the withdrawal of his party with few casualties. Later he went out again to search for wounded men.

Temp. 2nd Lt. Owen Llewelyn Johns, Y/32nd Trench Mortar Bn., R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During a very heavy bombardment by the enemy, after firing all his ammunition, he formed up his men and placed himself at the disposal of the Infantry Commanding Officer. He proceeded under heavy fire to the firing line, into which the enemy had penetrated, to see how he could best assist. He set a fine example of cool bravery.

Temp. 2nd Lt. David Kerr, 11th Bn. (attd. 6/7th Bn.), R. Sc. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry. He kept up the supply of bombs under very heavy shell fire, and brought in a wounded man under heavy rifle fire in broad daylight. In doing this his steel helmet was pierced by a bullet and he was wounded in the neck.

Temp. 2nd Lt. Walter Petersen Lind, 8th Bn., R. Dub. Fus.

For conspicuous gallantry. When the enemy had exploded a camouflet and the position was subjected to a very heavy bombardment, it was largely owing to his coolness and disregard of danger that the fight was restored and the situation saved.

2nd Lt. (temp. Lt.) Ewart Alan Mackintosh, 1/5th Bn., Sea. Highrs., T.F.

For conspicuous gallantry. He organised and led a successful raid on the enemy's trenches with great skill and courage. Several of the enemy were disposed of and a strong point destroyed. He also brought back two wounded men under heavy fire.

2nd Lt. (temp. Lt.) John Anderson Mann, 5th Bn., Sco. Rif., T.F. (attd. R.F.C.).

For consistent gallantry and skill. In the course of seven days 2nd Lts. Mann as pilot and Reid as Observer attacked no less than eight enemy aeroplanes. They drove down four, three of which were seriously damaged. The remainder were driven off, one escaping by getting into a cloud.

Temp. 2nd Lt. Edward Philip Manson, 14th Bn., Midd'x R. (attd. 22nd Bn., Lond. R., T.F.).

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in charge of bombers. His party repulsed determined attacks by the enemy and built blocks under heavy artillery fire. Though severely wounded and unable to stand, he continued to direct operations.

2nd Lt. Gerald Morgan McKay, 21st Bn., Lond. R., T.F.

For gallant conduct during an hostile attack. He showed great courage, resource and tenacity in holding his trench under intense fire.

Temp. 2nd Lt. James Ross McLennan, 18th Bn. (attd. 13th Bn.), R. Scots.

For conspicuous gallantry. When the enemy had gained a footing in a portion of our trench, he led the bombing counter-attack with the utmost dash and coolness under very heavy fire. Though twice hit by bombs and badly shaken, he stuck to his post all night.

2nd Lt. John Brine Mitchell, 8th Bn., London. R., T.F.

For conspicuous gallantry. After the battalion bombing officer had been wounded he rallied the bombers, led forward a patrol, attacked the enemy, and held them back till our line was consolidated.

2nd Lt. (temp. Lt.) Lionel Westwood Moberley, 24th Bn., Lond. R., T.F.

For conspicuous good service during an attack on the hostile trenches. When all senior officers had become casualties, he took command of the line in circumstances of great urgency and danger, and organised and consolidated the line. He continued to send clear reports as to the situation. He has already been mentioned in despatches for gallantry.

Temp. 2nd Lt. Leonard Leighton Moody, 12th Bn., R. Sus. R.

For conspicuous gallantry. When in charge of a wiring party he rescued, under heavy fire of machine guns, a man who had been hit. Later he went out three times to search for another man, and eventually found him and brought him in.

Temp. 2nd Lt. Herbert Butler Mulligan, 1st Bn. (attd. 12th Bn.), R. Scots.

For conspicuous gallantry when laying torpedoes under the enemy's wire. On one occasion he accomplished this task under heavy rifle and machine gun fire, and later went out with a private to bring in a wounded man, and succeeded, although observed and shot at by the enemy.

2nd Lt. Charles O'Connell, 21st Bn., Lond. R., T.F.

For distinguished conduct during a counter-attack on enemy trenches. He was first in and last to leave. His coolness and gallantry materially assisted the successful withdrawal.
