

under heavy fire. Weakened by fever and his wounds, he nevertheless remained at duty for four days and rendered invaluable assistance to the brigade.

Lt.-Col. Gilbert Landale Cattell, 1/7th Gurkha Rif., I.A. (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at the Lesser Zab, 25th October, 1918. In command of an advanced guard he most skilfully reconnoitred, and then forced the Zab under heavy fire, finally seizing the enemy's position on the high ground on the high bank. His able dispositions and bold leadership enabled the objective to be taken with a minimum of losses.

Maj. Guy Channer, 14th Sikhs., I.A. (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at Mushaq on 25th October, 1918, and at Sharqat, 29th October. He was wounded whilst commanding his battalion, but refused to be evacuated until the battalion was drawn back to the reserve. It was largely due to his energy, courage, and resource that a determined enemy counter-attack was successfully repulsed.

Capt. Heerajee Jehangir Manookjee Cursetjee, M.B., Ind. Med. S. (attd. 14th Siks). (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at Mushaq, 26th/27th October, 1918, and at Sharqat, 29th October. Throughout the operations he displayed the greatest zeal and disregard for danger while tending the wounded under heavy fire, working unceasingly for forty-eight hours. He has previously rendered excellent service, and once was severely wounded.

Maj. Hugh Gray Martin, 337th Bde., 341st Bty., R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty north of Sharqat on 28th October, 1918. He showed marked ability in selecting positions for his guns under continuous and heavy fire, and organised a well-directed enfilading artillery support for the column with which he was operating. He exposed himself freely in the open until communications were established.

Capt. Arthur Irons Sargon, I.A.R.O., attd. 114th Mahrattas. (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in command of two companies at Mushaq on 26th October, 1918. Although early wounded and exposed to heavy fire, which caused many casualties, he maintained his position for a whole day and night. The excellent service rendered by his companies were in great measure due to his grit and determination.

T./Maj. William Llewellyn Thomas, M.C., 2nd Bn., British W.I.R. (EGYPT)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on 22nd September, 1918, at Mafid Joseh. On learning that an officer's patrol was fighting a rearguard action against vastly superior numbers, he took up a platoon and kept the enemy in check until the remainder of the battalion had arrived as reinforcements. The enemy were driven back. He displayed great initiative in the subsequent attack, which resulted in the capture of Mafid Joseh and forty prisoners.

T./Capt. Eric Hyde Villiers, 1st Bn., High. L.I. (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. His company, acting as advanced guard at night near Mushaq on 25th October, 1918, came under heavy fire at close range. He quickly rallied his men, and, with another company, charged through a double line of high wire and captured the enemy trench, with some prisoners. He penetrated and captured part of the enemy's second line. He displayed great dash and courage, and was instrumental in retrieving a critical situation.

Capt. James Hubert Williams, 1/10th Gurkha Rif., I.A. (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at Mushaq on 26th October, 1918, and at Sharqat on 29th October. On two separate occasions he led his company over 2,000 yards of open and exceedingly difficult country to attack the enemy's position. By his courage and fine leadership he forced his way under heavy fire to within 400 yards of the position on the first occasion, and 300 yards on the second. His rapid advance greatly helped operations in other parts of the field.

Lt.-Col. Charles Edmund Hunter Wintle, 114th Mahrattas. (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty at Sherqat, 29th October, 1918. He boldly led his battalion into action, and repelled a strong counter-attack. He was then left rather in the air, as the enemy had driven a salient into our line. In spite of this, and having sustained heavy casualties, he held his ground throughout the night, and reorganised his command under heavy fire in a most able manner.

Lt.-Col. Richard John Woulfe-Flanagan, 2nd Bn., R.W. Kent R. (MESOPOTAMIA)

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty near Sharqat, 28th October, 1918. Throughout the action he commanded his battalion with great judgment, quickly selecting the salient points of attack. Although his numbers were considerably reduced, he, by making use of some machine gunners and a company of another regiment, eventually gained a complete sweep over the enemy, capturing 180 prisoners and nine machine guns. He did fine work.

AWARDED A BAR TO THE MILITARY CROSS.

Lt. Harold Gordon Inglis, M.C., I.A.R.O., attd. 2/151st Infy., I.A. (EGYPT)

For conspicuous gallantry and brilliant leadership at Kusr Es Senameh, near Bidieh, on 20th September, 1918. In face of very heavy fire he led forward his company from the top of a ridge down a long forward slope and up to the next ridge. He then did the same thing again, capturing a second ridge under still closer and heavier fire. He displayed absolute fearlessness.
