

the effects of gas and only one of his crew left, he brought his Tank into action. Under a heavy barrage he taught a crew of infantrymen, whom he collected, to man the guns and went forward and caught up his infantry. He beat down all opposition, and by his determined courage and skill placed the infantry on their objective.

T./Lt. James Roy Gray, 10th Bn., Tank Corps.

For great gallantry and good work on 24th October, 1918, north-east of Bousies. He went into action with his Tank and knocked out machine-gun posts, thus enabling the infantry to advance without casualties. Later, he ran into a nest of machine guns, his Tank was riddled with armour-piercing bullets, wounding four of his gunners and his driver. He promptly drove the Tank himself, and although his guns were out of action, he succeeded in putting out the nest of machine guns by running over them and dispersing their crews.

Lt. David Green, 1/5th Bn., Suff. R., T.F. (EGYPT.)

For conspicuous gallantry and good work as battalion intelligence officer, and particularly for his reconnaissance work in the advance on 19th September, 1918; for ability as patrol leader, and skilful leading in approaching and rushing an enemy post at Khan Kesfa, near the Wadi Ayun, on the 19th September, 1918, resulting in its capture with an automatic rifle and fifteen men without any casualties.

2nd Lt. Edward Theodore Green, 5th Bn., Ches. R., T.F., attd. 1st Bn., Shrops. L.I.

For fine courage and determination in the attack on North Alley, near Fayet, on 24th September, 1918. Finding his platoon hung up by a hostile machine gun he rushed the gun single-handed, and with the bayonet killed or put out of action the entire team and captured the gun. By this splendid act of gallantry he undoubtedly saved the lives of many of his men, and materially assisted in the capture of the objective.

T./Capt. Zachariah Albert Green, R.A.M.C., attd. 7th Bn., Wilts. R.

For great gallantry and devotion to duty during operations south of Le Cateau on 18th/19th October, 1918. He continuously attended to wounded with the greatest skill and devotion to duty, and on several occasions under very heavy shell fire. His untiring energy, coolness and total disregard of danger were admirable throughout.

2nd Lt. Lewis Greenwood, 1/6th Bn., W. York. R., T.F.

On the 11th October, 1918, during a hostile counter-attack with Tanks near Iwuy, a large gap was formed on the right flank of the battalion. He led forward his platoon, and relieved the situation, and whilst under very heavy fire he set a splendid example of coolness and disregard of personal safety by walking backwards and forwards along the whole front of his platoon, encouraging his men.

Lt. (A./Capt.) Gerald Vyvian Greenall, R.F.A. (Spec. Res.), attd. A/51st Bde.

On the 14th October, 1918, at Slypscapelle, he was badly gassed, but from the 14th to the 22nd October, although still suffering from gas poisoning, he carried on vigorously with his duties, and in particular on the 22nd, at Vichte, when three guns of the battery were too far advanced, and were suffering heavy losses from directly-observed enemy shell fire, he extricated them with great coolness and courage, and got them to a better position.

T./2nd Lt. Theophilus Stephen Gregory, K.R.R.C., attd. 13th Bn.

For conspicuous gallantry and skilful leadership during the attack on Neuville on 23rd October, 1918. When the leading wave was held up just short of the objective by heavy machine-gun fire, he led up a Lewis-gun section from the supporting platoon, and, skilfully working round the left flank in face of continuous fire, succeeded in bringing effective enfilade fire to bear on the entrenched enemy.

T./Lt. Philip Humphreys Greig, 7th Bn., E. Kent R.

East of Le Cateau, on 23rd October, 1918, he showed great skill and tact in the handling of his company, and was an example of courage, cheerfulness and determination to his men. When wounded in the leg, he refused to relinquish command, and only consented to do so when compelled by a second and more serious wound in the chest. His work throughout was admirable.

T./Lt. (A./Capt.) Geoffrey Ernest Adair Grey, R.F.A., attd X/38th T.M. By.

For marked gallantry and devotion to duty on the 4th November, 1918, at Englefontaine. The six-inch trench mortars were firing under heavy enemy shelling for sixteen minutes on the opening barrage for the attack on the Forest de Mormal. When one complete gun detachment became casualties, he ran to the gun, and fired it single-handed for about ten minutes. Though wounded in the leg and head, he kept the gun in action until the time when the trench-mortar barrage had to cease.

Lt. (A./Capt.) John Malcolm Lawrence Grover, 1st Bn., Shrops. L.I.

On the 18th September, 1918, he carried out several reconnaissances during the attack on Fresnoy-le-Petit under heavy fire, sending back most valuable information, which was instrumental in clearing up a very complicated situation. Later, when one company had lost all its officers and the others had suffered almost as severely, he reorganised and disposed the front line with great coolness under heavy fire. On the following day he again carried out most valuable reconnaissances under fire.

T./Lt. (A./Capt.) Ion Grove-White, 2nd Bn., R.I. Rifles, attd. 107th L.T.M. By.

On 8th November, 1918, near Avelghem, he displayed marked coolness and gallantry whilst directing the fire of his mortars in the open, under heavy fire. He eventually succeeded in silencing the enemy fire, thus enabling the Royal Engineers to erect a
