

Provided also that if the Civil Service Commissioners are satisfied in the case of any candidate who is a British subject but does not fulfil all the requirements of the rule as to nationality and descent, that the candidate is so closely connected by ancestry and upbringing with His Majesty's dominions that an exception may properly be made to that rule, they may accept such candidate as eligible provided that this discretion shall not be exercisable unless (a) the father or the paternal grandfather of the candidate was a natural-born British subject, and (b) neither the father nor the paternal grandfather had acquired any other nationality by naturalization or by any other voluntary and formal act.

4. Candidates must have studied science at a University and have taken a degree. Account will be taken of the ability indicated by the degree and of the suitability to the vacancy or vacancies to be filled of the subjects studied for the degree and in any post-graduate study. The subjects in general most suitable are Zoology, Physiology and Botany; also Chemistry, and Mathematics in its bearing upon the statistical analysis of biological problems. Emphasis may be placed upon one or other of these branches of science according to the nature of the vacancy or vacancies to be filled.

5. The completed application forms will be scrutinised by the Fishery Board and those candidates who appear to satisfy the conditions of these regulations will be interviewed by a Selection Board consisting of representatives of the Fishery Board and a representative of the Civil Service Commission.

6. The Selection Board will prepare a list in order of merit of those candidates whom they consider suitable for appointment.

Any attempt on the part of candidates to enlist support for their applications through Members of Parliament or other influential persons will disqualify them for appointment. The Selection Board will disregard spontaneous recommendations from persons who are not personally acquainted with the candidate's previous work.

7. The appointment of selected candidates will be subject to their satisfying the Civil Service Commissioners of their eligibility in respect of age, nationality, health and character, and will not be confirmed unless and until they have passed the prescribed period of probation to the satisfaction of the Fishery Board for Scotland.

8. A fee of £3 will be payable by selected candidates on the issue of their certificates of qualification.
