Whitehall.

The Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury do hereby under the authority of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876, appoint Greenock on and after the date of this Warrant to continue and be a Port in that part of the United Kingdom called Scotland and do hereby declare that the limits of the said Port shall commence on the Western side of Ardoch Burn on the North side of the River Clyde and continue in a direct line across the said River to Parklee House on the South side of the said River (being the Western boundary of the Port of Glasgow) and shall continue thence in a Westerly and Southerly direction down the East side of the Firth of Clyde to a point of land called Portincross Point or Port Crawford in the County of Ayr including the villages of Largs and Fairlie; thence in a direct line to the most Northern point of the Isle of Arran thence to Skipness Point and thence along the West shore of Loch Fyne to and including East Tarbert; thence to and including West Tarbert and thence in a South-westerly direction along the North-western shore of West Tarbert Loch to the most Southern point of Knapdale. From the said point in a direct line to and including the Mull of Oa at the most Southern point of Islay (which last-mentioned limits, i.e., from the most Northern point of the Isle of Arran to the Mull of Oa, are part of the Northern limits of the Port of Campbeltown); thence to Rhinns Point including Mackenzie's Island and the Isle of Orsay thence in a direct line to and including the rock called the Skerryvore, South-west of the Island of Tiree, thence to the North-western point of the said Island of Tiree, thence to the most Northern point of the Island of Coll and thence in a direct line to Ardnamurchan Point. From the said Ardnamurchan Point Eastward along the South-western coast of Ardnamurchan to the entrance to Loch Sunart and in a direct line across the entrance to the said Loch and along the South Coast of Morven to the Point of Rudha-an-ridire but excluding the coast from Ardnamurchan Point to Rudha-an-ridire; thence in a supposed direct line to the North-western point of the Island of Lismore and thence to Portnacroish in Appin (which last-mentioned limits, i.e. from Ardnamurchan Point to Portnacroish including the Southern coasts of Ardnamurchan and Morven and the entrance to Loch Sunart are the Southern limits of the Port of Inverness); thence along the coast of the mainland to the aforementioned most Southern point of Knapdale and thence back in a North-easterly direction along the North-western shore of West Tarbert Loch to the aforementioned West Tarbett; thence to the aforementioned East Tarbert (which last-mentioned limits, i.e. from the most Southern point of Knapdale to but not including West Tarbert and East Tarbert are part of the Northern limits of the Port of Campbeltown) and thence along the coast of the mainland to the aforementioned Ardoch Burn. The said limits shall include all coast and sea lying within the aforesaid bounds and shall extend seawards a distance of three miles from low water mark and shall include the Islands of Bute, Mull, Tiree, Coll, Islay, Jura and all other islands (though not enumerated herein) together with all bays, lochs, rivers, harbours, creeks, roadsteads, sounds and channels lying within the said bounds.

And we do hereby annul as from the date of this Warrant all former limits of the Port of Greenock.

Dated this fourteenth day of December, 1938.
