Off the South Cape an Algier Man of War with another of Sally, came in the Night amongst the Fleet; but being mouest in fo much company, left them without any diffurbance.

The 7th inflant came in the Lilly Rofe of this place from Morlaix, affirming that many foldices intended for Candia, are fhipt and ready to put to fea from Broft; that the, French, fill continue building of fhips, and that a Proclamation is there publifit, imposing 27 Livres apiece upon all Dutch and English thips that thall come in there, befides the ancient Tunnage.

having with him 1 c Companies of Foot and Horfe. The Grandees of Poland already appear very numerous in the City with many Attendants and great Trains. The Ambassidors and Ministers of Forreign Princes begin allo to thew themfelves near the City, these from France, Nicubourgh, and Lorrain, are lodged within two or three miles of Warsaw, but have not yet obtained liberty to enter the City; but the Senators have ordered some Polish Gentlemen to attend and complement them, and under that presence to observe their actions; the better to prevent any under thand practices to the disturbance of the Publick Peace. The Ambassidours from His Imperial Majesty and the Elector of Brandenbourgh are also suddenly expected.

petted. "Tis believed they may proceed in little time to an Elefion, and the fooner, the tetter to prevent any defigns of the Tartars or other Nations which border upon Poland. The King is retired from Warfew, but not to any confi erable diftance; prefing much the Eftabl finnent of his Penfion and future allowance for his fubfithance, to have it sonfirmed by the Alfembly of the States and by the Sueceffor to his Crown.

Venites, May 4. Here is daily expected the Regiment railed for the affiftance of this Republick by the Elector of Bavaria with other forces from other Princes of Germany, for whole tran portation as well as for a farther supply of Candia, a new Convoy of 16 ships is firing up, some of which are already taking in their Provisions and other necelfaries for the lupply of that place, upon which are also to be imbarked 200 horfe more towards the p eparation for a Field Army, and a confiderable number of Malons, 4 arpenters and other Labourers to be employed for the effence of the City, and its fortifications.

We have not of late received any particular account by Letters from Candia of the flate of our affaits there, nor of the advances made by the Tarks upon them, onch by advices featteringly brought us from other parts, we find the Vilier more intene then ever upon that work, and encouraging his people to improve theirvalour to the utmost, before the forces of the Christian Princes can be united and tran ported into the Ifland : that for fome time he was willing to attend the fucce's of his Mines, in which he had repofed much confidence, thinking by this means to be as little ex-. penfive and profule of the lives of hispeople as he could, his numbers being not over confiderable before the Towr, and his expectation of fresh forces often trustrated, but finding little fucce fs in these underground defignes, and having lost a confiderable number of his men-by the happy firing of the. Mines by the Venetians, to the utter ruine of his Mount and Battery b fore the Work St. Andre, in which he loft above 1000 men. He fince in much fury meditating revenge, ordered a fierce affault to be given to that part wherein they had before made a confiderable breachy which continued for fome time with dubious fuccels and great flaughters, but the valour of the belieged in the end forced them to retreats to the great veration as well as loss to the Visier, and greater discouragement to his Army; nor had the Christians an easie victory, but befides the loss of many soluiers, several Officers of principal note who had that day as well as formerly fignalized their valouts in the defence of the place, dyed valiantly fighting against the Enemy, of which we in few days may expect the particular. Our men of war are itill plying in the Archipelage diligently observing the mo i n of the Turkit. It ips. We have a confident report, that the fix A ips which put out from Aleffandria laden with Men and Ammuni-ion intended for the supply of the Viser Army and bound for Canea, were upon the way overtaken by a violent from, that three of them were funk by its violence, and no part of their lading nor any of the men faved, and that the other's were driven on floar and deferted by their men, with little hopes to get them off again

From Conflatinople we have faveral advices of great Commotions there; the Jatifaries being highly incenfed againft the Grand Segnior, and threatning to advance one of his Brethien to the Throne; we have alfo confirmed the news of the Grand Segniors fall from his Horfe, of which he is foil, that his Phylicians feen much to doubt of his recovery
