Birdington, June 24. By the Master of a Ship belonging to this Town, we are informed, that the 18th instant in his passage to Sunderland, he took up at Sea a boat with 4 men, 3 of them belonging to his Majesty's Ship the Forrester, employed as Convoy to the Ireland Fleet, by whom he had this account that upon intelligence that a Danish Pirate much infesting those Seas, had plundered several Ships both English and others, and had lately possessed himself of a Pinck belonging to Hamburgh, wherein the Captain of the Pirates had embarked himself with severals of his men and 2 small guns; supposing her fitter for his purposes, as being a better Sailer than his own Vessel: the Forrester after some little enquiry had seized the said Pinck, and leaving the said Hamburgers on board, intrusted the Master to convey her into England; who upon a view of a Holland Dogger boat, upon a pretence of buying Fish, forced the few English that were aboard to put themselves into the boat, and putting all his sails, directing his course for Hamburgh. These men were all taken up about 4 or 5 leagues from the land, and set on shore at liberty.

Plymouth, June 25. The 21 instant sailed out of this Port 12 or 14 sail of ship bound for Newfoundland, Portugal, & the Straights.

There are since put into this Port 5 Ships of London outward bound, and this day 2 French Ships laden with Salt, 3 or 4 Vessels laden with Timber for the Isles of Wight.
