From Thursday March 22. to Monday March 26. 1666.

Harwich, March 20.

The Success and True-love sailed hence this morning. The Garland and Marmaid intend to go out to morrow. The Centurion and Welcome are fixing out, and will speedily be ready for the Sea.

On Sunday last passed by us towards the North, about 10 or 12 Sail, one or more of them Men of War, and convoy to the rest. Towards the Evening a Gun was fired by one of them in Ously-Bay; the next morning they were gone out of our sight.

Deal, March 20. Last night the Society brought in here a Dutch prize laden with Wines, which she chased under the Castle of Deep, who fired many Guns, the French coming down in multitudes with what arms they had in her defence; but some Guns fired from the ship, quickly dispersed them, who were willing for their own safety to suffer the prize to be quietly brought off.

Lyme, March 21. Yesterday Captain Alford with two Barks of this Town laden with Lockerams from Fersey and Guernsey, came in hither with several other Merchants, under the convoy of the Richmond, bound for other Ports. They tell us that the French King hath prohibited any English Drapery to be brought into his Dominions, on pain of death.

Plymouth, March 19. The Elizabeth hath taken several prizes laden with Wine and Salt, but pretend to be Hamburgers; one of them is in Falmouth, the other she brought into this Port.

The Nightingale hath likewise sent in four prizes into Falmouth with the same lading and pretences.

Yesterday the Serings brought in a prize with French Wines, having taken another of 30 Guns, and about 500 Tun, with Salt and Wine from St. Lucar, but pretends to be a Spaniard, and by contrary winds is driven into Torbay.

Venice, March 2. The Soldiery raised in the Territories of the Church of Rome, are marched to Ancona, where they are to be mixed with 6000 old Venetian Soldiers, and then to be transported into Candia; upon which place, this Republick bends its whole force, endeavoring to eject the Turks, who are in that Island, especially at Canca where they are reduced to great streights. Ten Ships with all sorts of Provisions, and 400 fresh Soldiers from hence with recruits, are ready to set sail thither with the next fair wind.

A Vessel from Cattaro informs us, that the Turks have had lately a great mutiny, that proceeded so high, that coming to blows, an hundred Turks were slain.

Zwoll, March 17. Here is a fresh prohibition published against the exporting of Wines, Brandies, Beer, Bariey, Cheese, or any such like provisions, upon pain of confiscation, except as much, only as shall be judged necessary for the supply of the inhabitants round about.

Rome, Feb. 28. The Cardinal Conti in consequence of his promotion, hath resigned up the Government of the City into the hands of the Pope, who bestowed it upon the Sieur Sopremo, who the same time had his Oath given him by his Holiness; who hath likewise conferred the charge of Auditor General, vacant by the promotion of Cardinal Paluzzi, upon the Sieur Caracciolo; and on the Sieur Bonacorsi, that of Treasurer General, late in the hands of Cardinal Corfini; and on the Sieur Ravizza, that of Secretary to the Council, the employment which Cardinal Raffoni formerly enjoyed.

St. Germain en Laye, March 26. On the 21 instant, the King gave audience to a Chiaoux, sent by the King and Bassa of Tunis, for the ratification of the Treaty made with them by the Duke de Beaufort, in His Majesties name; for the freedom of Commerce, and the mutual release of prisoners and slaves. The Sieur Bonneuil (according to the duty of his place) introducing him: the 22 he gave audience to the Envoye of the Duke of Wirtemberg, whom the Sieur de Bonneuil attended in the Kings Coach. The Popes Nuntio had likewise his on the 24 instant.

Raab, Feb. 26. The Count Palaffi Imbre renders himself every day more and more considerable and formidable to those who have order to reduce him, especially to the Palatine of Hungary, whose Countrey he particularly threatens. But his Troops (being onely composed of Vagabonds, and persons without interest or power, not easily disciplined) we hope, without much trouble, will be reduced. He hath had some private conferences with the Bassa of Ersa, of whom he demanded protection, and a place of retreat in Transilvania; for which, he was offered a Castle conveniently situated; but the Palatine hath so powerfully represented it to the Bassa, as a thing that would infinitely disgust the Ottoman Court, as being a manifest breach of the Alliance between the two Empires, that he hath promised not to give him any assistance.

Paris, March 26. The French King, the better to put an end to the differences between the Parliament and Clergy of France, hath given order to these latter to produce what they have to shew for their Rights and Privileges; and what their pretensions are to a precedency, which is the point in dispute.

The Mint is employed in coining a new money, which (we talk) shall be called Cavallo.

The Duke Mazarine is at the last dismissed from the charge he had of being Great Master of the Artillery; The King, as they say, having in recompence divided the Admiralty into two parts, and made him Admiral of the Ocean, with permission to bear in his Standard the Armes of Briagne.

The Parliament of Rouen has committed six Curates to prison, they being discovered to have had several private meetings and assemblies, in order to a Reformation in Religion. A Priest and one woman are sent likewise to the Basilie, being found over busie upon the account of Religion, with a design to have followed Mr. de Pomponne into Swedeland, there to propagate their new opinion.

At Boulogne, there are three Fregats furnisht out for the defence of those Coasts against the English.

The Cardinal Ursini lately took his leave of their Majesties at St. Germanes, to return to Rome, to whom the King at his farewell, shewed all his Family in Armes: towards the carrying on of his Warrs, the King has been forced to take Five hundred thousand Livers intended to have been laid out in building the Louvre.

Paris, Ditto. We heare from Liege, that the Elector of Cologne has received a present from the Marquis de Castlet Rodrigo, of seven Mules laden with Silver, Plate, and several rarities of great value, which gives no small jealousy of their intentions to this Court; the King being so very zealous against the Bishop of Munster, that by his Envoye, he tells all the Princes of the Rhine, as we are made to believe here, that he shall declare himself an Enemy to any Prince or State, that shall give him assistance in this War.

The Priest sent to the Basilie, is supposed to be the Sieur de Villars, a revolted Jesuite; he hath had the question ordinary and extraordinary, to force him to a confession, having (as the report is here) several pieces found about him, in favor of the English against France; with the pretensions of the King of England to this Crown, as also a Letter of intelligence and correspondency of some Frontier Town of ours with England.

Highness the Duke of Brandenburgh, hath had his last Audience in order to his return. Hannibal Sehefeldt hath had private conference with the King, he and Mr. Bunninghen being conversed frequently together, and in great intimacy.

Here hath been much stir about the four dissenting Bishops, against whom the Pope's Nuncio lately brought to the King a Brief of Interdiction, desiring him likewise to use his authority for the putting it in execution: All means possible are made use of to bring them to submission, and to this purpose a Formulaire is drawn up, which they are desired to sign: They began first to press it upon the Bishop of Angers, but he refused, as the rest likewise do, to suffer all the rigours of their Bulls, rather than subscribe it. An Assembly of the Clergy hath been held several days about this affair, but the King hath sent to press them to a result, and to prefix a day for their dissolution within fifteen days after his Message. He hath nominated 4 Archbishops, 4 Counsellors of State, and 4 of the Parliament, to advise with him about this Brief against those Bishops who refuse to sign the Formulaire. The Chancellor, as is said, having already advised him, to desire the Pope to lend his Bull, and so to proceed to nominate new Bishops in their rooms.

St. Omer, March 18. The States of Artois some daies since assembled in the great place of this City, where a Theatre was erected for that Ceremony, in the midst of it was placed the Portrayure of the King of Spain, under a Cloth of State: the President of the Council for that Province, according to the Commission received from the Marquis de Castel Rodrigo, swore in the hands of the Bishop, in the name of his Catholick Majesty, to observe their Privileges, and then took an Oath of Obedience from the Bishop, in behalf of those States, which was performed with the firing of their Cannon, and the usual Acclamations, afterwards they were treated in the Town-house, and the next day by the Count St. Venazur, the Governor, who threw amongst the people several pieces of money; concluding the Ceremony with an entertainment of Fireworks.

Munster, March 23. The Conferences here between his Highness of this place, and the Deputies of the Elector of Brandenburgh have ended in this, That a meeting be appointed about the beginning of the next month in some convenient place, for the consulting about the common peace and security of this Circle of the Empire: To which, they are satisfied of his Highnesses perfect inclinations; and that it hath been by great necessity, and after the abuse of a long and suffering patience, that he hath been obliged by way of Arms to do himself justice upon his Neighbors. However his Highness hath declared he cannot conclude any thing in relation to the present War, without the participation and consent of his Allies.

Bruxelles, March 20. On the 18 instant, the Duke de Verazuz, formerly Camp-Master General of the Armies in the Low Countries, left this City to return into Spain, where he is to enter upon the command of the Sea forces of his Catholick Majesty, void by the Death of the Duke d'Avero: the Marquis de Castel Rodrigo, and all the Nobility of this City accompanying him out of Town.

Hague, March 25. The Sieur Beverning tells us what success the Elector of Brandenburghs Mediation with the Bishop hath hitherto had, that it hath onely produced a meeting to be had the next month between the Princes of the Circle of Westphalia; which we are much dissatisfied here to finde the Elector so easily accept of, judging by all these delays, it is not in earnest he intends to espouse our Alliance; and therefore order is given to Beverning to represent to him the necessity of present action upon the enemy, ere his fresh recruits, which we are told, are very forward, and the season of the year prevent us in the advantages we promised our selves against him from that Electors forces. We have not yet found the effects of the great Deputation from Zeland, a few days will show them: In the mean time, it is observed, the people every where begin to speak factiously for the Prince; and indeed it is feared, how in reason or policy to our own quiet, the Propositions said to be made in his favor, can be refused, or wholly laid aside at this time.

Vienne, March 3. Count Lesly is still on his journey, but not expected here till towards the end of this month, several persons of quality are gone to meet him, among the rest, Colonel Lesly his Nephew, who intends to pass on as far as Buda. The Turkish Ambassador hath not yet had his last Audience, but is expected to demand it in few daies.

The Emperor defers at present to give out more Commissions for new levies, many difficulties arising in the Provinces of his Hereditary Countries, about the proportions both for the raising and maintaining Soldiers, when raised. In so much as the Diets proceed slowly in Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia, Austria, and other places; who have sent several persons of quality to this Court, to whom the Emperor hath given effectual orders for the management of this affair.

Cleve, March 24. The Mediation of this Elector at Munster, together with the joyned Application of the Elector of Colem, the Duke of Newburgh and the Duke of Eranswick Wolfenbuttel, have at last inclined the Bishop to agree, that a meeting shall be had about the beginning of next month, between the Princes of this Circle of the Empire, at Dorimunde, for the deliberating further of what concerns the peace and good of this part of the Empire, which they are sensible is already much distracted, and may, if a timely union prevent it not, be in a much further danger from some of our Foreign Neighbors, who they suspect are not sorry for this occasion of bringing a force into the Empire.

The Sieur de Blumenthal our Envoye to the French King, is daily expected back; by whom we are to be further instructed of the intentions and desires of that Court, in the prosecution of this Summers War.

Portus Weymouth, March 21. Here arrived the nineteenth two Vessels from the Isle of Guernsey, viz. The Providence of Weymouth, laden with Fruits, and a French Vessel from St. Maloes with Linnen Cloth, having for their convoy the Guernsey Fregat when they came out, but being separated by storm, the Providence within two Leagues of Portland was chased by a French Sloop, but out sailed him. The St. Maloes men reports, that the people about these parts murmur exceedingly at the war with England, and avoid all they can possibly the assistance of the Dutch; the Seamen refusing the service of their Merchants, and those that have any stocks on ship-board, taking care to withdraw them.

Portsmouth, March 22. The Deptford Fregat met with a Vessel not far from Guernsey, which she took and brought in to the Isle of Wight: She is laden with Wines for Bordeaux, and as the Master pretends, is bound for Offend.

Newcastle, March 20. On Sunday last arrived here the long expected fleet of Light Colliers with their convoy, being above 120 Sails, with several Vessels from other places, to the great satisfaction and rejoycing of all people near these parts.

Deal, March 24. Yesterday was a Prize brought in by the West-Friesland, but what she is, we have not as yet an account.

Bristol, March 17. Captain Wood hath raised lately in these parts two hundred stout and able Seamen for His Majesties service, and went almost a week since from hence with them: they were very willing to serve in the employment, and a great part of them (by reason of the numbers that freely offered themselves) so earnest to be listed, that they employed and made friends to the Captain to accept them.

Burton, March 19. Cap. Pool, who with his Fregat, was ordered to ly upon the Coasts of this Country for their security; coming lately in his Long-boat to the Town of Shoreham, in his absence, his Lieutenant discovered a Shallop, which he presently made up to, and after some dispute, boarded and took, with a great many French.

Harwich, March 24. Yesterday sailed from hence the Mermaid and the Success: the last night came in the Black-Eagle Offering, Convoy to any ships that were bound Northwards. These Coasts have been of late, and still are very clear from Pickaroons.

On Thursday last was lanchd at Tarmonth, a Fifth Rate Fregat, called the Sweepstakes, which by the judgment of all Seamen that have seen her, is the best ship of her Rate that hath been seen.
