Venice, June 8. N. S. Signior Fabio Bonvicini, Provveditor Extraordinary, who has resided some time at Crema, is ordered to remove from that Place to the Polessine, to be nearer to the Imperial and the French Armies, in order to observe their Motions. Our last Accounts from thence say, That the Duke of Vendesme having sent before a Detachment of 10000 Men towards Trecenta, and left some Forces in the Intrenchments which they had lately cast up near Pontemolino, decamped with the rest of his Troops on the first Instant from Sanguinetto, and passing by Legnago, marched to Zelo, where he encamped that night; after which he passed over the River Tartaro on 3 Bridges of Boats, which he had caused to be made there, and came the 4th to Massa, and from thence marched to Melara, with intent, as is supposed, to attack Ostiglia, the German principal Post, which is very well fortified. He has left strong Guards near Carpi, and at several other Places on the Rivers Adige, Tartaro, and Canal Bianco. General Visconti, who lay at Finale di Modena with 4000 Imperialists, has quitted that Place, and is marched to Quarella, where he is intrenching himself, being more conveniently posted for joining the rest of the Imperial Forces as there may be occasion: Lieutenant-General Albergotti has thereupon taken Possession of Finale di Modena with a Body of French Troops, and has sent a Detachment to Palancone, with Orders to fortify that Place, and to make a Bridge over the Po at Felschucrolo, in order to establish a Communication that way with the Forces under the Duke of Vendesme. The French Forces which were left near Pontemolino have raised a Battery of several Pieces of Cannon against that Place, and are battering the German Works therewith, but hitherto with little Success. It is said the Imperialists intend to cut down the Banks of the Po near Melara, which would overflow a great Tract of Land, and would put the French Forces posted thereabouts to great Inconveniencies. General Vaubonne is marched with the Body of Imperial Troops under his Command from San Michiele to the Val Polifella, by which Valley the Imperialists intend that their Succours shall come for the future, and not by the Valley of Barcola, as formerly, which is found not to be so convenient. We hear a considerable Reinforcement from Germany has already joined him, and that when the rest of the Succours expected from thence are come up, which will make this Body very strong, he will probably march towards the Duchy of Milan to make a Diversion.

Vienna, June 9. The Emperor entered this day into the 64th Year of his Age, and has thereupon received the usual Compliments of the Foreign Ministers and other Persons of Quality. We lately received an Account from Hungary, That about 600 Persons being got together, had committed some Disorders near Monaz and Casovia; but some Troops being ordered to march that way and to disperse them, we hope that an end is put before now to this Tumult. Letters from Passau of the 7th Instant say, the Count de Schlick was with a Body of Troops in the neighbourhood of Brzunan, raising large Contributions in the Country of Bavaria.

Ratisbonn, June 15. We have not yet any Account of the Marshal de Villars being decamped from the Neighbourhood of Ulm, and the French and Bavarians seem to be at a stand what further Measures to enter upon, those which they had taken against the Circle of Franconia being entirely broke, by the Precautions which the Allies have used for its Defence, and more particularly by Prince Lewis of Baden's joining the Count de Stryum, who has now an Army near as strong as the French and Bavarians joined together. It is said the Troops of the Circle of Franconia have gained a new Advantage over the Bavarian Forces near Rothemberg, whereof we expect the Particulars.

Frankfort, June 17. The French Army under the Command of the Duke of Burgundy is still encamped near Haguenau, expecting Reinforcements from Lorraine and from the Saar: General Thungen continues also over-against Fort Louis with a Detachment from the Lines of Stollhoffen, in order to observe the Enemy's Motions. Letters from Swabia and Franconia give an Account, That Prince Lewis of Baden had joined the Count de Stryum, and was within two Marches of the French Army, resolving to fight them; The Enemy was reckoned to be somewhat stronger in Foot, but the Germans much outnumbered them in Horse. The Marshal de Villars, as is said, intended to continue near the Danube, to observe the Confederate Army, while the Elector of Bavaria's Forces should advance towards the Country of Tirol, with intent to open a Communication to themselves with the French Army in Italy.

Cologne, June 19. A Body of above 6000 Men, being part of the Forces which the Circle of Westphalia is to furnish towards the Army of 120000 Men, agreed upon at the Imperial Diet to be set on foot by the Empire, is marching towards the Upper Rhine, and was to encamp the 17th Instant near Coblenz. Twenty Battalions of Foot and Eight Squadrons of Horse, of the Forces of the States General, are also marching the same way, and they will shortly be followed by 7000 of the Prussian Forces, which are sent to the Emperor's Assistance by that King.

From the Camp at Hanef, June 11. The 18th Instant, upon Notice that the Right Wing of the Enemy's Army was foraging between the two Camps, our Piquet Guard was immediately ordered out to attack them. The Enemy thereupon retired to their Camp with great Precipitation, leaving most part of their Forage behind; and our Men took about 40 Prisoners, and as many Horses. The same day one of the Enemy's Parties of 70 Men fell in with our Foragers on the Left; but being surrounded by our Forage Guard, 18 of them were killed, and 41 taken Prisoners; two more of this Party deserted and came over to us, so that only 9 returned home. The 19th a Party of 1200 of the Enemy's Horse and Dragoons, under the Command of Lieutenant-General de Boy, attempted to surprize our Grand Guard, consisting of 250 Horse, commanded by a Lieutenant-Colonel, and divided into several small Squadrons, one on the Right, and another on the Left, of 50 Troopers each, and one in the Center, of 40 Men: The rest were advanced to a further distance, in small Parties of 10 and 12 Men each. The Enemy, the better to conceal their Design, ordered two Squadrons of 50 Men each to march about with green Boughs in their Hats, hoping by this Stratagem to get between the Guard and our Camp undiscovered; but the Lieutenant-Colonel, who had posted himself on the Right, perceiving the Enemy's Motions, ordered his small Parties to come and reinforce him; so that the two Squadrons, when they approached nearer, met only with one of our Corporals with 12 Men, of whom they carried off 8. In the mean time 3 other Squadrons attacked the Lieutenant-Colonel, who charged the Enemy with so great Bravery, that they were forced to retire to their main Body, which was posted at some distance; and our Piquet Guard coming up to his Assistance, the Enemy retired towards their Camp, having had a Captain, with another Officer, and 8 of their Men, killed; We also took from them 2 Lieutenants, 3 Cornets, 13 Troopers, and a Dragoon, with their Horses. These Prisoners, and those those taken the day before, were sent yesterday morning to Maftricht. Yesterday his Grace the Duke of Marlborough, with Monsieur d'Auverquerque, reviewed all the Foot of the second Line. Ten Troopers of the Duke of Salsburg's Regiment, who were foraging with their Arms, have just now brought in a Party-man with 18 of the Enemy's Foot, whom they took Prisoners, having found them lurking about with their Arms, with an intention to steal some of our Horses.

Hague, June 22. N. S. Our last Advices from the Army commanded by General Coehoorn say, they were still encamped at Starbroek, to the number of 17000 Men; that 4000 Men would join them this day, and they would be speedily reinforced with 5000 Men more, drawn out of the several Garrisons in Flanders, and would in 5 or 6 days attack the French Lines near Antwerp, in order afterwards to besiege that Place. According to our last Advices from the Upper Rhine, Landau was out of all danger of being besieged, the French not being strong enough for such an Undertaking; and the Design of the late Motions of the Duke of Burgundy's Army was only to favour those of the Forces under the Elector of Bavaria and the Marshal de Villars, who seem to have a Design of turning towards the Country of Tirol, to hinder the Imperial Forces in Italy from receiving any Supplies out of Germany.

Falmouth, June 12. Yesterday came in here a Dutch Privateer, who reports, That last week he chased on Shore near St. Malo a French homeward bound West-India Ship of 46 Guns, which was soon after staved to Pieces.

Plymouth, June 13. Two Dutch Privateers, one of 30, and the other of 20 Guns, brought in here yesterday a French Privateer of 20 Guns, belonging to St. Malo, called Le Cigne, Monsieur du Chenay Commander, which they took off Falmouth, but was chased by Her Majesty's Ship the Exeter; whereupon she had cut her Anchors from the Bow, and had thrown her Guns over-board.

Tutbury, June 14. Her Majesty's Ship the Fowey came into our Road the 12th, with about 50 Sail of small Merchant Ships under her Convoy from Rotterdam. This day came in Her Majesty's Ships the Portland and Adventure, with several Merchant Ships under their Convoy: They met on the 11th, about 9 Leagues W. N. W. from Flamborough-head, with a Dogger coming from Norway, and bound to Holland, who informed them, That on the 3d Instant, off the Naze of Norway, he saw 4 Sail of Ships, supposed to be French Men of War, with a Snaw in their Company; and about 4 hours after meeting Rear-Admiral Beaumont, with 7 Sail of English and Dutch Men of War under his Command, he gave him an Account of those French Ships; whereupon he immediately sailed after them.

Portsmouth, June 15. Admiral Allemonde came last night to Spithead, with a Dutch Rear-Admiral, and 6 Dutch Men of War. At the same time came to Spithead Her Majesty's Ship the Litchfield, commanded by the Rt. Hon. the Lord Dursley, who left Her Majesty's Fleet under the command of Sir George Rooke at Sea on the 9th Instant: Since which his Lordship took a French Man of War of 36 Guns and 260 Men, and a French Merchant Ship bound home from Marrinico, of 20 Guns, and about 250 Tuns, and has brought them both to Spithead.

Whitehall, June 15. This day came in Letters from the Fleet commanded by Sir George Rooke, dated the 3th of this Month at Sea, giving an Account, That he had been cruising off Bell Isle, and off the French Coast in the Bay of Biscay, whereby he greatly alarmed the Enemy, insomuch that they had drawn down great Numbers of their Militia and other Troops to defend their Coasts. Her Majesty's Ships under his Command have taken many Prizes, which were coming home from the West-Indies and other Parts, and some of them of very considerable Value.
