

An Envoye sent from the Duke of Newbourg to Stockholm, hath it seems passed through Copenhagen, where he stayed only one night, without seeing, or being seen by any body.

They are in so great apprehensions of an English Fleet in Denmark, that they keep continual sentinels along the Coasts, and some daies since a Swedish Galliot having casually appeared, bearing a White Cross in a Blew Field, and after her four or five Fisher-boats, the Alarm was immediately taken of the English Blew squadrons approaching, upon which, all the Guns in Cronenburg were with all hast turned from the Land Ramparts, to those of the water-side.

Paris, March 30. Letters from Thoulon tells us of a great difference lately falln out between Montieur de Beaufort and a Captain, who for some offences had condemned three of his Soldiers to be executed, whom the Duke was earnest to have saved, intending to employ them in his Navy; but being refused with some plainnels, drew his sword in their rescue, but was kept off by the Cannons, who bent his Pike against him; which as a great affront, is represented here by the Admiral to the King, and satisfaction required.

We are informed from Mastricht, that the Governor of that place hath disarmed all the inhabitants, suspecting them to be corrupted by two Chavoins, who have had the question twice put to them, and had formed a design to deliver up the Town to Colonel Cleuter.

We are in some fear for three Vessels that were sent from Rochel, towards the Indies, lest they may run some hazard in meeting with Sir Jeremy Smith cruising about Tangier; the ships having aboard three Millions of Livres.

The King is sending away Mr. Courtin into Germany, to be mediator in his Majesties name, for composing the differences between the Elector of Mayence and Palatine; whereupon the Emperor tells them, That being Subjects to the Empire, his Imperial Majesty ought to have been chosen as arbitrator, rather than the most Christian King.

Ditto, March 31. By an arrest given here in the Council, all Manufactures of the factory and product of England are forbid to be imported, upon the penalty of 10000 Livres, and imprisonment; in design to ruine the trade of that Nation.

Middleburgh, April 1. On Friday last orders were given out by the Admiralty of Zealand for several Men of War, lying at Flushing and Campvere, to direct their course towards the Texel, to joyn with those of Amsterdam, upon some new design, which we cannot yet discover. The Admiral & Vice-Admiral of Zealand are returned from the Hague, where they and other principal Sea-Officers consulted about a fit place for a general Rendezvous; the States result not yet known. The States of Zealand have deputed two out of every Town that hath voices, to meet, as likewise they are to do, from all the Seven Provinces at the Hague. The reason of their meeting is much discoursed of, some conjecturing it to be, to finde overtures for Peace, others to consult about the Restauration of the Prince, to the Priviledges of his Ancestors, which the Brandenburgher hath of late much pressed; and as is reported, hath offered his Mediation between the Prince and the States. But time will teach us more certainly.

Hague, April 6. We have been forced to send de Witte, Crommon, and Bootsma, to the Landtags or Conventions of Over-Yssel and Guedre, to call upon them to bring in their arrears to the former Taxes; which we are afraid how they will be able to do, considering the great losses those Provinces have suffered from the Bishop. Two others were named to go on the same Errand to Groninghen, but the Deputies here took it rather upon themselves, and are to go hence on purpose to prets it.

From Mastricht we are told, That Vandernat drives the same trade about Aix, thas Colonel Cleuter did about Mastricht, in forcing the neighboring parts of our Territories to bring in Contribution; and that two of the Cannons of Aix are made the receivers, whereof complaint is to be made to that Town, and Reciprocal threatened to be used against them, in case they prevent it not in the future.

Tuesday next is appointed to debate the matter of the Zealand Deputation, which as yet remains untouched.

Deputies are appointed to go and take an account of the state of our equippages; some to Amsterdam, others to Rotterdam, Zealand, North-Holland, and Harlingen.

Zealand coming to preside this week, it is expected what issue they will be able to bring their late Proposition of the second of April to, concerning the disposing the superior charges for life, and not to be temporary. They have already reminded the Assembly of it, but the other Provinces have not as yet spoken to it.

Finding things hang so long at Cleue, order is sent to Beverning, to make an end of the Treaty of Peace within eight days after the receipt of the Letter.

In the heat of the dispute about the Prince, it is said the Prince's Dowager hath presented a Memorial to the States of Holland; by which, she desires them to accept the Prince for a Child of the State, to which Holland seems perfectly willing. But to that, Zealand makes exception, saying, they ought to have an interest in his Education, as well as Holland; what will be the further issue, a little time will show us.

Constantinople, Feb. 13. Last Friday in the afternoon the French Ambassador with more pomp then usual, went to his audience to the Grand Visier: At his entry he made several steps, expecting the Visier would have risen to him; but finding no more respect, he sat down on a stool provided for him, and by his Druggerman demanded more honor in the name of his Master, whom he stiled all along (Emperor of France;) But the Visier incensed with the manner of demanding it, brake out into a passion; which the French Ambassador resenting, rose from his seat, and in going away, threw the Capitulations, with the Case, over his shoulder, which, it seems, hit the Visier on the Breast. Upon which, the Visier called to his Officers to apprehend and strike him, which was presently executed by the Capigis larke haite, or Master of the Ceremonies and Pages, who hurried him out of the Chamber, where he received several boxes on the Ear, and blows on the Breast, from Mehemet Bassa Capigi, Bassa of the Visier, who carried him prisoner into the Chiaus Bassa's Chamber, in the Visiers house, into a bad low room under the stairs, where he was kept from Friday till Tuesday, whence he was delivered by the intercession of the English Ambassador, who with much difficulty obtained his liberty, they having taken severe resolutions against him. What reparation will be made him, we know not, the discourse being of having him clapt up in the seventh Tower, or sent home prisoner to his Master. Montieur de Guitry, a person of quality, sent on purpose by the French King; to be present at the solemnities of his reception, was fairly a witness to his Excellencies most exemplary buffering.

Ofsend, March 30. The Governor of Dunkirk having been denied by the Spaniard the Exportation of Timber, by which meanes he could not go on in the building the two great men of War that have so long lain upon the Stocks, in a great fury opened the Sluces, and let in the Sea to Bergue St. Winox, and at the same time sent out Men with boates for Timber, and such materials they could find fit for their service. In revenge of which, the Governor of Bergue opened his Sluces, and almost drowned Bourbourg, where the French Garrison are grown very rude and insolent, plundering, and killing the Inhabitants.

Harwich, March 29. The Mermayd, commanded by Captain Watson, gave Chase to a Dunkirk sloop, and took her, being a Vessel of four Guns, and the same that formerly took the Honora, and one or two Vessels more on this Coast.

Downes, March 29. The last night came in the Fountain, who took a French Prize laden with Wine, and the Colchester who took up a French Fisher-boate.

Whitehal, March 31. By Letters from Cadix of the fifth Instant, we have advice, that Sir Jeremy Smith with his squadron, and two French Vessels which are to be Men of War, rides before Tangier.

Barwick, March 25. On Monday last a Privateer belonging to a Scottish Lord, and some Merchants of Edenburgh, brought into Leith Road five prizes, which were taken off the Holland Coasts, one of them had in her thirty thousand Ducroons, and other rich Merchandizes; the other being Vessels of considerable value.
