From Thursday, April 5. to Monday, April 9. 1666.

Plymouth, April 3.

Here are arrived the Garland and Success Fregats: there are in this Port, six more of his Majesties Fregats, viz. The Elizabeth, Adventure, Sorlings, Richmond, Nightingale, and the Milford, which last hath brought in two ships, that are supposed will prove Prize.

Portsmouth, April 5. Sir William Berkley in the Swiftsure sayled with five or six Fregats on Monday last for the Downs, intending to joyn with the Fleet.

Here is in this Port a Vessel laden with Linnen-cloth from Norlaix, which pretends to be upon Merchants account of London, and to have the security of a Passé from hence.

Middlebourg, April 10. We are using all possible diligence to fit out our part of this years equipage, and here are at present in this Island, and the Meule, 75 men of War, which with those that ly at the Texel and Ulicter, will together make 95, or 96 sayl, but they are in great trouble how to man them, especially since the people begin to be informed of a League between England and Swedelands, which works such fear and consternation, that it is hardly to be imagined how much they are discouraged, and how high the complaints are every where carried. The Marriners and Soldiers have much apprehension of the force of the English ships, and run away in great numbers, insomuch that in one night out of 80 Soldiers and Seamen at Helvoet-fluys, above 25 run away, and indeed carried with them the hearts of all that remained.

Lubeck, March 17. The French give out every where in these parts, that notwithstanding all the coldness and distance with which the Swedes look upon their concern in this War with England, and the Bishop of Munster, yet they know well enough how to warm them, and doubt not when they have a mind to call for it, by a round return of French Crowns, to have what Declaration they please from that Regency: And yet we find the Swedes goe on their own way, to precaution themselves against the preparations of the Dane, by making ready their whole Fleet, doubling their Garrisons in Schonen, dispatching a smart message to Copenhagen, and an Expres parted the 14 instant to England, to prepare matters for the arrival of their two Ambassadors there, who are to set out in few daies from Stockholme, towards Gottenburgh, the place of their Imbarcation.

Stockholme, March 14. An Expres was sent this day for England, as a forerunner of the Ambassadors, who are suddenly to follow; in the mean time we are hastning out into the Sound, with a considerable Fleet, and we have declared to all publique Ministers, our resolution to stand firm to our last League with England, having lately printed an Extract of it, as far as concerns Commerce, that our people may not offend against it: We have great jealousy here upon the Treaty the King of Denmarke has concluded with Holland, upon which Monsieur Steno Bick is to goe suddenly for Copenhagen to signify to that Court, that we shall in no manner suffer the Sound to be shut up at pleasure, especially against the English our Allyes: and we have ordered 1000 men to be added as a recruit, and reinforcement of our Garrisons in Schonen, and for the better ordering this affaire, there is a Dyert appointed upon the first of May, to take a full resolution concerning it. The conclusion of Brandenburgh with Holland gives no small discontent to this Court.

Hamburgh, March 24. Since the account the Swedes have had of the Transactions between the French, Hollander, and Danes, they are making great preparations both for Sea and Land; and we are told that the Danish Resident in a studied Speech, giving the Queen & Regents of that Kingdom an account of his Masters intentions in that League, for the security of the Sound, with the provocations he pretended from England, which forced him to revenge; and concluding with an offer to the Crown of Swedeland, to be included if they pleased in the same Alliances; he was presently told, that being unacquainted with the passages and occasions of the differences risen between them and England, they must at present suspend their Judgements and Resolutions as to that Alliance; but, that by what yet appeared to them, the procedure of his Master seemed so fowle and dishonorable that they knew not how any Prince for the future could treat with him; promising however, to send their Resolutions by an Expres, which, by Letters arrived yesterday, we are told, is sent by the Lord Bielke a Senator, with absolute order to warn the King of Denmark, to desist from any extraordinary preparations, and to leave the Sound free, least the Crown of Sweden be obliged to open it by force.

Just now is certain news come to us, that several Holland men of War are come into the River Elve, and that two of them are sayled as far as Gluckstadt, within two Leagues of that place, where the English Fleet of Merchants ride: but there lyes by them a Swedes Fregat, who owns them under the protection of their General Wrangle now at Stoadt, who has promised to secure them, and commanded the Man of War to sink by them, rather then to see them affronted. Nor are the English Merchants only secured by the Swedes in the Elve, but at Schonen and all other parts, wheresoever they have occasion to require it.

Hanibal Sebestedt is said to be called back from France by the Dutch solicitations, since Van Beningen hath wrote that he doth nothing in Paris, but embroyl all the Dutch affaires there.

Mayence, April 4. The Count de Coningsmark who is to goe Ambassador from the King of Sweden into France, arrived the second instant at Frankfort, and is suddenly expected here, from whence he is designed to Heydelberg, and so to the Duke of Wirtemberg at Stutgardt.

An Advertisement from the Hearth-Office in London.

THe Farmers of His Majesties Revenue of the Hearth-Duty, intending to Sub-Farm several Counties and places of this Kingdom, Have thought fit hereby to give notice, That on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, in every week, they will be ready at the Chief Hearth-Office in London, to receive all such Proposals as shall be made to them on that behalf: And they desire all persons who shall present any such Proposal, that they will themselves sign the same, and therein insert the places of their Residence. And that where they propose for several Counties or places, they will particularly distinguish what sum they intend for each place or County apart.

And all Persons who are concerned, either in the receiving or paying the half years duty, from Michaelmas unto Lady-day last, are to take notice that the said half years duty is to be collected by Officers to be appointed by the said Farmers, and that they ought to pay the same to no other hand.

By appointment of the said Farmers,
S A M: H A R T L I B, Secretary.

Danzick, March 27. The Polish Dyet began at Warsaw, the 17 of this Month, which was spent in controversy between the Deputies of Little Poland, and Lithuania.
T

Speaker of the Lower House should be elected out of their Colleagues, because at the last Dyet he was chosen out of those of Little Poland: to which was answered, that since that Dyet was broken up without effecting any thing, it was not to be taken notice of, and consequently the Election to be amongst them; upon which the other dissentied their Plea, and it was agreed the Speaker should be chosen out of little Poland.

On the 18th, it was propounded that when the Speaker shall be nominated, he should take an Oath, not to move any thing in the House, which may be prejudicial to the publique, but this being judged as an Innovation was rejected, yet they concluded he should promise upon his Honor, to do nothing contrary to their Votes: After this, they fell upon debate, what things their Speaker should desire of his Majesty, (it being their Custom as soon as he is chosen, to go together with the Members to kiss his Majesties hand, and propound their desires) upon which, they concluded upon these three points,

1. That His Majesty would please to put an end to this present Domestique War.

2. That he would ungarriſon those Townes and places which he has of late fortified and manned.

3. That Lubomirski may be restored to his Majesties Grace and Favor: till these things were granted, they would not debate any other matter. On the 20th, they were to choose their Speaker, and make their address to the King.

Hague, April 9. Upon the Spanish Ambassadors Memorial, for a Licence to transport One hundred thousand pound of Sak-Peter, the Admiralty of Amsterdam have made report, that the commodity grows very scarce of late, that the two East-India's ships now arrived from Norway, have brought in but Nine hundred thousand pounds weight in all; and that they fear they shall not have wherewithal to furnish their own necessities; so as the Ambassador is like to be denied in the request.

Upon that of the French Ambassador, for a permission to hire four or five Ships to send for Iron Ordnance, Masts, and other Naval Provisions from Swede for his Masters use; it is reported by the same Admiralty, That for ships they could willingly agree to it, but they fear to spare so many Seamen as would be requisite to sail them; and so have put him off, at least, as to the hiring them at Amsterdam.

The Swedes having made a new Proposition to Bremen, that they renounce all Immediety or sole Dependence save on the Emperor, and own themselves Subjects to the King of Swede, as Duke of Bremen, and succeeding by the Peace of Munster, to all the Rights of the late Archbishops of that See; The Deputies of that Town returned again to Stade on the third instant with further Instructions upon that Point, which are not certainly known what they are.

The Zealand Deputies have again called upon the other Provinces, to declare themselves upon their Proposition of the second of Aprill, for the disposition of Military charges; but as yet they have not received the resolution of their principals in the point.

The Sieur Beverning in his last Letter of the fifth instant, seems to have but small hopes of a Peace, and therefore asks leave to return home. In the mean time, this day is appointed for the general Muster of the Brandenburgh forces. Col. Hærſolt tells us, those of Lunenburgh grow very clamorous for want of pay, which is therefore expressly given in charge by the States General, to the Treasurer, to see provided for out of hand.

This morning a strong report runs in the Town of a Peace with the Bishop: The truth is, Beverning in his Letter of the seventh instant tells us, The Mediators seem much more sincere in their endeavors for it, than hitherto; and that they call upon him for his Answer and Resolution upon the scruples last moved, which it is resolved shall accordingly be sent him, though those of Gueldre alledge, they want order in this point from their principals.

But we doubt the issue of all, when we see the Bishop so busie in his Recruits, towards which, we finde he hath touch'd 100000 Rixdollars of the King of England. Money at Answer. And we cannot after all, but be jealous of the Swede, who commands the Elbe and the Weser. And there is a report, that some of his Troops are already near the Bishop, intomuch, that we are thinking of re-inforcing our strength in East-Friesland, for the better security of the Embs, and the entrance on that side; which we foresee will be very uneasy to the States of that Country, who have at present a demand depending here, for the being freed from those of ours, and the Lunenburgh Troops which are already in quarters there.

Hitherto, though with infinite difficulty, we endeavor to comply with our vast payments to Denmark, Brandenburgh, and Lunenburgh, but every body sees it cannot hold, the onely credit subsisting is that of Holland, and yet that begins to faile. Our next supply is to be from France, which how high soever their Ambassador here makes his Matters Treasure to sound, we suspect is not so abounding in money, by the lean pay they give their Troops here, and the extravagant and licentious life, they are therefore obliged to suffer them to lead among us.

The business of the Prince of Orange hath slept for some days, the other Provinces using that of Holland tenderly in that point; for the great use they finde they must have of the Parte and Credit of that Province in this necessitous state of things.

Dublin, March 30. The House of Commons out of a Loyal zeal to his Majesty and his service, yesterday agreed upon a Bill to be transmitted by his Grace the Duke of Ormond, for the granting of their inire Subsidies by the Temporality, to be paid quarterly from June next, at four several payments; the four formerly given them declared to be for paying the Army, and discharging the publique Debts of the Kingdom, but this to be employed most especially for the Honor of His Majesty, and for putting the Nation in a posture and readines to defend themselves upon all occasions of disturbance from abroad or at home.

Bristol, April 4. On Saturday last several Fishermen with their little boates, waiting in the River for Salmors, saw a very great fish in the water, which they found too strong for their Nets, and therefore rowing on the outside of him, with their boates drove him into a shoale, where they killed him, which proved a Surgeon of eight foot and three Inches long, the first that in our memory has bin seen in these waters.

Newcastle, April 3. On Saturday last came into this Harbor, 16 Sloop of Coasters, most of them large ships, with a Convey, who steered Northwards. We finde by them, our Coasts are clear of any Enemy.

Southwold, April 4. The Paradox Fleet put in his Boat hither, who confirms the taking of a shallop by the Roe Ketch, betwixt Harwich and Albrow. The Feremiah Hoy came in hither about the 3^d instant; whilst he lay at Anchor, a shallop appeared off at Sea, which began to stand right in with the Bay, but the Hoy putting out his Colours, and firing a gun, he stood off again, but being a wrong tide, the Hoy could not chase her to any purpose. The fourth instant the Blackmore Pinck stood in towards the Bay, but passed to the Southward.

Whitehal, April 6. His Majesty taking into his Princely consideration the hazardous consequences, and perils which may ensue, by the extraordinary resort of people to the Houses of Parliament, should they assemble at the time prefixed; by which occasion, the late Contagion, (now by Gods mercy almost totally abated) may be again increased. As likewise, for other weighty considerations, was this day pleased by advice of his Privy Council, to order a Proclamation to be issued for the Proroguing the Parliament, from the 23 of this instant April to the 18 of September next ensuing.

Downs, April 7. This day the Mermaid, Captain Watson Commander, who went to Convey the Earl of St. Albans into France, in his way coming for England, met with a French ship laden with Wines, and hath brought her in hither as Prize.

Harwich, April 7. On Thursday last came to this Harbours mouth the Paradox, and sent in a French sloop, which he had taken upon the Coast, in which were 25 Men, who are sent Prisoners to Ipswich.
