St. James's, December 22. This Day his Grace the Duke of Somerfet, Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, presented to Her Majesty from that University a Book of Verses upon the mournful Occasion of the Death of his Royal Highness. Which Instance of the Aff Ction of that learned Body Her Majesty received very graciously.

To the QUEEN's most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Protestant Dissenting Ministers of the feveral Denominations in and about the City of London; presented to Her Majesty by Mr. Matthew Clarke, and introduced by the Right Honourable the Earl of Sunderland.

May it please Your Majesty, May it please tour interestry.

A swe can't but be fensibly touched with whatever nearly concerns your Sacred Majesty, we humbly ask Leave to Condole the Loss of that illustrious Prince, whose conjugal Fidelity and Affection to your Royal l'erson, and Steadiness to the Protestant Interest, in Times of the greatest Dinger, were so Eminent and Exemplary.

These, together with his other Personal Virtues, did not fail to recommend him to the highest Posts of Honour and Trust; while his stated Communion was an Evidence of the Tenderness of his Conscience in Matters of Religion.

We are a failly a days the Divine Promisence that the all-

We gratefully a lore the Divine Providence, that, to alleviate your Majesty's Grief on this Occasion, has blessed the Consederate Arms with a continued Train of Successes, both

While all the World admires the Conduct of those Great Generals, and the Courage of those brave Troops, that so often defeat unequal Numbers of the Enemy; we can't but take Notice how much your Majesty's Piety, the Moderation of your Government, and your constant Care to maintain the Glorious Cause of Liberty, have been attended with the favourable Protection of Heaven, and make your Life and Reign no less the Desire and Delight of your People, than they are the Envy and Terror of your Enemies.

Which Addresses Her Majesty received very graciously.

From the Camp before Ghent, December 27. N. S. The Disposition being made for opening the Trenches at General Lottum's Attack, between the Schelde and the Lys, the Attack was made on the 24th Instant, about Eight at Night, by Lieutenant-General Fagel, with Maj r-General Weeke, the Lord North and Grey, Brigadier, and 2000 Workmen, covered by seven Battalions, two more in referve, and 600 The Night being very light, the E-Horfe. nemy's Centinels foon discovered our Men; but before they could get their Troops together, ours were so well covered, that notwithstanding the great Fire from the Town, both of Cannon and small Shot, we had very few killed, and not above 60, including Officers and private Men, flightly wounded; among the wounded was Colonel Gorfuch, who commanded the Foot-Guards. We carried on our Trenches from the Gate of St. Peter towards Fort Monterey, and finished a Parallel of 1000 Paces from the Right to the Left, within 200 Paces of the Counterfearp. The 25th the Trenches were opened at the Duke of Wirtemberg's Attack before the Citadel, by 1400 Workmen, covered by four Battalions and 600 Horse commanded by Major-General Murray and Brigadier Borch; between fix and seven at Night we began to trace the Lines, and before eight the Enemy began to fire both great and fmall Shot, and continued their Fire 'till one in the Morning; notwithstanding which we finithed a Parallel of 750 Paces, within 150 Paces of the Palifadoes, and made a very good Communication, and had only to Men killed and wounded. The fame Night we broke Ground at a third Attack, before the Brussels Gate, between the Upper and Lower Schelde, ar which Brigadier Evans commanded with 600 Workmen and four Battalions; they carried on the Trenches near 700 Paces, and made a Communication without any Los; but the
