HONOURS AND AWARDS

HOME OFFICE

Whitehall,
London S.W.1.
17th June 1976.

The QUEEN has been pleased to award The Queen's Police Medal for Gallantry to the late Constable Stephen Andrew Tibble of the Metropolitan Police in recognition of his gallantry in the following circumstances:

On 26th February 1975 a police officer engaged on plain clothes observation duty saw a man acting suspiciously. He stopped him for questioning. While he was being questioned the suspect suddenly ran off and the officer gave chase, at the same time calling for assistance over his radio. As the suspect was pursued he was seen by a witness to take what appeared to be a gun out of his pocket. Two other plain clothes officers joined in the chase. At the same time Constable Tibble, who was off duty in plain clothes, gave chase on his motorcycle. He overtook the suspect, got off the motorcycle and faced the man attempting to arrest him. As Constable Tibble approached, the man shot him three times at a range of about six feet. Constable Tibble fell to the ground mortally wounded.
