London, June 19.

THis day Dr. Creighton, Bishop of Bath and Wells was solemnly consecrated at Lambeth with the usual Ceremonies, at which assisted the Bishop of London in the place of his Grace the Arch-bishop of Canterbury, not yet fully recovered from his late distemper, with the Bishops of Winchester and Ely, where an excellent Sermon was preached on the occasion, by Dr. Hill, Chaplain to his Grace the Duke of Ormond; after which, the Bishops, several of the Nobility, and many persons of Quality were entertained at a plentiful dinner.

Legorn, June 9. The 4th instant arrived here the Dutch Convoy of two men of war and five Merchant ships, and the same day the Olive branch richly laden from Smirna, leaving behind several Holland ships, one English ship, and one French ship, lading for several parts of Christendom. They write from Smirna, that the Viceroy intending suddenly to leave Candia had since February last laid an Embargo upon all vessels, which he had pressed to attend him.

This week arrived also the Owen and David, and five other English ships from Puglia laden with Oyls and bound for England, and may in 8 or 10 days depart hence under Convoy of the Fersey and Centurion Frigats. The Dutch Convoy may follow in 15 days for Holland.

The Lady of Loretto, a French ship arriving in 25 days from Alexandria, came thence in company with two ships of Messina homewards bound, one Polack, and one Bark for Marseilles, from whose company she was separated about 11 days before her arrival here. She left in the Port of Alexandria the Conception lading for this place with several other ships bound for Candia, Marseilles, Venice, Majorca, and six Turks bound for Barbary. Three days before her departure sailed thence eight ships and two Saichs bound for Constantinople, and the 26th past, on her return hither off Fauigliana she met with Seven Malta Gallies, and the next day with the Great Dukes Squadron, which had not then met with any considerable adventure.

Genoa, June 11. Here is lately put in here a Bark, having on board 5 Italian slaves, which about three months before made their escape from Argier, and have since been wandering up and down the sea with various fortune.

Here are lately arrived three French ships from Lisbon laden with Sugar and Tobacco, and two Dutch men of war from the Levants homewards bound; here are also in Port the Return and the Conclusion, both of them English ships bound for Zant.

The Duke of this Republick has been lately much indisposed, but is now upon recovery.

The 9th instant according to custom, election was made by Lots of three Senators, viz. Gio Baptista Zaogli, Carlo Pallavicino, and Gio Giacomo Monja, who are to succeed as Governours, and of two others, viz. Marco Antonio Salsi, and Hieronimo Rodino to be Procurators of this Republick.

Our Convoy is safely arrived at Cadix, where the Gallions are suddenly expected.

From Milan they tell us, that the Duke d' Osuna the new Governour continues to receive the Visits and Compliments of all persons of the most eminent quality. He is very intent upon the advance of the publick interest, endeavouring to ingratiate himself with the people by easing them from their payments; he has since his entry upon the Government confirmed all the Orders and Edicts of the Governours his Predecessors, especially those in which the state of the Church was any ways concerned.

The 25th past being the Dukes birth-day, the Officers of the Army, Ministers of State, and publick Officers appeared at the Court richly habited to compliment their Governour, as did also the Nobility and Ladies.

From Turin we are told, that the Duke of Savoy was gone to divert himself for some time at Venaria and Rivoli, and that he had named Signior Bigliore for his Ambassador Extraordinary to the Court of Rome, for which he was making preparation.

Dantzic, June 11. The 6th instant arrived here the Bishop of Culme the Vice-Chancellor of Poland, and with the usual solemnity received the Homage and Oath of Fidelity from this City, as he had done the 4th instant from the Magistrates of the City of Thoren; he was treated and entertained here with much civility upon the publick account, this people giving many testimonies of their satisfaction, and proclaiming it with the noise of their Cannon. The Vice Chancellor intended to be at Warsaw the 16th instant, and accordingly went hence to Elbing, where he is also to take the Homage of that place. The Provincial Diet of Prussia is broken up without any resolution, several of the principal persons who should have been concerned in the Assembly being absent so that they expect the Kings Letters to empower them to meet again.

Many of the other smaller Assemblies in the several Provinces and Palatinates have concluded it necessary to summon the Arriereban or publick Assembly in the field in Arms, protesting with much zeal against the French faction, and against such persons as have combined against the present Government; whereupon his Majesty has thought fit to dispatch his Circulatory and Universal Letters to all the Nobles, to acquaint them with the sense of the Dietines, and the necessity which obliges him to summon them to this publick Assembly for the preservation of the publick peace and safety of the Kingdom; giving them account also of the present state of affairs, and particularly, that the Bassa of Silistria had seized at Bialogrod a person of Karnowsky, his Envoy to the Cham of Tartary, that he was not assured of the intention of the Cossacks they having not yet sent their Deputies to Treat; that there was an eminent necessity of paying and recruiting the Army; that the posture of the Turks, Tartars, and others of their neighbors made it necessary to enter into some strict alliance with some potent Princes their neighbors; nor was the danger threatened from within the bowels of the kingdom to be despised, many Letters in Cypher being lately intercepted, written by several persons ill affected: His Majesty desiring that these Letters might take place as a double summons, and that they would prepare to meet in a warlike posture at such a place of Rendezvous as should in little time be appointed them by their 3d and last summons, where he promised to be personally present and ready to hazard his life for the good of his Countrey.

Venice June 14. By the way of Zant and other places we are informed, that the Grand Visier had fully resolved some time this Month of June to leave Candia, to meet the Grand Segi for his Master, and to attend him to Constantinople, who is in the mean while diverting himself in hunting and other diversilements, in which he employes near 30 thousand persons, which ar
