EXPLANATORY NOTE

Regulation 9 (2) of the Child Benefit (General) Regulations 1976 provides an easement to the general exclusion which prevents child benefit being paid if a claimant is exempt from UK income tax. The easement applies where the amount of tax-exempt income is less than the amount of income subject to U.K. taxation. At present a very small number of families receive benefit by virtue of the easement which has proved difficult to administer. It is proposed to revoke Regulation 9 (2) so that persons receiving tax-exempt income shall not be entitled to child benefit.

However, it is not proposed to remove benefit from those who are currently receiving it. Anyone to whom child benefit was payable for any week before the regulations come into effect shall remain entitled for the child or children concerned regardless of the tax position of the claimant at that time or in the future.

14th November 1983.
