D. Lyon, Borough Secretary and Solicitor

Beech Hurst, Weyhill Road,
Andover, Hampshire.

SCHEDULE

Grateley

The village of Grateley is situated on chalk downland on the western edge of Hampshire. The settlement clusters around the junction of the High Street and Wallop Road and consists of a number of timber framed and flint and brick cottages, together with

St. Leonard's Church, the Primary School, Grateley House and the Plough Inn.

The boundary of the Conservation Area is drawn tightly around the historic core of the settlement, but on the south side extends across important open areas to the railway line.

Houghton

Houghton is situated two miles south-west of Stockbridge in the central part of the borough. The designated area is centred on the main village street and Bossington House, and includes part of the flood plain of the River Test to the east. It is an elongated area, extending from Bossington Park in the south, northwards about one and half miles to Houghton Lodge. The dispersed settlement pattern of historic cottages is interspersed with trees and open spaces, with important views eastwards across the valley of the Test.

Quarley

The hamlet of Quarley is also situated on chalk downland on the Hampshire/Wiltshire border. It is a scattered linear settlement of timber framed and flint/brick cottages, many of which are thatched. St. Michael's Church and The Old Rectory are at the centre of the area, just to the south of Quarley Park. The boundary of the Conservation Area includes all the historic buildings and extends from Lains Farm in the north, to Corner Cottage in the south, together with Park Lane.

West Dean

The village straddles the Hampshire/Wiltshire border and clusters around the point where the Salisbury road crosses the River Dun. The boundary is drawn around the core of the village, including a variety of historic buildings with trees and open spaces. It extends from the Castle Mound in the north, to Tower House in the south, and east to west from Railway Cottages to Church Farm.

West Tytherley

The village of West Tytherley is situated in a rural area of mixed arable, grazing and woodland in the western part of the borough. The Conservation Area centres upon the junction of Dean Road, North Lane and the Coach Road, together with open areas to the east and south which are important to its setting. There is a range of building types and ages from the 14th century onwards, mostly of timber framed or brick construction. Of particular note are Church Farm, St. Peters Church, the Black Horse Inn and the Old Rectory. Hedgerows form important links between the groups of buildings.
