From Thursday, January 19. to Monday January 23. 1670.

Winchestr, Jan. 17.

THe 8th instant a small vessel called the Arroy of this place, John Dander Master, laden with Wooll and Trains from Cork in Ireland, and bound for this Port, was by foul weather forced upon the Rocks in Freshwater Bay near Milford; and there stayed in pieces, the men were all saved and most of the Riggings put, the Goods all lost. Here is arrived the Nepunc of London, Pilot Don Maltes, from Guiny.

Portsmouth, Jan. 19. On Tuesday last came into this Port the White Unicorn of Amsterdam, laden with Hides and Tobacco from the West Indies, having suffered much damage by the late bad weather, great part of her Stern being broken in pieces, and the whole ship so torn, that with much difficulty they got into this Harbour to repair and fit her for sea again; the Master says that the French have several men of war in those parts, and that they have lately lost two great ships there, the one of 60 the other of 40 pieces of Ordnance, having been quite eaten up by the Norms.

Rome, Dec. 27. Here is daily expected Don Pedro d' Arragon, in Quality of Ambassador of Obedience from Spain, with a Train of 50 domestick servants, besides 14 Gentlemen of Naples, each of them having 14 servants in his Excellencies Liverry, he will be received here with great honour and respect, not only as Ambassador from the Crown of Spain, but as Vice Roy of Naples. The Pope hath at last resolved to make a nomination of such persons as he will have succeed in the vacant Bishopricks in Portugal; and hath left three to be disposed of by this Crown, viz. those in the Indies, of which the Kings of Portugal are the Patrons, as for the other Nine now vacant in Portugal, he will bestow them himself, yet with regard to such as that Crown shall recommend. The Cardinal Ginatti continues very ill, little hopes being left of his recovery.

The 23 instant the Ambassador from the Duke of Savoy had his last Audience of the Pope, intending to have gone hence in a day or two in order to his return home, but it is said that upon the death of that Dukes Resident here, he hath altered his resolution and may remain here till farther Order. Here is lately dead Don Gib. de Cordeua, a possessor of a vast Estate, having left his Heir Signor Brennand to the dissatisfaction of all his Friends and Relations, who when living, employed all their endeavors to dissuade him from it, and when dead, would have made away with the Will, but that the said Brennand took care to prevent them.

The Spanish Cardinals have lately had a conference with the Spanish Ambassadors concerning the rank which the Constable of Castile pretends to at the reception of Don Philip as Ambassador on the Spanish Ambassador, but being not able to come then to any conclusion, they appointed to meet the Monday following on the same purpose. The Queen of Sweden is now perfectly recovered of her late distemper, having since had several conferences with the Pope, upon what subject is not known.

Paris, Jan. 24. The King and the whole Court have been these three or four days at Vincennes, diverting themselves with Dancing, Hunting, Comedies, and the other usual entertainments of the season, prepared by the Kings Command, with extraordinary splendor and magnificence. This night the King is expected back here, where the Grand Ballet is to be danced over again. The fellow that committed the late villainous attempt upon the Princess of Conde, its said will be condemned to be broken on the wheel, or at least to spend the rest of his days in the Gallies. We have advice here that the French have taken several Holland Barques which were Trading off their Islands in the West-Indies; and that the Hollanders have likewise seized on a French ship in those parts by way of Retriphal. The King is dispatching Monsieur de Senjus formerly Secretary to the Queen of Portugal, to the Kings of Sweden and Denmark, to negotiate concerning matters of Trade, upon the interruption of Commerce with Holland, and it is said he may suddenly depart on his journey thither. The King as the intercession of the Kings of England and Sweden, hath consented to a farther prolongation of the time, or assigned for the arbitrating the differences between the Crowns of France and Spain, concerning the dependancies of Liny, Conde, &c. for the term of one year more.

From Danzick, Jan. 14. From Warsaw we have advised that the Great Marshal and under Marshal Demetrius Wisnowitsky, were daily expected there, to consult with the King about the means of reducing the Cossacks in the Ukrain, under the obedience of this Crown, but that having lately heard of the dispo-
