

Feuillade. The two legitimated Princes have presented a Petition to the King, in which they remonstrate, that as to the Honours conferred on them by the several Edicts and Declarations, they hold them as Favours issuing from the Will of the late King, the Sovereign Dispenser of Titles and Ranks and of all the Distinctions which are in the Kingdom. As to the Succession to the Crown, they alledge that 'tis the peculiar Concern and Interest of the Nation it self only; that no one has a Right to speak in its Name, nor can the Nation deliberate on its Interest, but when 'tis lawfully assembled; and therefore they insist, that as well what relates to their Honours and Ranks, as to the Succession, may remain as it now stands, till the King attains to his Majority; but if his Majesty thinks fit to have it decided during his Minority, they desire him not to pronounce upon the Question of the Succession to the Crown, before the States General of the Kingdom, lawfully assembled, have deliberated whether it be convenient and advantageous for the Nation to have the late King's Edict relating to that Succession annulled. Yesterday in the Afternoon, four of the Bishops who are against accepting the Pope's Constitution or Bull Unigenitus, viz. those of Mirepoix, Sens, Bologne, and Montpellier, went to the Sorbonne, and gave in a Protestation against any thing which may happen to be determined there with respect to the said Constitution, contrary to the Privileges of the Gallican Church, disowning the Pope's Authority in that Matter, and appealing to the first General Council that shall be assembled. The Appeal was received by the greatest Part of the Doctors, but some protested against it.

St. James's, March 1. This being the Birthday of Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, there was a very numerous and splendid Appearance at Court of the Nobility and other Persons of Distinction; and at Night there was a Ball.
