Malaga, April 7.

THe winds have been of late very high and violent in all these parts, not without doing much harm, especially on the Coast of Barbary, where, as we are told, some Vessels going to the Spanish Garrisons have been lost; and amongst others, several Ships belonging to Argiers: but this is so uncertainly reported, that we cannot give as yet any great credit to it.

Yesterday arrived here the Guernsey, and another English Fregat, with 25 sail of Merchant men under their Convoy, and intend in two or threedays to sayl in pursuance of their voyages.

Rome, April 11. On Sunday last his Holiness attended by several Cardinals and other persons of quality of the Court, went from his Palace of Monrecauallo to the Church of Minerva, being followed by all his Guards and others of his Household, where he assisted at all the publick Offices of the day. The next day his Holiness was pleased himself to perform in his private Chappel, the ceremony of Marriage between the duke of Gravina Orsino and the Lady Ludovica Altieri, in the presence of several Cardinals and other persons of the greatest quality, allied to those two noble Families: after which they were all entertained at a most splendid dinner, by the Cardinal Altieri in his own apartment in the Palace; the said Duke hath been since to visit the Queen of Sweden, who received him with all the marks of esteem and respect, due to the quality of the Popes Nephew, a title which his Holiness in favor of this Marriage hath been pleased to confer upon him.

The 8th instant the Abbot of Bourlemont, present Agent for his most Christian Majesty in this Court, had Audience of the Pope, when he delivered him fresh Letters from that King, in which he very warmly presses his Holiness to bestow the vacant Cardinals cap; on the Bishop of Laon, for whom that King hath long desired it.

To morrow will be celebrated with great Pomp and Magnificence the Cannonisation of the five new Saints, in order to which the Pope goes and lodges this night at St. Peters.

Vienna, April 12. The Procefs of the Count Nadasti, accused of Treasonable practices against the present Government, is finally finished, and in few days they will accordingly proceed to give sentence against him; by which, those that pretend to know most of that affair, report, he will be condemned to die, and to have his Estate confiscated to the Emperor, but his friends and relations hope better; or at the worst, that their intreaties and sollicitations will so far prevail wjth his Imperial Majesty, as to reprieve him from death; in the mean time they are likewise framing a Procefs against the Counts, Serini, Franchipani and others concerned in that Rebellion, though it is said, that the Prince Ragotsky hath sent to sollicite their pardons of the Emperor.

From Presburg they write, that upon the Count de Rothals having caused the Emperors late Declaration to be every where published; several of the Hungarian Nobility had declared a great inclination to submit themselves to the Emperors commands, in what concerns their immediate appearing before the Commissioners there.

His Imperial Majesty is gone to divert himself for some days at Laxemburgh; before his departure he was pleased to bestow the charge of General of Waradin on Prince Charles of Lorraine.

From Cassovia, we have advice of some dispute which hath lately happened, between the Garrison and those Inhabitants, by reason that the latter refused to furnish them with provisions, of which it seems they were in great want; in which they would have proceeded so far as at last to come to blows, but that the Authority of some persons of quality appeased their fury, and at length composed the whole matter. From the Port some Letters speak of the death of the grand Vizier, but this we know not how to credit without farther confirmation.

Lisbon, March 30. The Popes Nuncio who hath been so long expected here from Rome is not yet arrived; but in the mean time we have received the Bulls for the confirmation of seven new Bishops, viz. the Archbishop of Lisbon, Antonio de Mendoza; the Bishop of Conimbra Don Manoel de Naronha; the Bishop of Aguarda, Alvaro de Sant. Bonaventura; the Bishop of Liria, Pedro Vicira de Sylva; the Archbishop of Goa, Christoval de Sylveira; the Bishop of Brazile, Don Estevan Carneiro; and the titular Bishop of Martyria, Luis de Sousa, chief Chaplain to the Prince-Regent.

Our Brazile Fleet which some time since was by bad weather forced back into port, not without some dammage in their Masts and Rigging, may in a very short time be ready to sayl again, though it is by some reported, that they will be obliged to stay for the Archbishop of Goa and the Bishop of Brazile, in order to their transportation to their respective Sees, but, we hope the contrary, fearing they might by so long a stay, lose their voyages.

Madrid, April 15. Some days since the Marquis of Aytona, Son and Heir to the late Marquis of that Title, was married to the onely daughter of the Conde de Medellin, President of the Consejo de Ordenes.

Upon the news we had from Flanders of the death of Don Antonio Pimentelli late Governor of Antwerp, several Candidates have appeared for that employment, which being of principal Trust; and one of the most important in all those Countries, her Majesty thinks fit to proceed more maturely in that choice, and hath not as yet declared her pleasure in the matter.

What was formerly said of the Marquis de Montroys being nominated by the Queen Regent to the Government of Cadix, some time since, proves to be a mistake, her Majesty having thought fit to dispose of that Government to Don Diego Cavallero, at present Vice-roy of Navarre. The Constable of Castile having been some time since privately married to the Dutcheff of Cardona, without the knowledge of many of his Friends and Relations, is intending to make them amends, for what according to the custom he should have done upon his wedding day, with a most magnificent and sumptuous Treat, and other divertisements of all kinds, kinds, which heis with great cost preparing to entertain them suddenly with.

The Archbishop de Thoulouse, Ambassador extraordinary from his most Christian Majesty in this Court, speaks of returning very speedily home, but yet not till such time as his successor arrive here, or at least within the Territories of this Crown. The Conde de Molina at present Ambassador from hence in the Court of England, being ordered to pass over into France, to reside there in the same quality, her Majesty hath lately nominated the Marquis de Frésne; Brother in law to the Conde de Penaranda and Nephew to the Constable of Castile, to succeed him as Ambassador extraordinary there.

Dantzick, April 18. From Warsaw our last Letters tell us, that their Majesties were gone to divert themselves for some days to a house of pleasure, they have within three miles of this place: That the Sieur Opasky, who was lately sent by his Majesty in quality of his Envoy to the Elector of Brandenburgh, being some time since returned from thence, is to go very speedily in the same quality to Sweden, and as is thought may reside there for some time: That they are much alarmed by some Letters lately received from the Ukrain, in which they are told, of the approach of the Turks and Tartars towards those parts; that the former have made a Bridg over the River Danube, to serve upon any occasion for passage to their Forces, which causes great fears and apprehensions amongst us: That they have certain advice of another incursion of the Tartars, notwithstanding all the endeavors of our Generals to prevent the same; who besides the other damages they have done, carried away near 4000 Inhabitants captives: That the Commissioners assembled by order of the King and Senate at Radon to adjust the pretensions of the Army, have not as yet been able to conclude any thing therein.

From Moscow we have not any late news, so that we know not what to judg of the affairs of those Countries, which the general report speaks to be still in an unquiet and disturbed condition.

Paris, April 28. The Ambassador who hath some time resided in this Court on the part of the Republick of Venice, having before his Majesties departure for Flanders, been with the usual Ceremonies conducted to take his leave of him in order to his return home, his Majesty was then pleased to give him the Cross, which he is to wear as Knight of Malta, of the order of St. Lazarus of Jerusalem, an honour this King hath as well in consideration of his own worth, as to express the particular esteem he hath for that antient and illustrious Family of Morosini, of which he is, been pleased to confer upon him; besides some other rich presents the King hath bestowed upon him.

The King having disposed of the Government of Languedoc, to the Count de Lauzun, hath since permitted him to quit his command of Captain of the Guards of his body, to the Count de Nogent his Brother in Law, at present Gentleman of the Wardrobe, which place the King hath since given to the Chevalier de Lauzun Brother to the said Count.

We are told of an unhappy accident that happened at Chantilly, at their Majesties being there with the Court, it seems the Prince de Conde's Mestre d'Hôtel, because that great entertainment was not served up, and performed with that order and exactness as he desired, out of trouble retired privately to his Chamber, and there miserably killed himself.

The Marschal de La Ferte is at present dangerously ill inasmuch that some begin to despair of his recovery.

Hague, April 28. Our Letters from Spain tell us, that they have lately made over to the Count de Monterey Governor of Flanders 100000 Crowns, and that so soon as their West-India Fleet arrive, they will permit another considerable sum to be employed for his most Catholick Majesties Service in those parts; That all hands are at work to repair their severall Fortifications all along the Sea Coast, towards which charge the States of Castile and Arragon have largely contributed.

Brussels, May 1. Our Letters yesterday arrived from Spain, tell us, that Monsieur Beverning Ambassador from the States General of the United Provinces, having met with all the success imaginable in his negotiation there, was accordingly thinking of returning home very suddenly. The 29th past went hence Monsieur de Lowigny, by his Excellencies order for the Hague; and yesterday the Baron d'Issola returned for the same place.

His Excellency intends within few days to go for Bruges, where he will stay during the time his most Christian Majesty is in Flanders; and at the same time Count Marcin will go for Ipre, to see in what condition that place is in; where as is said, they have above 5000 men in Garrison; and for their better security have made severall Sluces, by which they can upon an occasion, put the Countrey thereabouts under water, and so hinder the approach of any enemy. His Excellency hath given order for the marching of severall Troops which were quartered at Louain, Malines, and those other remoter parts, to march towards the Frontiers of Flanders, and to expect there his further directions.

Cologne, April 24. The Landt-Gravinne of Hesse hath lately caused a General Muster to be made of all the forces she hath at present on foot, which are Ten thousand men effective; and some speak as if in these jealous times they intended to increase them by some new supplies. We begin to be at present less apprehensive than formerly of the design of our Neighbours, but yet omit not to stand upon our Guard.

Paris, May 2. The 25th past their most Christian Majesties together with Monsieur, and Madamoiselle d'Orleans, arrived at Liancourt, where they lodged that night at the Castle, and passed the next day in the diversifements of the season; the 27 they went thence, and advanced about 12 miles that day; the 28 they came to Amiens, at the Gates of which place the Duke d'Elbeuf, Lieutenant of that Province, in the head of the Magistrates, presented his Majesty with the Keyes, and so attended him to the Lodging prepared for their Majesties; where being arrived they received the Presents and accustomed Submissions of the Town, as also of the Dean and Chapter: that Night their Majesties supped in publick, and the next day proceeded on their way for Dunkerke. During the stay of the Court at Liancourt, an accident of Fire unfortunately happened in some of the out houses, which before it could be quenched did very considerable damage, having burnt down the greatest part of a large Village joyning to it, besides vast quantities of Corn, and great numbers of Cattel, which were burnt and destroyed, to a considerable value.
