St. James's, November 19.

HIS Grace the Duke of Somerset Chancellour of the University of Cambridge, attended by Dr. Crosse Vice-Chancellour, and a great Number of the Heads and other Doctors and Members of the University, being received by his Grace the Duke of Newcastle Lord Chamberlain, with the usual Ceremonies, had the Honour to present the following most dutiful and most loyal Address, which passed unanimously in Hill Senate.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty, The humble Address of the Chancellour, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

AMIDST the general Joy of your Subjects for your Majesty's safe and happy Arrival in your Kingdoms, we beg Leave to approach your Royal Presence with the most sincere Expressions of our Duty and Affection.

Loyalty and Obedience are justly due from all your Subjects, but they are tied with greater Force and Energy upon us, who are under the additional Obligations of Gratitude.

It is from your Majesty's wife and happy Administration that we in common with others enjoy our Protection and Security, the Benefit of good Laws, and the quiet Possession of our Liberties and Properties; but it is to your Majesty's Royal and unparalleled Bounty, that we particularly owe that noble Provision for the Advancement both of Piety and Learning which your Majesty has graciously bestowed upon this ancient Nursery of them both, and those rare repeated Marks of your Royal Favour which claim our present most grateful Acknowledgments.

To have been the great Assessor of the Liberties of Europe, the chief Protector and Defender of the Protestant Religion in general, and of the Church of England in particular, are the known Titles and Encomiums of our gracious Sovereign; and that your Majesty has likewise been the great Patron of Learning, will add no small Lustre to the Annals of your Reign, and continue your Memory to endless Generations.

Under the Sense of these great Obligations we cannot but humbly assure your Majesty, that we will according to your several Stations and Abilities use our utmost Endeavours to lay such Foundations of Duty and Allegiance in the Minds of the Youth committed to our Care, as may not only exert themselves in occasional Instances, but remain firm and lasting Principles of Loyalty to your Majesty and your Royal Posterity.

That your Majesty's Reign may be long and prosperous; that Almighty God would preserve your sacred Person from all secret Conspiracies, and open Violence; and that the same divine Power and Goodness would avert from your Majesty's Dominions those severe Judgments wherewith he hath visited our neighbouring Nations, are the affectionate and hearty Prayers of your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects.

His Majesty was pleased to receive it in a most gracious Manner, and to give the following Answer:

I Thank you for this Address so full of Expressions of Loyalty and Duty, and the Assurances you give me in it, of instilling such Principles into the Minds of the Youth committed to your Care as tend to the promoting of Religion, and the Preservation of our happy Constitution.
