Paris, March 19. On Sunday last, the 16th Instant in the Afternoon, the Turkish Ambassadour made his Entry in the following Order: First the Officers of the Police followed by the Equipage of the Marquess de Remont, Introducer of Ambassadours, and that of the Marshal d'Etrées with a great Number of Servants and Led-Horses with very rich Houfings. After which came the Regiment of Dragoons of Orleans, followed by about 40 of the King's Grooms with Led-Horses. Then the Ambassadour's Retinue, consisting of about 32 Men of his Guards, 16 of them carrying Masquetoons upon their Shoulders, and as many with Lances, and four of the Ambassadour's Grooms with as many Led-Horses; after which the Ambassadour's Officers, among them his Son. Then came the Ambassadour on Horseback, having on his Right the Marshal d'Etrées, and on his Left his Interpreter, a great Number of the Ambassadour's and of the Marshal's Footmen walking on each Side, and followed by several Troops of the Cornette Blanche of the Regiment of Horse-Grenadiers, and that of the Collonel General; after which came several Coaches of the Kings, the Princes, and Princesses of the Blood, and the whole was closed by a Company of the Marchausée. The King accompanied by the Duke Regent and the Princes and Princesses of the Blood, went to the Hotel de Bouffeurs in the Place Royale to see the Entry. That Ambassadour's Audience is fixed to the 21st Instant, the King's Household and other Troops having received Orders to be in a Readiness for that Solemnity. M. de Machault, Trudaine, and Fagon having been appointed to examine the late Petition of the India Company against its being made acceptable for the Bank Notes, the Marquesses de Bully and de Cartigny, two of the Syndicks of that Company, went to them, to desire them not to accept of that Commission; alledging, that as they have been always Enemies to that Company, the Publick would very much suspect the Justice of their Report; which Step so much displeased the Duke Regent, that on 17th Instant he committed the two Syndicks to the Bastille. Sir Luke Schaub arrived here on the 17th at Night from England, and was Yesterday at Court. It is advised from Provence, that the Plague is remarkably abated at Aix and Tarrascone since the late cold Weather, which has very much purified the Air.
