Naples, October 13.

WHilst we seem secure from all attempts of the Turks, our Governor Don Pedro d'Arragon hath given Orders for removing the Troops, which were in Garrison most of this Summer in the Port-Townes of this Kingdom, to their former Quarters. This week arrived here from Genoua, Dom Rafael de Villasa in order to his taking possession of the place of President of the Royal Chamber here, which the Queen Regent hath been lately pleased to bestow upon him.

Don Pedro d'Arragon is preparing for his returne from this Government, upon whose departure, we may expect the Marquis d'Astorgas, our new Vice-Roy to arrive here from Rome: The Banditi continue to occasion much disorder in these Countries, to the great disturbance of Travellers, and the interruption of our Commerce; for the redressing of which, some Forces are ordered out, to endeavor to intercept them.

Rome, Octob. 24. On Thursday last the Count de Prado, Ambassador from the Court of Portugal, had his last Audience of his Holiness, by whom he was received with much kindness and esteem; the said Ambassador having now satisfied all his Creditors, to their general content, may in few days begin his journey overland for Portugal.

This week arrived an extraordinary Courrier from France, with Letters to the Bishop of Liann, who immediately after receipt thereof, was with his Holyness, as afterwards with the Cardinal Patron, to acquaint them with the contents of them, of which we have not as yet an account. Great preparations are making for the performance of the Ceremony, of Contracting the second Daughter of the Princeess Rossano, to the Prince Doria, which the Marquis d'Astorgas will perform as Proxy, in the name of that Prince, who is now at Genoua, where the Marriage will be Consummated with much Solemnity. The Popes Gallies are safely arrived at Civita Vecchia. The Pope is somewhat indisposed.

The Cardinal Landgrave of Hesse is preparing for his journey towards Germany, in order to his going to take possession of his Government of Silesia, and of the Archbishopsrick of Breslaw in that Country. It is not certainly said, whom the Emperor may appoint his Ambassador at this Court, the general report being, that the Constable of Colonna is designed for it, though without any great certainty as yet. Signior Nerli is not yet arrived from Vienna, but is dayly expected.

Vienna, Octob. 26. The 24 instant arrived here a Turkish Chiaus, who hath since had Audience of the Emperor and the Count de Montecuculi, President of the Council of War, to whom, after the assurances of a perfect and inviolable Friendship on the part of the Grand Signior his Master, he represented, as we are told, several matters, which have divers years continued undecided, concerning the Frontiers, &c. adding, that he hoped the Port would not be obliged by farther delays in this affair, to prosecute their right by force of Arms, which the Bassa of Offen would have certainly orders to do, if they had not quick Justice, as they pretend, done them herein.

Several persons who have been long Prisoners at Presburgh, concerning the late Rebellion in Hungary, have at length obtained their pardons, and are discharged out of Prison, though, it is thought, the Count de Tattenbach will be, upon the same account, condemned to a perpetual imprisonment.

Upon Prince Abassi's having refused to deliver into the hands of the Imperial Commissioners, several fugitive Hungarians, as likewise upon the report we have had, as if the Port had promised to assist the Rebels of Hungary, more Forces have been ordered to march that way, to be ready upon any occasion that may happen there.

Vienna, Dicta 30. The Turkish Envoy hath had an other Audience of the Count de Montecuculi, from whom he received, as is said, a sharp answer, to what he had in his former Audience, proposed to him, concerning the Frontiers, &c. since he hath had his last Audience of the Emperor, and is now returning home with very considerable presents.

We are told of several practices, which have been discovered of some of the Hungarian Nobility, for raising new troubles in those Countries; and that in case the unexpected Revolt in Arabia had not hindered the Port, from sending them the promised assistance, they would ere this have had some new design on foot, which it is hoped, whenever they go about to put into execution, will meet with no better success, then they have hitherto done.

Konice, Octob. 30. Our advices from Turkey tell us, with much assurance, of the continuance of the disorders in the Ottoman Territories near Mecca, and that those disturbances will certainly employ all the Grand Signiors Forces in those Quarters, for some time at least. In the mean time our affairs in Dalmatia advance apace, inso much, that Procurator Nani, in his Letters to this Senate, seems not to doubt, but to see that business wholly determined yet before Christmas.

Here is a report of an Ambassador designed hither from Savoye, though without much certainty as yet. The French Ambassador is preparing for his return home, and may depart hence about the middle of the next Month at farthest; this Duke is returned out of the Country, where he hath been some time, perfectly recovered of his late indisposition.

The Christian Gallies have of late very much disturbed the Navigation and Commerce of the Grand Signiors Subjects in the Archipelago, so that the Grand Visier hath given directions for the equipping 30 Gallies more against Spring, to be employed for the security of those parts. We are told, that the Divan at Constantinople hath very much complained to the French Ambassador of his Masters Fleet having been in the Archipelago, and of some had usage those Inhabitants had received from him. Here is returned Signior Giorgi, late Ambassador from this State at Vienna.

Dantzick, October 30. Our Letters from Lemburgh tell us, of the daily confirmation they receive, of Hanenke's great success against the Rebel Gossack
