

The London Gazette.

Published by Authority.

From Tuesday May 16. to Saturday May 20. 1727.

St. James's, May 20.

THE following humble Address of the Custos Rotulorum, Justices of the Peace, Grand-Jury, Gentlemen and Freeholders, assembled at the General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Anglesey, and also of the Clergy of the said County, has been presented to His Majesty by Owen Meyrick, Esq; Custos Rotulorum of the said County, being introduced by the Right Honourable the Earl of Cholmondeley, Lord Lieutenant of North Wales. Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

The humble Address of the Custos Rotulorum, Justices of the Peace, Grand-Jury, Gentlemen and Freeholders, assembled at the General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Anglesey, and also of the Clergy of the said County.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects (in the most doubtful Times zealously and most heartily attached to your Majesty and the Protestant Succession in your most august Family) most humbly desire Leave to approach your Royal Majesty in this critical Juncture of Affairs, and sincerely assure your Majesty, that with the greatest Cheerfulness we are ready to sacrifice our Lives and Fortunes in Defence of your Majesty, and of those solemn Treaties so wisely entered into by your Majesty to secure the Trade and Commerce of your Subjects, and for keeping the due Balance of Europe.

Your Majesty's great Care for the Welfare of your People, appears in every Particular of your wise Administration, in governing them according to Law, in protecting and encouraging their Trade to its great Increase both at Home and Abroad, and especially in your Majesty's most wise and happy Choice of your Ministry; these are such Blessings as have procured to us Ease and Quiet in our Minds, and such Riches and Plenty to our Nation, that even our utmost Wishes are exceeded.

This most prudent Administration of Affairs has raised the Admiration of all, and the Malice of some Nations to such pitch of Madness, as to attempt the Disturbance of our Quiet, and to threaten and affront your most sacred Majesty as the only Author and Cause of the Felicity, Prosperity, and Tranquility of this Nation; this has justly obliged your Majesty to fit out powerful Fleets for the Security of the Trade of Great Britain, and thereby to encrease our publick Taxes, which we will with Pleasure pay, as the grateful Tribute of our own Preservation; and shew the World that your Majesty reigns over our Hearts as well as Land.

That your Majesty's Reign may be long and prosperous, and that the Throne of Great Britain may never want a Race of Princes, truly Protestants, descending from so great and wise a Prince as your Majesty is, and whose Virtues are so illustrated, that you may be justly reckoned the Pattern to Posterity, are the hearty Prayers and sincere Wishes of,

Your most dutiful and loyal Subjects.

Lisbon, May 14, N. S. The 2d Instant, being the Birth-Day of the Infante Don Carlos, the Nobility appeared at Court, and had the Honour to kiss their Majesties Hands. The 11th Instant M. Geddes, his Portuguese Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary, returned hither from Madrid. Two Spanish Privateers sailed from hence last Week, each with about 50 Men on board: They have taken off this Port two small English Vessels. One of these Privateers is a Fishing-Boat bought here by the Spaniards, and lies off this Place in order to surprize British Merchant Ships. Major-General Dormer, His

Britannick

[Price Two Pence.]

