THE King, who continues to enjoy a perfect Health, has lately made several Promotions amongst the Officers of his German Troops, whereof 18 Squadrons and 12 Battalions are to assemble shortly in the Neighbourhood of this City, in order to be reviewed by His Majesty. Last Saturday in the Afternoon His Majesty took the Air at Herrenhausen, and did the same the Day following. Yesterday about Noon His Majesty removed from this City to Herrenhausen, where he intends to reside the rest of the Summer. He has taken up there the same Apartments the late King had; and besides His Majesty's Table, there are two other great Tables kept at Court. A great many Strangers are already arrived here to pay their Court to His Majesty, and amongst others, two young Counts of Ottingen. Yesterday Count Dehn, who has resided some Time in England on the Part of the Duke of Brunswick-Wolfenbuttel, arrived here from London, and was introduced this Morning to the King at Herrenhausen. Brigadier Sutton having obtained His Majesty's Leave to make a Tour hither from Wolfenbuttel, is expected here to Night or to Morrow.
