From Saturday March 16. to Tuesday March 19. 1733.

Whitehall, March 19.

Yesterday the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of the City of London, waited on his Majesty at St. James's with the following humble Address, being introduced by his Grace the Duke of Grafton, Lord Chamberlain.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, of the City of London, in Common Council assembled.

May it please Your Majesty,

WE the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London, in Common Council assembled, most humbly beg Leave to congratulate your Majesty on the happy Conclusion of the Marriage of the Princess Royal with his most Serene Highness the Prince of Orange.

Our Minds preface the greatest Glory, the brightest Triumphs, and the most distinguished Prosperity to these Nations, both in the present and future Ages, from another Alliance with that truly Illustrious House, the House of Nassau, from whence so many Heroes have sprung, the Scourges of Tyrants, and the Assertors of Liberty.

Among these we must for ever remember that glorious Prince King William the Third, who delivered these Kingdoms from the imminent Dangers of Popery and Arbitrary Power; and, during the Course of his important Reign, established the Constitution, and secured our Liberties in such a Manner, that he seems to have left nothing more to be done, than what we hope was reserved to compleat the Glories of your Majesty's Reign: A Reign in which we justly promise ourselves, that nothing will be omitted which may appear necessary for the confirming our ancient Constitution; for easing the People from those heavy Burthens, which the Defence of their Liberties induced them to impose on themselves; for encouraging the Trade and advancing the Maritime Power of this Kingdom; for making us happy at Home, and respected Abroad.

And as we have a grateful Sense of the many Blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious Reign, we beg Leave to assure your Majesty of our hearty Endeavours in our Sphere to promote an affectionate Zeal for your Majesty's Person and Government; that your Reign may be easy and happy.

JACKSON.

To which His Majesty was pleased to give the following most gracious Answer.

My Lord Mayor and Gentlemen,

I Return you my Thanks for this dutiful and loyal Address, and am very glad that the Marriage of my Daughter with the Prince of Orange gives such general Satisfaction.

It is a great Pleasure to me to see this Metropolis remember with so much Gratitude, the Deliverance of these Kingdoms from Popery and Slavery, by my great Predecessor King William.

A just Sense of the imminent Dangers that this Nation then escaped, and of the inestimable Blessings that we now enjoy, will best secure to my People the Continuance and Preservation of our present Happiness, which it has been, and always shall be my Care to support and maintain to the utmost of my Power.

Then they waited upon Her Majesty, being introduced by the Right Honourable the Earl of Grantham, Her Majesty's Lord Chamberlain; and Mr. Baron Thomson, the Recorder, made their Compliments in the following Speech.

May it please your Majesty,

THE Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London, most humbly beg Leave to congratulate your Majesty on the Marriage of her Highness the Princess Royal to his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange.

As you, Madam, gave Birth to this amiable Princess, and had the forming of her excellent Mind, and adorned her with all those Accomplishments which make her so justly and universally admired, To your Majesty will be owing, not only the Happiness of the Prince her Consort, but the Effects of your Majesty's Cares, Wisdom and Goodness, will be extended for the Welfare of all those Countries, where ever her Royal Highness shall have any Influence.

And

And the People of this Nation will have Reason to retain a grateful Sense of your Majesty's beneficent Intentions towards them in promoting this happy Union, as it gives them an additional Prospect of Princes from the Branches of such illustrious Families, who have so eminently distinguished themselves in the Cause of Liberty and the Protestant Religion.

These his Majesty's most faithful Subjects beg leave to tender their humble Acknowledgements to your Majesty, with their most sincere Wishes for the Continuance of your Majesty's Health and Welfare; that your Majesty may live to see this happy Pair blest'd with a numerous Issue; that they also may live to be form'd by your Majesty's Instructions and Example, and then they cannot fail of proving Comforts to your Majesty and Blessings to the World.

To which Her Majesty was pleas'd to make a most gracious Answer.

Then they were introduced to Her Highness the Princess Royal; and Mr. Baron Thomson made their Compliments as follows.

May it please your Royal Highness,

THE Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London, most humbly beg your Highness's Permission to congratulate your Highness upon your Marriage with his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange.

As all his Majesty's Subjects are nearly interested in the Welfare and Prosperity of your Royal Highness, 'tis with the utmost Satisfaction we see your Royal Highness designed by Providence and your Royal Parents, to give Joy and Happiness to a Prince of the illustrious House of Nassau; whose eminent Virtues, and the most shining Qualities, give just Reason to hope that this happy Union will be attended with all the Felicity to your Royal Highness that your Heart can wish and desire.

And as you, Madam, by your natural Perfections are formed to please; as your Sweetness of Temper, distinguish'd Sense, and your other Accomplishments, have the most engaging Charms; they cannot fail to endear you to the Prince your Consort, to create in him the most affectionate Tenderness and Love, and to procure the universal Esteem and Veneration of the World.

May your mutual Joys and Comforts for ever continue without the least Alloy: May our ardent Desires be fulfilled, by your yielding to the World a numerous Progeny: May they live to flourish and prosper, and by imitating the great Examples of their illustrious Parents, make your Royal Highness the Author of many Blessings, not only to this Age, but the latest Posterity.

To which her Royal Highness was pleas'd to make a very obliging Answer.

Then they were introduced to his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange; and Mr. Baron Thomson made their Compliments to his Highness in the following Manner.

May it please your Serene Highness,

THE Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London, humbly entreat the Liberty of congratulating your Highness on your Marriage with her Highness the Princess Royal.

As you, Sir, are descended from the illustrious House of Nassau, and nearly ally'd to that great Deliverer of this Nation, at a Time of the utmost Distress, the glorious King William the Third of immortal Memory; as you, Sir, are now united to a Branch of that Family, which he thought most worthy to be the Protectors of our Rights and Liberties; and to so bright a Princess, formed by the Care, and after the Example of her Royal Parents; as your own great Character made this Alliance the Object of the united Wishes of all his Majesty's Subjects, It now gives an universal Joy and Satisfaction, that your Highness is thus related to Great Britain. And it yields us a pleasing Hope, that there will never be wanting a Succession of Princes, (the Offspring of this happy Marriage) endued with all the heroick Virtues of your Highness and your glorious Ancestors; who then will have it in their Nature to be Friends to this Nation, and Defenders of the Liberties of Europe.

We esteem it an Honour, Sir, that we have this Opportunity of tendering our most hearty Wishes to your Highness, for the Continuance of all that Joy and Delight, that solid Comfort, which must flow from the Endearments and Affection of a Princess of so much Merit and Beauty. We wish your Health, Welfare, and Prosperity; that you may live to exert your Nobleness of Soul, and all your inherent and hereditary Virtues, in the Support of Truth, Religion, and Liberty, in relieving the Injured, and protecting the Distressed, and by a diffusive Benevolence, promoting the Happiness of Mankind.

May you thus, Sir, accomplish true Honour and Glory,

To which his Serene Highness made an Answer in a very obliging Manner.
