Whitehall, March 22.

THIS Day the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, attended by a great Number of Heads of Houses, Doctors in several Faculties, Noblemen, Masters of Arts, and other Members of that learned Body, were at St. James's in their Formalities, to congratulate his Majesty upon the Marriage of the Princess Royal, and to present a Book of Verses from the University upon that Occasion; the Vice-Chancellor at presenting it made the following Speech.

May it please your Majesty,

THE ancient and loyal University of Cambridge humbly begs Leave to be permitted to congratulate your Majesty, upon the Nuptials happily celebrated between the Princess Royal and his most Serene Highness the Prince of Orange.

If every good Subject thinks himself concerned in every Event in which your Majesty is interested, we find ourselves under particular Obligations, for the many Proofs we have received of your Majesty's Beneficence and Favour to us.

We often remember how ready our Hearts were to overflow with Joy, when your Majesty was pleased to honour us with your Royal Presence; we flatter ourselves, Sir, with the Belief, that we gave your Majesty too some of that Pleasure which is apt to spring up in the Breast of a benevolent Father at the Sight of his dutiful Children, whom he has cherished with his Care, and encouraged by his Tendernefs.

Our Colleges may be considered not only as Nurseries of Arts and Sciences, but as Schools also where the Principles of Religion and Loyalty are taught; in every one of which Prayers are daily offered up for your Majesty's long Life and happy Reign, and for the Prosperity of the Royal Family.

In this View, we have been honoured with many valuable Privileges by your Royal Progenitors, and in this View we promise ourselves the Continuance of your Majesty's Favour and Protection; for the rest, we beg a gracious Acceptance of this Book of Verses, in which your Majesty will find every one zealously forward to express his Loyalty to your Majesty, and his inviolable Attachment to your august and illustrious House.

To which his Majesty was pleased to return this most gracious Answer.

I Thank you for your Congratulations upon the Marriage of my Daughter with the Prince of Orange. I take very kindly this Mark of your Affection to me and my Family. The University of Cambridge may always depend upon my Support, Favour, and Protection.

They were introduced by his Grace the Duke of Grafton, Lord Chamberlain of the Household, and had the Honour to kiss his Majesty's Hand.

They were then introduced to the Queen by the Earl of Grantham, Lord Chamberlain to her Majesty; to whom the Vice-Chancellor presented a Book, and made the following Speech.

May it please your Majesty,

THE University of Cambridge humbly begs to have the Honour of attending your Majesty with a Book of Verses on the Nuptials happily celebrated between the Princess Royal and his most Serene Highness the Prince of Orange.

To be born with a Genius to Poetry able to rise up to the Dignity of such a Subject, is the Lot of a very few; but to have a just Sense of Duty and Loyalty to his Majesty, and a firm Attachment to his illustrious House, is easily learned by those who live under the Influence of his Royal Care and Protection. This, Madam, is what we profess to have learned our selves, and to be careful to teach others; these are the Sentiments which have guided our Pens upon this happy Occasion; and we please ourselves with the Hopes, that the Expressions of our Zeal will not be unacceptable, because they come from an University famous for cultivating those Arts and Sciences for which your Majesty shews so great a Regard.

To which her Majesty was pleased to give a most gracious Answer.

Then they waited on the Princess Royal, to whom the Vice-Chancellor presented a Book, and made the following Speech.

May it please your Royal Highness,

THE University of Cambridge, ever ready to take any Opportunity of shewing their Loyalty to His Majesty; and their Attachment to every Branch of his illustrious House, begs Leave to congratulate the happy Nuptials between your Royal Highness and his most most Serene Highness the Prince of Orange. If we have just Reason to regret the great Loss the Court of Great Britain will sustain, in being depriv'd of so bright an Ornament; we take this Consolation to ourselves, that his Majesty has given your Royal Highness to a Prince, whose distinguished Merit commands the Esteem of all that approach him: We pride our selves in the Thought, that the Lustre of your Royal Highness's Conduct abroad will reflect Honour upon our Nation: We please our selves, with the Prospect of your Royal Highness's living many happy Years in the Esteem of Mankind, and in the Favour of Heaven: These, Madam, are the Sentiments which we have endeavour'd to express in the Book of Verses I have the Honour to present to your Royal Highness on the Part of the University.

To which her Royal Highness returned a most obliging Answer.

They were afterwards introduced to the Prince of Orange, to whom the Vice-Chancellor presented a Book, and made the following Speech.

May it please your most Serene Highness,
THE University of Cambridge, famous for cultivating those Arts in which Fame tells us your most Serene Highness has made so great a Progress, begs Leave to congratulate your happy Marriage with the Princess Royal: His Majesty has upon this Occasion shewn how well he knew how to reward distinguish'd Merit, when he bestow'd upon your most Serene Highness a Princess so justly dear to him and so highly esteem'd by every one who has the Honour to approach her: To express our Joy upon this Occasion, and to wish your most Serene Highness all Manner of Felicity with its amiable a Consort, is the Subject of the Book of Verses I have the Honour to present your most Serene Highness with in the Name of the University.

To which his Highness gave a most obliging Answer.

On Saturday the 23^d, the Vice-Chancellor, and the rest of the Gentlemen of the University of Cambridge, were in the same Manner introduced to the Prince of Wales, by the Earl of Jersey, Lord of the Bedchamber in waiting. The Vice-Chancellor presented a Book of Verses, having first made a short Speech to his Royal Highness, to which he was pleas'd to give a most obliging Answer; and they had the Honour to kiss his Royal Highness's Hand.

May it please your Royal Highness,
THE University of Cambridge begs Leave to present your Royal Highness with a Book of Verses, in Honour of the Nuptials of the Princess Royal with his most Serene Highness the Prince of Orange. We esteem it our very great Happiness, that we have this Opportunity of giving the sincerest Assurances of our Devotion to your Royal Highness. We join in the most ardent Wishes, that every Event may attend your Royal Highness, which can advance your Prosperity and Honour; particularly, that you may reap all the happy Fruits possible, of an Alliance so wisely concerted by his Majesty, with a Family to which the People of Great Britain are under so many and so great Obligations.

From thence they were conducted to their Royal Highnesses the Duke, the Princess Amelia, and the rest of the Princesses, and presented them with Books. They were all admitted to kiss the Duke's, and the Princesses Hands, the Vice-Chancellor having first made a short Speech, to which he had very obliging Answers.

The following Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Portsmouth, in the County of Southampton, has been presented to his Majesty by Sir Charles Wager, and Sir John Norris, which Address was received by His Majesty, very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,
 The humble Address, of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses, of the Borough, of Portsmouth, in the County of Southampton.

PERmit us, most gracious Sovereign, to congratulate your Majesty on the Marriage of her Royal Highness the Princess Royal, with his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange.

This must give peculiar Joy to such as gratefully remember the Blessings deriv'd to this Nation, by an Alliance with that illustrious House, famed for Defenders of the Liberties of Mankind.

To that we owe our Deliverance by the Immortal King William; Happy! had not that Deliverance been by many, too soon forgot.

To that we owe the Continuance of our Happiness, by the Succession in your Majesty's Royal House; Happy! were all but duly sensible of the inestimable Blessings we enjoy from hence.

That your Majesty's incessant Care for the Welfare of your Subjects may be crown'd with Success; and your Reign be long and prosperous over a thankful and a happy People, is the hearty Prayer of,

May it please your Majesty,

Your Majesty's Loyal and Obedient Subjects.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,
The humble Address and Congratulation of the High Sheriff and Grand Jury of the County of Kent, assembled at the Assizes at Maidstone the 14th Day of March 1733.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE Esteem it the greatest Blessing of our Age, that your Majesty is so happily placed upon the Throne of these Realms.

It gives us the utmost Satisfaction that our Posterity will reap the same Advantages by the Succession in your Royal Family: A Blessing, consequent of the happy Revolution by the late Glorious King William, of immortal Memory, by whom our Constitution in Church and State was providentially restor'd.

We humbly beg Leave to congratulate your Majesty upon that most auspicious Alliance your Majesty has concerted with his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange, this Day consummated by the Marriage of the Princess Royal, which must be of the utmost Advantage and Strength to the Protestant Interest in Particular, and to the Rights of Mankind in General; of which your illustrious Ancestors, and those of the House of Orange, have been Immemorial Assertors: What may we not then expect, when both Houses are so happily United?

We humbly hope, may it please your Majesty, that as your past Administration has been steadily carried on with a most religious Regard to our Constitution; so this Instance will convince all Mankind, that the Interests of your People and that of your Majesty are inseparable.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,
The humble Address of the High Sheriff, Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Grand Jury, met at the General Assizes for the County of Gloucester, holden there March 16, 1733.

May it please your Majesty,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, beg Leave to express our utmost Joy on Account of the happy Nuptials between his Serene Highness the Prince of Orange, and the Princess Royal of Great Britain; from which there arises the most agreeable Prospect of compleat Felicity, not only to the illustrious Pair, but also to the Cause of Liberty, in these Kingdoms, and to the Protestant Interest in General, to which is given such an Additional Strength, as will confirm them to the latest Ages.

The most universal Address of Thanks, tho' with the warmest Affections conceiv'd, and in the most expressive Terms deliver'd, cannot convey our full Sense of the Obligations due to your Majesty; who, by joyning her Royal Highness, a Princess endow'd with every excellent Qualification, to a Prince, not only an Heir to the most signal Actions of Wisdom and Bravery, but himself adorn'd with every Vertue of his Ancestors, have at once made a secure Provision for her Happiness, and the general Safety.

Since such is the Prince, and such the Princess, what may we not expect from this happy Union!

Permit us then, Royal Sir, to express some Part of the Gratitude due to your Majesty and graciously accept our Congratulations which flow from the great and real Satisfaction with which we abound on the Occasion of this most auspicious Marriage.

Vienna, March 17, N. S. By Letters from Constantinople we are inform'd, that the Porte has refused to ratify the Treaty which the Persian General Kouli Kan had concluded with the Governour of Bagdad,

Dublin, March 17.

This Afternoon arriv'd an Account, that on Thursday the 14th Instant was celebrated the Marriage between her Royal Highness the Princess Royal and his Highness the Prince of Orange: Upon which the Flag was immediately display'd at the Castle, the State Trumpets, &c. attended to perform their Duty, and on a Signal given from Birming-ham's Tower, the great Guns were fired at the Barracks, and answer'd by Volleys from the Regiments drawn out upon Oxmantown-Green. There was a Ball at the Castle, and throughout the City there were Bonfires, Illuminations, Ringing of Bells, and all possible Demonstrations of Joy.
