Warsaw, Nov. 1.

Our Letters of the 25 past from the Army tell us That they had there the good news of the Crown-General Sobieski having unexpectedly fallen upon a body of 20000 Tartars at a place called Try, and his having totally routed them, killing above 10000 of them upon the place, and taking most of their chief Officers prisoners, besides having recovered near 10000 poor Christians they were carrying away Captives. We have yet no certainty what is further resolved upon concerning the proceeding against the Male-contents; the Archbishop of Gnesne remains still at Lowitz, the usual place of his Residence, pretending to be unconcerned at the heat of the Nobility against him, and as little, at their having promised 1000 Ducats to him that shall bring his Head into the Leaguer; The Pope's Nuncio seems to oppose the Decree of the Dyet for the deposing the said Archbishop, as do most of the Prelates of this Kingdom, being a thing never known to have been practised heretofore in this Kingdom. We know little of what the Turks do, it is reported their Army is retreated from their Quarters near Caminiec, where, however they have left a sufficient Garrison to secure that place, but hereof we have not any certainty. The Crown-Treasurer is privately retired to Dantzick, where he will, it is said, continue till matters be better settled then they are at present.

Turin, Nov. 2. In pursuance to the preliminary Treaty concluded between the Duke of Savoy and the State of Genova, his Highness hath given Orders for the restoring Quada into their hands again in the same condition it was in before the War; The next thing will be the releasing of prisoners on both sides, so that we may well expect to see a Treaty of peace very suddenly concluded. The Sieur Gaumont, having been here eight days is returned again for Genova, to put the last hand to this work.

Venice, Nov. 5 From Corfu we have advice, That the Provost-General was come in thence from Sea with all the Ships of War of this Republick, save only two that are bound for the Levant to Convey several Merchant Men. From Zam we are told of the very great scarcity they are in there of all kind of Provisions, notwithstanding the Inhabitants of the Morca, have of late supplied them with large quantities of Corn, though against the express Order of the Grand Signior, who had Commanded, that all the Corn they could possibly spare, should be sent for the supply of his Army.

Vienna, Nov. 6. The 2 instant the Turkish Envoye parted hence on his way home, being extremely satisfied with his Reception here. Our Letters from Hungary confirm the defeat of the Rebels by the Forces under the Command of General Copp; It is said they have lost all their Infantry, so that they will not be able to make head again against the Emperors Forces; notwithstanding this victory, we have not been able to get any of the chief Authors of this Rebellion into our hands, the Count Teckeli, who in this Rencounter, Commanded the Rebels, having had the good fortune to escape, though he was very much wounded.

Mentz, Nov. 12. From Francfort and the parts thereabouts, we hear of nothing but complaints of the Country peoples being quite ruined by the long abode of the Confederate Troops in their neighborhood; on Monday last these Troops passed the Main at Flerfheim, and as is said, intend to proceed towards the Elector Palatines Country, and so for Lorrain or Alsatia, but we have so often had reports like these, and still nothing of truth found in them, that we know now hardly what to credit. On Tuesday last the Elector of Brandenburgh arrived privately here, and had a conference with our Elector, after which he returned again to his quarter at Casheimb. We have just now advice that the Confederate Troops will march towards Treves.

Hague, Novemb. 12. His Highness the Prince of Orange, with the whole Army, consisting in about 22 Thousand Men, broke up two days since from Rosendael, and took his march towards the Country of Liege; yesterday his Highness was at Turnhout, 8 Leagues from Antwerp, and thence intended to march by Louvain, Dift, Sieghem, &c. It is still said, that his Highness will draw out part of the Garrison of Maestricht, to reinforce his Army, and then make some attempt upon Maseyck, Vitet, &c. now in the possession of the French, in the Country of Liege; though others that pretend to have better knowledge of affairs, tell us, that this Army is only to quarter in that Country, as long as they can, because of the great scarcity of Forage and all kind of Provisions here in Holland; out of Mechlen and Louvain have been drawn about 30 Pieces of Ordnance, which have been sent to the Army; and it is reported here, that the Governor of Flanders hath lately sent 4 or 5 Thousand Men more to our assistance; so that we may now expect to hear suddenly of some considerable attempt. All the Country about Bodegrave, Oudemater, and Gorcum, are mightily infested by the Excursions of the French Troops; who besides have lately cut another Dike near Amstedam, and by that means spoiled and drowned a great many Houses of Pleasure belonging to the Inhabitants of that City, besides other great damage they will receive thereby; Our Letters from Cologne of the 8 instant tell us, that the Confederate Armies had endeavored to pass the Rhyn at Mentz, but that that Elector having caused several pieces of Canon to be planted on the other side, to guard the Bridg there, the Imperialists had given over those Intentions, and were getting a great many Boats together to pass the Rhyn at some other place. We have just now advice, that about 120 Fouriers and Quartermasters of the Prince of Oranges Army, being advanced somewhat too near the French Quarters, a party of French fell upon them, and took them all prisoners, they not making the least resistance.

Cologne, Novemb. 15. The Confederate Armies are certainly passed the Main at Flerfheim, near Mentz, and as is said, intend to take their way through
