Hampton Court, August 26.

THIS Day the Right Honourable the Earl of Arran, Chancellor of the University of Oxford, with Dr. Niblett the Vice Chancellor, and his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, attended by several Heads of Houses, Doctors in the several Faculties, Masters of Arts, and other Members of that learned Body, waited on his Majesty in their Formalities; and being introduced by his Grace the Duke of Grafton, Lord Chamberlain of his Majesty's Household, Mr. Vice-Chancellor presented the following Address, congratulating his Majesty upon the Birth of a Princess.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford, with all Humility beg Leave to offer to your Majesty our most sincere Congratulations upon the Increase of your Royal Family by the Birth of a Princess.

The many Blessings deriv'd upon this Nation by your Majesty and your illustrious House, must engage all your Subjects to think themselves nearly interested in every Event that brings Joy to your Majesty, and with Hearts full of Gratitude to adore that Providence which opens to them the pleasing Prospect of the Continuance of their National Happiness, by adding to the Number of your Royal Offspring.

We are deeply sensible of the many Blessings we enjoy in common with all your Majesty's Subjects under your auspicious Government; we want Words to express the grateful Sentiments we feel, while viewing these ancient Seats of Learning in a safe and flourishing Estate under the kind Influence of your Majesty's Favour and Protection, we have this further Satisfaction, that we can promise ourselves the Perpetuity of these Blessings in your Royal Family.

We therefore most gladly embrace this Opportunity of repeating our Assurances to your Majesty, of our inviolable Fidelity to your Royal Person and Family; and as a prevailing Sense of Religion among your Majesty's Subjects will ever be found the best Support of your Government, it shall be our constant Endeavour to form the Minds of that Part of the rising Generation which is committed to our Care, into a dutiful Submission to your sacred Authority, upon the lasting Principle of Piety to that all Powerful Being, by whose good Providence your Majesty is happily set over us.

May your Majesty long reign in the Hearts of a willing and obedient People; and may your Subjects all conspire to render your Government as easy and happy to your Majesty as it is beneficial to these Kingdoms.

Dated in the Convocation House under the Seal of the University, the Twenty fourth Day of August, in the Year of our Lord, 1737.

To which Address his Majesty was pleased to return this most gracious Answer.

I Thank you for your Congratulation upon the Birth of a Princess. The Assurances you give me of instilling into the Youth committed to your Charge, Principles of Piety towards God, of Duty and Affection to me and my Government, and of Zeal for the Protestant Succession in my Family, cannot but be very agreeable to me, and will always entitle you to my Favour and Protection.

They all had the Honour to kiss his Majesty's Hand.

They were afterwards introduced to her Majesty by the Right Honourable the Earl of Grantham, her Majesty's Lord Chamberlain, and Mr. Vice Chancellor made their Compliments to her Majesty in the following Speech.

May it please your Majesty,

THE University of Oxford, ever ambitious of being admitted into your Majesty's Presence, humbly beg Leave to congratulate your Majesty on the happy Increase of

of the Royal Progeny by the Birth of a Princess; a Blessing which promises no less Prosperity to these Nations than Satisfaction and Comfort to your Majesty.

Our Testimony of Joy, Madam, on this Occasion, is but a just Return to your Majesty, for that affectionate Regard which you have ever shewn to Learning and Piety, and for the many Instances of Bounty and Favour conferred by your Majesty upon this University.

Permit us, Madam, to enjoy some Share in that Pleasure and Satisfaction which arise to your Majesty from this gracious Dispensation of Providence: Permit us to look upon this Increase of your Majesty's Family, as a further Security to our established Religion, and the Welfare of these Kingdoms to succeeding Generations.

May your Majesty's great Example, which has already so happily influenced those immediately descended from you, be conveyed with all its Virtues to your Childrens Children and their latest Posterity.

To which her Majesty was pleased to return a most gracious Answer; and they all had the Honour to kiss her Majesty's Hand. They had afterwards an Entertainment given them.

St. James's, August 27.

This Day the Reverend Dr. Niblett, Vice Chancellor of the University of Oxford, and his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, attended by several Heads of Houses, Doctors in the several Faculties, Masters of Arts, and other Members of that learned Body, waited on his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales in their Formalities; and being introduced by the Right Hon. the Lord North and Guildford, Lord of the Bed Chamber in waiting to his Royal Highness, Mr. Vice Chancellor made their Compliments in the following Speech.

May it please your Royal Highness,

THE University of Oxford, always desirous of paying their Duty to your Royal Highness upon every prosperous Event that attends your Person and Family, most gladly embrace this Opportunity of offering to your Royal Highness their most sincere Congratulations upon the Increase of your Family by the Birth of a Princess.

It is impossible to express the joyful Sentiments we feel on this happy Occasion: With the utmost Pleasure and Satisfaction we see the Foundations of our own Security, together with the Happiness of your Royal Highness, enlarged by this Addition to your Family; and look upon it as a sure Presage of many Blessings to be derived down through your Royal Highness to latest Posterity.

May your Royal Highness always enjoy a large Share of that Happiness, which you are so ever ready to bestow upon others! May those many amiable Virtues, which now shine forth with so much Lustre in your Royal Highness, and which so justly endear you to all his Majesty's Subjects, descend to a numerous Progeny! May every Branch of your illustrious Family prove as great a Blessing to your Royal Highness, as we promise ourselves they will do to these Kingdoms.

To which his Royal Highness was pleased to return this Answer.

Gentlemen,

IT is a great Addition to my Joy to see the Share you take in the augmenting and strengthening of the King's Family.

I return you my Thanks for the good Opinion you have of me, and shall try in all Times to deserve it by my hearty Zeal for the Good of the Publick, and by my Wishes for the Welfare of your learned Body.

They all had the Honour to kiss his Royal Highness's Hand.

And had afterwards an Entertainment given them.

Hampton Court, August 29.

This Day Dr. Wilcox, Vice Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and his Grace the Duke of Newcastle, High Steward of the University, attended by several Heads of Houses, Doctors in the several Faculties, Masters of Arts, and other Members of that learned Body, waited on his Majesty in their Formalities; and being introduced by his Grace the Duke of Grafton, Lord Chamberlain of his Majesty's Household, Mr. Vice Chancellor presented the following Address, congratulating his Majesty on the Birth of a Princess.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Cambridge.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of your University of Cambridge, humbly beg Leave to congratulate your Majesty on the happy Delivery of her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and the Birth of a Princess.

We are deeply sensible of the many and great Blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's most gracious Government, and how entirely all that is dear and valuable to this Nation depends on your Majesty and your Royal Family.

Every Increase therefore of the Royal Progeny must be a new Subject of Joy, as it gives us a pleasing Prospect of the Continuance of our present Happiness, and confirms us more and and more in our Hopes, that our most excellent Constitution, as settled at the Revolution, will be delivered down to all succeeding Generations.

The peculiar Favour and Protection your Univerſity hath received from your Majesty, calls upon us to diſtinguiſh ourſelves in all Inſtances of Duty, and we humbly preſume to renew our repeated Aſſurances of our Zeal and Affection for your Perſon and Government.

May the good God grant your Majesty to reign long over us in Health and Glory: May you be happy in your whole Royal Family, in dutiful and loyal Subjects, and in the Succeſs of all your great Deſigns for the Proſperity of your People

To which his Majesty was pleaſed to return this moſt gracious Answer.

I Take very kindly this dutiful and loyal Adreſs; and thank you for your Congratulation upon the Birth of a Princeſs. Your conſtant Zeal and Affection for me and my Government, you may be aſſured, will continue to you, in the full eſt Extent, my Favour, Protection, and Encouragement.

They all had the Honour to kiſs his Majesty's Hand.

They were afterwards introduced to her Majesty by the Right Honourable the Earl of Grantham, her Majesty's Lord Chamberlain, and Mr. Vice Chancellor made their Compliments to her Majesty in the following Speech.

May it pleaſe your Majesty,

TO accept the Congratulation of the Univerſity of Cambridge upon the Birth of a Daughter of their Royal Highneſſes the Prince and Princeſs of Wales.

The greater any Bleſſing is, the greater muſt be the Anxiety and Sollicitude occaſioned by the Fear of loſing it.

What Happineſs is it to this Nation, not only to enjoy all that Subjects can wiſh, but to have all the Certainty there can be, that their Bleſſings will be continued down to the lateſt Ages, in a numerous and increaſing Royal Family, deſigned by Providence to bleſs the World.

Permit, us Madam, to expreſs the Senſe we have of our Happineſs, and humbly to offer our ſincere Wiſhes for Proſperity to your Majesty and your whole Royal Family.

They all had the Honour to kiſs her Majesty's Hand.

They had afterwards an Entertainment given them.
