O Belgrade, October 29. N the 26th Instant, the Imperial Troops which had till then encamped at Panchova, put themselves on the March towards the Tibiscus; and when they have passed that River, they are to separate and go into the Winter Quarters assigned them. Two thousand Men are to reinforce the Garrison of Temeswaer, and 22 Battallions will remain here. The cold Weather has abated the Violence of the Pestilential Distempers in these Parts.

Warsaw, Nov, 5, N. S. We are assured by Advices from the Porte, and by a Turk that is newly arrived here, that the Grand Signior has proposed to the Czarina a Cessation of Arms, and to enter into Treaty with her, upon the Condition previously of restoring Oczakow, which some Reports say the Ruffians have of themselves already resolved to abandon, because of the great Difficulty of supplying that Place with a sufficient Garrison and Provisions; for it is said to require 10000 Men, and that at present it is infected with a pestilential Distemper; so that those who are best acquainted with the State of Ruffia, reckon this first Preliminary will be readily granted, foreseeing how excessively it would drain the Country to recruit Count Munich's Army, which from 64000 Men of regular Troops, is reduced to about half that Number, and those wanting all Sorts of Ammunition; at the same time it is said Felt Marshal Lacy's Army is in a much better Condition. The Great General of the Crown has received a Letter from the Son of the Kan of the Tartars, advertising him that he was inform'd the Ruffians are to winter in Poland, and should that be the Case, he should be obliged to pursue them. This Letter was writ before the Ruffians had left the Polish Territories, so is judged to be now of no Consequence.

Whitehall, November 14, 1738.

If the Person who wrote the said Letter, will come to the Secretary's Office at Whitehall, and make out what is contained therein, he shall receive all fitting Encouragement.

Whitehall, November 10, 1738.
