

acknowledging the great Honour they receive by your condescending to continue a Member of their Body, and shewing your kind Regard to them upon all Occasions: The best Return they can make is to assure your Royal Highness, with the utmost Sincerity, that nothing shall exceed the Fervency of their Wishes for your Welfare and Prosperity, nor their steady Adherence to the Interests of his Majesty, and every Branch of his illustrious House.

To the Princess of Wales.

May it please your Royal Highness,

THE Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen of the City of London, most humbly address themselves to your Royal Highness, with their sincere Congratulations upon your safe Delivery of another Princess, and the Re-establishment of your Health. These they contemplate as national Blessings, in which Light also they have never failed to consider his Royal Highness's Marriage into your illustrious House; a Marriage, which then promised, and hath since given the highest Pleasure and Satisfaction to his Majesty's Subjects, and will be always remembered by them with the utmost Gratitude.

Your known Tenderneſs Affection and Care for the Royal Comfort you are bleſſed with, and for thoſe inestimable Pledges of our future Security, which the Goodneſs of God to us has already beſtowed upon you, will for ever excite our moſt dutiful Acknowledgments, and our earneſt Prayers for an Increase of theſe and all other Bleſſings to your Royal Highneſs, and that you may long live in Health and Proſperity, to ſee the happy Effects of your Influence and Example.

To which the Prince made this Answer.

My Lord, and Gentlemen,

I Return you my Thanks, and thoſe of the Princess, for this new Instance of your Duty to the King, and Regard to Us. My Children will, I hope, deſerve one Day that Love you now expreſs for them, and it ſhall be my conſtant Care to inſtill ſuch Sentiments into them, as are agreeable to the Liberties and Interests of their Country. The City may depend upon it, that I ſhall never forget the repeated Marks I have had of their Affection, and that they ſhall always have my good Wiſhes for their Welfare, and for the Increase of their Trade, and Proſperity.

After which they all had the Honour to kiſs their Royal Highneſſes Hands.

From his Royal Highneſs's Council Chamber at Somerſet Houſe, the 27th Day of January, 1740.

Berlin, Jan. 31, N. S. Our laſt Accounts from the Army in Sileſia, are, That his Pruſſian Maſteſty having ordered his Troops to croſs the River Neiſs, General Brown, with about 2000 Men, attempted to diſpute the Paſſage, and in this Diſpute ſeveral Men were killed on both Sides; the Pruſſians loſt about 70 Men killed or wounded, and the Auſtrians 13. General Brown however was at laſt obliged to retire, and the Pruſſians came before the Town of Neiſs, where they made Diſpoſitions as if they intended to give a general Aſſault; but the Garriſon having made a very brisk Fire with their Cannon and Small Arms, by which ſeveral of the Pruſſians were killed, his Pruſſian Maſteſty thought proper to do by that Town as he had done by Glogow, which is to block it up; after which his Pruſſian Maſteſty left the Command of the Army in Sileſia to Felt-Marſhal Count Schwerin, and ſet out on the 24th Inſtant on his Return to this Place, where he arrived on Sunday the 29th at Noon, accompanied by Prince William his Brother, and ſeveral Officers of Diſtinction.
