Leghorne, July 21, N. S. This Place has been in some Apprehension, on Account of a Rumour spread, that a pestilential Sickness had been discovered on board a French Vessel from Algiers performing Quarantine in this Road, four Persons having died in her: In Consequence of which the Magistrates of Health have ordered the most strict Precautions to be observed, and placed strong Guards to prevent the Ship's Crew coming on Shore, or having Communication with any of our Inhabitants. By the Arrival of a Vessel under the Pope's Colours in five Days from Toulon, we learn, that they were fitting out at that Port 14 Ships of War.

Florence, July 23, N. S. Nadafti, arrived here from Leghorne, and made a Visit to the Cardinal Corsini at his Villa Castello, where the General M. de Braitwitz, Prince Craon, and several of the Nobility, were entertained at a great Dinner. On the 21st M. de Wachtendonck, with M. de Braitwitz and the Marquess Rinuccini, held a Council of War, and in the Afternoon he set out on his Return to Leghorne.

Petersbourg, July 11. Advice was received here this Week from Stockholm, that a Resolution had been taken by the Dyet, to transport to Finland a Body of 4000 Horse, and that Orders were given to repair with all Expedition the Bridge at North Tellie, where they are to be embarked. That an Embargo was laid on the Shipping for this Purpose, and a Contract made with the Merchant Kerman to furnish the Horse with necessary Forage for their Voyage. General Keith will, it is said, go Tomorrow to Wybourg, to review the Troops encamped on that Side, amounting to about 18000 Foot, and 4000 Dragoons, and to take upon him the Command of that Body, which, in Case of Necessity, may be soon reinforced by Detachments from another Camp on the Narva Side, of about the same Number, under the Command of the Prince of Hesse Hombourg. These Troops are so canton'd and encamp'd, that a Body of Fifty to Sixty Thousand Men, may in a very few Days be drawn together.
