Breslaw, June 11, N. S.

THIS Day Preliminary Articles of Peace between the King of Prussia and Queen of Hungary were signed here by the Earl of Hyndford (in virtue of the full Powers he had received from her Hungarian Majesty) and Count Podeweltz, Minister Plenipotentiary of the King of Prussia: By one Article of which, his Prussian Majesty takes wholly upon himself the Payment of the Sum due to the English Merchants, by virtue of the Contract signed at London the 10th of January 1734-5, with the late Emperor, upon the Mortgage in Silesia.

Constantinople, May 8. On the 10th past the Vizir was deposed about Noon, and that Night or the next Morning put on board a Galley to be sent to Rhodes. He had that Morning been with the Tartar Han, and received, whilst he was Abroad, the Order to repair immediately to the Seraglio; but he went home first, it was thought, with a View to secure some Things of Value. He return'd no more to the Pashau's Gate, as the Vizir's Dwelling is called, but was conveyed aboard the Galley directly from the Seraglio. The Sultan's Kopygeeler Kayhauh, who was sent to take Possession of his Effects, read, in the Presence of the other Ministers, the Sultan's Khat el Shereef, which was, that his Imperial Majesty having discover'd that the late Vizir Ahmet Pashau was avaricious and rapacious, as well as remis and negligent in the Administration of his Office, he had deprived him of it. The Capitan Pashau, who had been in a continued Apprehension for some Time past of being deposed, repaired immediately to the Vizir's Palace, and took the Office of Caimacam. Alli Pashau, who is appointed Vizir in his Room, made his Entry here the 16th past, and took Possession of that Post with a very general Applause and Contentment of all Sorts of People.

Moscow, May 17. The Mediation of France having been absolutely rejected by this Court, M. Nolcke the Swedish Minister will set out this Evening or To-morrow from hence on his Return to the Army commanded by Count Louenhaupt. Repeated Orders have been sent to Field Marshal Lacy to open the Campaign, and it is expected that the Russian Fleet will go out immediately.

Lisbon, May 23. The King of Portugal is now very much mended; his Majesty begins to have some Sensation in his Arm and Leg, and there is no doubt made, but that by continuing to use proper Remedies, he will perfectly recover.

From the General Quarters at Teyn, June 5. The 4th the Army went from Sobieslaw, leaving behind them all the Baggage, Tents, Waggons, Sutlers, &c. and marched to a rising Ground near Teyn, that they might not be perceived by the Enemy, who were, according to our Information, to the Number of 3000 Men in the Town. We remained there, during the Night, drawn up in Order of Battle, and the Evening of our Departure from Sobieslaw, we had formed an advanced Guard to our Army of all the Companies of Foot Grenadiers, and of the Troops of Horse Grenadiers and Carabineers, under the Direction of the Prince of Birkenfeldt. The 5th we continued our March towards Teyn; the advanced Guard marched at Day-break, and advanced to the Wall of the Town. It was closely followed by the Army, which moved in two Columns, one of which marched to the Right of the Town, and the other to the Left. From a little Eminence near this Town, we perceived the Enemy's Infantry and Cavalry on the other Side of the Moldaw, who ranged themselves before their Camp as soon as they saw us approaching, not having had Notice of our coming but towards Five o'Clock in the Morning; on the other Hand, those who were in the Town were disposing themselves to go out of it by a Bridge which they had near it. Our Artillery was immediately divided, and sent to the Right and Left of the said Town, and in order to become Masters of the Bridge, we played our Cannon as well on the Cavalry who were beyond the said Bridge, as on the Infantry who had already passed it. The Enemy's Horse having been driven to a Distance, and our Grenadiers and Croations having besieged the Town during that Time, and taken Possession of the Enemy's Bridge, and the Horse Grenadiers, Carabineers and Huslars having passed the Moldaw above the Town, the French, as well Horse as Foot, took to Flight; but they were instantly followed by our advanced Guard and our Huslars, who would certainly have destroyed them all, if the March of our Grenadiers had not been greatly retarded by the Passage of the Bridge over the Moldaw, where the Enemy gained Time, and the Advantage of retiring into a Wood, which saved them from a farther Pursuit. Our Huslars, who alone pursued the Enemy, have made a very considerable Booty, having, besides four Standards, taken a great Number of Waggons and loaded Mules, and made Prisoners the General Villemour, one Lieutenant Colonel, two Colonels, 11 other Officers of Rank, besides having killed many during the Pursuit. They have also brought in a Courier Prisoner, who had been sent from Frauenberg hither with Dispatches.

Vienna, June 9. An Eftafette from Prince Charles brings Advice, that the French had made a prodigious forced March from Frauenberg to Piseck, having thrown some Part of their Army into Strakonitz, and opened the Sluices of several Lakes so as to make for a little Time a large River of a certain Rivulet, but that the Waters having run off, his Highness was marching with an Intention to cross the Otava, so as to place himself between Piseck and Strakonitz, to attack them together if they find Means to join, or separately parately if they cannot. It is thought too, that a Body of 2000 French are cut off at Crumeau, a considerable Part of their Baggage, at Frauenberg, as well as as Teyn and upon their March, has fallen into the Hands of the Austrians.

Vienna, June 17. Since the Accounts of what passed at Teyn on the 5th Instant, there is Advice by an Estafette and a Courier, that Marshal Broglio quitted his Camp precipitately at Frauenberg, upon the News of what was passing at Teyn; and that Prince Lobkowitz, upon the News of the Marshal's Retreat, having enter'd into his Camp, and found a considerable Booty, dispatched his Croates and Hussars after the Enemy, who is said to have lost by that Means above a 1000 Men, while Prince Charles marching from Teyn in a like Pursuit of those he had surprized there, joyn'd Prince Lobkowitz near Wadnian; but they were both stopped for some Hours, till the Swelling of a Rivulet, occasion'd by the French having, to favour their Retreat, opened several neighbouring Sluices, was abated. By this Stratagem, and by the Advantage they had taken of the Night, they made such Haite before the Austrians, that the latter did not find a Man the next Morning at Strakonitz. In the mean while Prince Charles detached Count Nadasti, General of the Hussars, and a considerable Body of Croates, to summon Piseck; but the Garrison refusing to surrender, the Croates passed the River with their Sabres in their Mouths, and approaching to the Wall, heaped themselves upon one another, after the Manner of the Janisaries; so that their Comrades making Scaling Ladders of their Bodies, appeared Sword in Hand over the Battlements. The Garrison, astonish'd at this Boldness, laid down their Arms, and surrendered at Discretion, to the Number of 500, besides 300 Sick. A considerable Magazine was found in the Town, but the particular Relation of the Whole is not yet arrived. Part of Marshal Broglio's Plate is current in the Austrian Camp Prince Charles had not, at the Departure of the Courier, certain Notice where the French proposed to rendezvous; for where-ever they were fled, it was by Parties, and in a disbanded Manner. The most probable Conjecture is, that they will meet near Prague. M. de Ha court is so advantageously encamped, as not to be easily attacked, but very disadvantageously with respect to the Health of his Troops. It is between the Danube and a vast Morass. He cannot advance without attacking Count Khevenhuller, nor easily retreat without being attacked, for they are within a little League of one another. The King of Sardinia and Count Traun have sent for Mortars to bombard Modena.

Dresden, June 17. The French lost in their Retreat towards Prague, their military Chest, in which is supposed to have been upwards of a Million of French Livres, and their Magazines at Piseck, Protiewin, Beroun, &c. but had on the 13th still a small Corps with that at Pilsen; their Army is now under the Cannon of Prague.

From the Camp of Colgara, June 9, N. S. The Provisional Neutrality with the Duke of Modena being expired on the 7th Instant, that Prince made the strongest Instances for renewing it; which were answered on the Part of the King of Sardinia and Marshal Traun, by a Demand of the Town and Citadel of Modena, and the Town of the Mirandola, for their Security; upon which that Prince has thought fit to withdraw out of his Dominions, with his Dutchess, leaving Orders with the Governours of those Places to defend them to the utmost, and assuring them of a speedy Assistance from the Spanish Army. He has left his Children at a Country House about ten Miles off, and recommended them to the King of Sardinia's Protection. The Town of Modena has since opened its Gates, and received a Garrison of two of the King of Sardinia's Battalions, and one of the Queen of Hungary's, under the Command of the Chevalier Cumiana, a Brigadier. Preparations are now making with all Dispatch for reducing the Citadel, for which the Mortars from Mantua are arrived, and the King of Sardinia's are daily expected. As the Garrison is numerous, and cannot half of it be lodg'd, and as neither the few Casamatts there, nor any of the Magazines are Bomb Proof, it is probable the Place will soon surrender.
