Naples, September 10. Many Vessels are arrived lately at this Port from Apuglia, with Provisions for this Capital, the Government being seriously attentive to provide the Fortresses of this Kingdom with all Sort of Necessaries. The Accounts of this Week from Messina and Reggio are not favourable: The Sicknes has again begun to rage severely in those Parts. Many neighbouring Villages are afflicted with it, and it is even extended among the Soldiers and Guards of the first Line. The Dead of the Plague at Reggio are reckoned about 500, and the Number of Sick is much greater.

Florence, Sept. 17. On the 12th Instant a Courier arrived here from Rome, with Notice of a Promotion of twenty seven Cardinals in a Consistory held on the 9th Instant. From Lombardy we are informed, that on the 10th Prince Lobkowitz and his Son arrived there from Germany, and that on the 15th he was to take upon him, with the usual Formality, the Government of the State of Milan, and the Command of the Austrian Armies, resigned by Marshal Trauti. We do not learn any other News from that Quarter, the Armies continuing in their usual Situations.
