Petersbourg, March 30.

THIS Morning the Earl of Hyndford had his Audience of her Imperial Majesty, as his Britannick Majesty's Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary.

Turin, April 10, N. S. By Letters received last Night from Prince Lobcowitz, dated the 4th Instant, from his Quarters at Imola, we have Advice, that he had ordered his heavy Baggage, and whatever might incumber his Retreat, to be sent to Castel San Giovanni, on this Side Bologna. With regard to the Motions of the Enemy we are informed, that M. de Gages was not come farther than Fano, where it was even likely he would be obliged to make some Stay, in Expectation of his large Artillery (consisting in 40 Pieces of Battering Cannon with several Mortars) and his Stores which were coming from Naples by Sea to Ancona. If their Passage and their March by Land should be obstructed by contrary Winds, or other Difficulties, it is not impossible, but in the mean while, the Austrian Army may be enabled by their Recruits coming up, to make a Stand. On the other Hand, the Spaniards in the Riviera, who seemed to be preparing in Earnest to move and second M. de Gages, are at present pretty quiet in their former Quarters. Captain Ambrose is come to take the Command of the Squadron upon the Genoese Coast, in the Room of Commadore Osborne, whom Mr. Rowley has recalled to the Fleet at Mahon. We have an Account here of very considerable Commotions amongst the Protestants in Languedoc, who have of themselves, about Montauban, taken Arms, and defeated a Detachment of four Regiments of regular Troops sent to quell them.

Vienna, April 21, N. S. After the Encounter of Issyreck, the Bavarian and Hessian Troops were scarce retired by the Way of Freysing towards Munich, but his Excellency Count Bathiani, General and Commander in Chief, advanced the 13th from Landshut to the said Issyreck with his whole Army, and having learnt there that a Corps of French Troops, under the Command of General Segur, were assembling near Pfaffenhoven, with the Palatine Troops of Neubourg, under the Command of General Zastrow, and that they were to join themselves to the Bavarians and Hessians, his Excellency General Bathiani, with a Design to hinder that Junction, took all possible Precautions to conceal his real Intention, and to prevent the Enemy's perceiving which Side he should turn to: In this View we marched the 14th along the Amber towards Kirchdorf, and, to make the Enemy believe that our Design was against the Bavarians, we detached a Body of the advanced Guard on the Right towards Purk, and another towards Dachau, but the 15th we turned, with the whole Army, towards the French and Palatine Troops assembled at Pfaffenhoven, who were reached that same Day by the Avant Guard commanded by Lieutenant General Field Marshal Count Mercy, and the Generals Counts Palfy and Serbettoni; the latter, with 40 Horse of the said advanced Guard, immediately attacked the Enemy, who was posted without the City, and obliged him to retire into it, and as the Infantry could not come up quick enough, he made 200 Dragoons dismount, with whom he advanced to the Gates, which were cut thro' with Hatchets by the said Dragoons. During this Interval the rest of the Avant-Guard also arrived, and set about pursuing the Enemy from one Eminence to another, till the whole Army arrived; but, when that happened, the whole Corps of them was obliged absolutely to retire in the greatest Haste, and we did not cease pursuing them till Night, a good Way beyond the River Baar, behind which they thought to be in Security, because there were no Bridges; but as the Horse was always close at their Heels, and as the Foot cross'd the said River with the Water up to their Middles, there was nothing but the Night which favoured this last Retreat. According to some Reports the French and Palatins have passed the Rain and the Lech, and a Part of Bavarians and Hessians has turned towards Fridberg, and the other Part towards Landsperg. We cannot give at present a just Account of the Enemy's Loss, because he was pursued chiefly through Forests, and we consequently cannot know, with any Certainty, the Numbers that were dispersed, or killed in them; but it is very sure he has lost upwards of 2000 Men, as well in Killed, Wounded, and Prisoners, as in Deserters. According to the Reports of their Deserters, General Ripplemonde is amongst the Slain, and General Zastrow the Wounded. Very few or none at all would have escaped, if they had not made their Retreat through Forests from Hill to Hill, with extraordinary Speed, so that our Infantry could never reach them, and if the Night had not separated us. What is most surprising is, that we had but six Men and 11 Horses killed, and 28 Men and 10 Horses wounded. We have made ourselves Masters of all the Enemy's Baggage, of nine Pieces of Cannon,

( Price Two-Pence. )

Cannon, with all the Ammunition Waggon. We are still employed in searching the Forests for more Artillery, which is thought to be concealed there, because some Deserters say the Enemy has saved four Cannon, and others two, but others affirm that they have saved none.

Berlin, April 24. The Regiments of Foot of Prince Leopold and Prince Royal Ferdinand marched Yesterday Morning about Six of the Clock for Magdebourg; the Regiment of Wirtemberg will take the same Route next Monday. Some pretend that the Camp which is going to be formed will be at Kalbe, others say, it will be at Ascherleben. In the mean while it seems to be determined, that that Corps will do nothing but canton till fresh Orders, because the Officers not only want Horses, but many of the Dragoons want their Accoutrements. In the mean Time the Burghers, in Conjunction with some Soldiers, mount Guard here. It was the Regiment of Prince Ferdinand of Wolfenbuttel that was so ill treated at Rosenberg; and it is said, that very few of them escaped. The Queen Mother returned the Day before Yesterday from her Journey of Oranienburgh and Reinsberg, and the Prince of Prussia, with Prince Henry his Brother, set out last Night after Supper for the Army in Silesia.

Hague, April 30, N. S. We have received the Confirmation from several Quarters, of the Conclusion of the Peace between the Queen of Hungary and the Elector of Bavaria, but remain in the same Ignorance we were last Post, of the particular Conditions of it. The News of the Residue of the Hessian Corps having at the same Time declared for and been admitted to a Neutrality, is also confirmed by Letters from the Court of Cassel itself. In the mean time the Austrians pursue their late Advantages with incredible Diligence and Success; and whilst M. Bathiani was leading one Part of his Victorious Army towards Augsburg, M. Bernclau, with the other, has pursued the French and Palatins over the Lech and Danube, made himself Master of a very rich Magazine at Rain, taken 500 sick and wounded Prisoners at Donawert, and, according to some Advices, the Van Guard of his Corps was advanced on the 23d Instant as far as the Vils in Franconia, and had gained two fresh Advantages over the French at Geislingen and Goppinger upon that River; but these last Particulars want Confirmation; and the Report of M. de Segur's having been made a Prisoner at the Affair of Pfaffenhoven, which was at first positively affirmed, is contradicted by the subsequent Accounts. Our freshest Advices from Flanders mention, that the Operations are already begun there, and that the French present themselves in the Neighbourhood of Tournay, as if they intended to set down before that Place in Form; and some People imagine, that the Investiture of it must be already formed, because there are no Letters by this Post from that Place.

George Gray, Esq; to be Major to the said Regiment; and William Carleton, Esq; to be Captain of a Company in the same.
