Kensington, September 2.

THE following Address of the Grand Jury for the City and County of the City of Exeter, having been transmitted to the Right Honourable the Earl of Harrington, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, has by him been presented to his Majesty: Which Address his Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Grand Jury for the City and County of the City of Exeter, assembled at the Assizes held the eighteenth Day of August 1746, Beg Leave to congratulate your Majesty upon the glorious and happy Suppression of the late most wicked and unnatural Rebellion, which, under the kind Providence of God, and your Majesty's wise Direction, has been chiefly effected by the Conduct and Valour of that brave and worthy Prince the Duke of Cumberland.

As we can never be sufficiently thankful for the full Enjoyment of our Liberties, both Civil and Religious, ever since the Accession of your Majesty's Royal Family to the Throne of these Realms, we look upon every Attempt to wrest those invaluable Blessings from us, with the greatest Abhorrence and Indignation.

That your Majesty may long live to rule over a free and happy People, and that your Crown may descend on Princes of your own Royal House, in an uninterrupted Succession, till Time shall be no more, is the hearty and sincere Prayer of your Majesty's most faithful Subjects.

The following Address of the High Sheriff, and Grand Jury of the County of Devon, having been transmitted by Thomas Benson, Esq; High Sheriff of the said County, to his Grace the Duke of Newcastle, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, has by him been presented to his Majesty: Which Address his Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

The humble Address of the High Sheriff and Grand Jury of the County of Devon, assembled at the Assize the twenty second Day of August, One thousand seven hundred and forty six.

WE beg Leave humbly to congratulate your Majesty on the Suppression of the late unnatural and detestable Rebellion, by the Blessing of God, and by the Bravery of your Troops, under the Command of that great General his Royal Highness the Duke: Who, with the Prudence and Conduct of experienced Age, inspired them with Confidence of Victory; and with all the Courage of Youth, (hereditary from his illustrious Birth) taught them by his Example how to conquer.

Though the Distance of our Situation secured us from Rapine and Plunder, yet the Stagnation of Trade, the Want of Credit, but above all the Terrors of Popery, Slavery, and arbitrary Power, gave us the greatest Anxiety. To change the Blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild Government, for such Misery, were to a brave people worse than Death.

What then can we think of those Protestants, who joined in this wicked Attempt, when even the Papists must repent the Change of their present too great Indulgence, for a French Government and despotick Tyranny.

What can we think of those, whom neither his late Majesty's Mercy after the late Rebellion, his gentle Reign, and your Majesty's auspicious and happy Government in a Course of a above thirty Years, can reclaim from those absurd and wicked Principles, which have again induced them to disturb the Peace of the happiest and most flourishing Nation of Europe, in the fullest Enjoyment of Civil and Religious Liberties.

What these were endeavouring to destroy, we are determined to defend with our Lives and Fortunes; by supporting, to the utmost of our Power, your Majesty and your Royal Family, under whom alone it is possible for us to enjoy such inestimable Blessings.

Edinburgh, August 23. The Earl of Albemarle is come hither, having marched with the Troops under his Command, from Fort Augustus, upon Wednesday the 13th Instant, and settled them in their Quarters at Perth and Sterling.
