

but the particular Loss of the Enemy we do not yet know, tho' it is conjectur'd their Loss of Men may be very considerable, it having been observed from our Ships, that the Officers had the greatest Difficulty to keep their Men in the Batteries to stand so warm a Fire as was made upon them, from the Roebuck in particular, during this Action. On our Side, the Barcolongo had six Men wounded, and the Vessel was much shatter'd. The Roebuck received about 30 Shot in her Hull, and her Masts and Rigging were much wounded. Six Men were killed on board of her, and fourteen wounded. Captain Townshend, who commands his Majesty's Ships employed on the Coast of Provence, is order'd to extend his Cruize to the said Islands, and to give all the Assistance he can to the Governor of St. Marguerite. Count Schulembourg's Quarters are still at Novi, and he is to be supplied with some Cannon and Mortars from hence.

Ruffell, in Vado Bay, March 19. His Majesty's Ship Leopard is this Day arrived here, and brought in about 250 French Soldiers of the Prizes that Ship had before taken, which with others before put on Shore, will make about 750 Soldiers and Officers. We have Advice, that the Duke Fireship had taken off the Islands of Hieres another Transport, having on board about 150 French Soldiers, and it is supposed that Prize is carried to Villa Franca, where we hear those that could not reach this Place on Account of the bad Weather, are also arrived; but as we have no particular Account from the commanding Officers of those Prizes, we cannot send an exact State of the Number of Officers and Soldiers we have taken in the ten Transports, which to this Day we have certain Advice have fallen into our Hands; but we are assured the whole Number is about 1100, among which, we do not hear of any Officer above the Rank of a Captain or Adjutant. The Prisoners are all sent into Piedmont, where they are to remain as his Majesty's Prisoners of War, till they are ordered to be otherwise disposed of.

Hambourg, April 11. Captain Porter, in his Britannick Majesty's Ship the Flamborough, is safely arrived in the River with Eleven Sail of Merchant Ships under his Convoy.

Hague, April 14, N. S. The Earl of Sandwich returned hither Yesterday from Breda. We learn from Paris, that the First Division of French and Swiss Guards marched the 6th, that the Second was to follow the 8th, and the Third, the 13th Instant. The Horse Guards were not to be reviewed, but to set out the 15th. The Departure of the French King's Household was put off to the 26th Instant. There are Advices that the Hector, a very rich French Indiaman, is arrived at Teneriff, in her Way to France. We do not learn that the French have yet begun to encamp in Flanders. M. de Lowendahl is going to Ghent, it is said to review his Regiment. M. de Saxe is still at Brussels.
