Head Quarters at Rycholt, August 14. This Morning the Enemy made their long expected Motion; and their present Position seems, by what we can hitherto discover, to be as follows: The French King's Quarters at Hamal. Count Saxe's at Tongres. The Count d'Etres incamps from Jonk to Hacourt, occupying with the Infantry Hacourt and Hallebelle, which they have intrenched as well as their Camp. The Household Troops and some Brigades of Infantry incamp before and behind Fexhe, and Sling, drawing towards Liege. The Brigade of Picardy, with four or five Brigades, incamp before Tongres, from the Jaar to the Justice.

The Troops extend beyond Tongres, and incamp by Brigades to enlarge their Front. Prince Clermont has his Left at the Commanderie, where he is quartered, extending his Right towards Tongres.

Flushing, August 14, N. S. A Messenger who left Bergen-op-Zoom last Night, and is just arrived, hath brought the following Advice of the 13th from that Place. An Engineer just come from the Town into the Lines, says, "That the French Yesterday sprung a Mine to destroy our great Gallery of the Counterscarp, by which it is very much shatter'd, but not render'd useles. One of their Lodgments in the Cover'd Way was greatly damaged by it, and the other almost destroyed. The Enemy have begun to repair their two Lodgments in the Cover'd Way, but are not near so much advanced as they were two Days ago."

We are informed by a Letter of the 11th from Oudenbosch, that the Day before, as was concerted, Lieutenant General Swartzenberg's Corps marched to Wow, and the Grenadiers on one Side begun the Attack, but were not well supported; besides, by Accidents on the March, they proved too late for the other Attacks that were made. The Grenadiers of the two British Regiments formed one Company of 70 Men, of which there were 14 killed and wounded, and two Officers wounded, but not dangerously, and it is thought the Scheme might have succeeded if it had been well conducted. The Enemy attacked Frangipani's Party unexpectedly at Nispen in the Rear of the Retreat, but a Party of the Compagnie Franche luckily came up and drove back the Enemy, and recover'd their Booty, killed many, and took 50 Prisoners, with two or three Officers. They have Detachments at Roofendahl and Nispen. General Baroniai is expected with a great Body of Hussars. A Dutch Major of Brigade, just arrived from Oudenbosch, says, that General Baroniai's Corps, consisting of 6000 Irregulars, is actually at Sundert; that the Loss of our Troops in the late Affair was above 300; and that it is currently reported, that the French have detached 10000 Men to Provence, which he speaks of as certain. Seven Battalions arrived in the Lines this Morning from Lieutenant General Swartzenberg's Corps, besides a Regiment from Zealand, and a Battalion of Smiffaert is to go into the Town, and another is expected. His Royal Highness has sent some Engineers, which were much wanted. A Company of the Train from England, and 30 Austrian Miners from the Allied Army, arrived the 12th, and a Company of Miners, and 80 Austrians Gunners, are daily expected.

Rotterdam, August 15, N. S. By Advices dated Yesterday from Bergen-op-Zoom, we hear, that four Mines were sprung last Saturday with great Success, and that the Firing of the French is much less considerable since last Thursday Night; that the Thing which the Garrison most apprehend is, the Enemies sapping; but that the Workmen of the Town are very watchful, and that they have a fresh Supply of those People, by which they hope to hinder all further Progress of the French that Way. Two Mines had been sprung in the Night between Sunday and Monday, which have killed the French a great many Men, and deprived the Besiegers of the Advantage they expected from Part of the Gallery opposite to one of the Lunettes of the Coehorn Bastion, being blown up between Saturday and Sunday, by one of their Mines. That the French had not fired for three Days upon upon Fort Kyk en de Pot, neither could it be perceived from the Fort, that they were repairing their Battery there. As to Fort Rover, it was said that their Attack on that Side is now so little, that it seemed as if they had a Mind to quit that Attempt. Three Regiments from the Lines were hourly expected in the Town. The Gunners lately come from England were of great Use to them. Provisions come in in great Plenty, and they had Ammunition, and all other Necessaries for their Defence, in Abundance. A Letter from Oudenbosch says, that seven Regiments of General Swartzenberg's Corps were to go into the Lines, and that General Baroniai was detached to observe the Motions of the Corps under the Command of Count de St. Germain. Several Letters from Antwerp mention great Numbers of Sick and Wounded being sent from the Besieging Army to that Place; and that they came in so fast, that some of the People of Fashion were obliged to lodge them. We hear from Paris, that Marshal Belleisle repassed the Var the 31st of July and 1st Instant, and had left only four Battalions in the County of Nice; that the Allies were besieging Ventimiglia, and advancing to Nice; that the English took the 2d, 10 Ships which were returning from Genoa to Monaco; and that the Piedmontese had advanced from Exilles to Oulx.

Hague, Aug. 15, N. S. We hear by Letters received this Day from Bergen-op-Zoom, that the French had in a great Measure abandon'd the Siege of Fort Rover, where they had no more than one Battery left. The Garrison of the Town continued to make a very gallant Defence, and had sprung several Mines with great Success. However the Enemy was in Possession of the Cover'd Way, and were making the necessary Preparations to batter the Town in Breach. M. Baroniai has taken Post at a Place called Sundert, and 'tis reported that he has already intercepted one of the Enemy's Convoys. We hear from the French Army, that M. de Lowendahl will be shortly reinforced with all the Troops they can spare from Dutch Flanders, besides three Brigades from their grand Army, under the Command of M. de Montmorin.
