Hague, March 5, N. S.

THE Chevalier de Vial, Captain of a Free Company in the Republick's Service, surprized and took, a few Days ago, a French Detachment of 50 Men, posted at Little Willebrock, on the other Side of the Nethe, between Antwerp and Mechlin, and sunk some Boats laden with Forage for the French Troops:

Hague, March 8, N. S. This Morning her Royal Highness the Princess of Orange was happily delivered of a Prince. Major General Haddich assembled, a few Days ago, a great Number of Waggon, and carried off about 550 Bomb-shells, and 600 Twenty-four Pound Cannon Balls from the Glacis of Bergen-op-Zoom, without the Loss of a Man, though the Ramparts were all lighted; and the Garrison under Arms in Expectation of a Surprize.

Hague, March 12, N. S. His Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland arrived here, in perfect Health, on Saturday in the Evening. The four Plenipotentiaries of the States took their Leave of their High Mightinesses last Friday, and are now upon the Road for Aix la Chapelle.

Hague, March 15, N. S. This Day the Council of State presented a Petition to the States General for the Sum of 1,700,000 Florins for the Subsistence of the Russian Troops. The States of Holland resumed their Assembly Yesterday, according to their Adjournment. Her Royal Highness the Princess of Orange, and the young Prince, continue in perfect Health. Count Chavanne left this Place Yesterday, in order to repair to Aix la Chapelle.

Whitehall, March 12.

The following Extract of a Letter from the Prince of Wolfenbuttel to his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, inclosing a Relation of the Attack of the grand French Convoy near Bergen-op-Zoom, the 15th Instant, N. S. by the Allied Troops, was received Yesterday from his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland.

Extract of the Prince of Wolfenbuttel's Letter to his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, dated at Breda the 17th of March, 1748, N. S.

S I R,

I Take the Liberty to enclose your Royal Highness herein the Relation of General Haddich's having attack'd, the 15th Instant, the Enemy's Convoy between Hogesheyden and Bergen-op-Zoom, of which his Excellency the Marshal will have given your Highness already a short Account.

Your Royal Highness will excuse my not having given you immediately an Account of this Event, but as I had not till now the Detail of all the Particulars, I chose to defer it till I could acquaint your Royal Highness with all the Circumstances of it. I cannot sufficiently commend the good Dispositions, the Prudence, Bravery and Activity of General Haddich, to whom

All the Troops of each Nation behaved extremely well, according to the General's Account; and Major Lorenti, of the Regiment of Soubiron, who received three Wounds in the Action, particularly distinguished himself.

The Troops employed in this Expedition went through very great Fatigues, which, however they surmounted with great Alacrity, and not the least Appearance of Murmur. M. Groothusen, Captain in the Electoral Troops of his Britannick Majesty, is mortally wounded, and is Prisoner at Bergen-op Zoom.

I impatiently wait for Orders what is to be done with the Prisoners, who are all here, as I wish very much to be soon rid of them. The Enemy desired Leave to bury their Dead this Morning, which was granted them. The rest of the Convoy, with all the Escorte, which came from Antwerp, entered Bergen op-Zoom at Night, from whence they returned the next Day.

The Printe of Brunswick's Relation of the Attack of the Great French Convoy near Bergen-op-Zoom, by the Troops of the Allies, the 15th of March N. S. 1748.

HAVING received certain Advice, that the great Convoy, which the Enemy had been preparing at Antwerp for six Weeks past, was to set out from thence for Bergen-op-Zoom between the 14th and 15th Instant: I resolved to reinforce General Haddich with several Detachments from the Regiments that were nearest him, as also with two Companies of Grenadiers, and four Pieces of Cannon.

The Rendezvous was on the 14th, at Four o'Clock in the Afternoon, at Sprundel, from whence they went on the same Evening to Rosendal, and entered that Town after Sun-set, in order to conceal their March from the Enemy.

At the same Time 700 Men, who had been till then under the Orders of General Haddich at Kalfsdonk, were reinforced by the same Number, under the Pretext of relieving them.

The advanced Posts having reported on the 14th, towards the Evening, that the Enemy's great Convoy was set out from Antwerp, and marching towards Sandvliet, General Haddich marched out of Rosendal at Three o'Clock in the Morning with all his Troops, and about Eight arrived in the Downs or Sandhills, at half a League's Distance from Bergen-op Zoom. This March was extremely fatiguing for the Troops, by reason of the Inundation and deep Mud, which the Infantry, though already tired with their March of the Day before, were obliged to wade through almost up to the Knees.

General Haddich, to whom alone the Honour of this Day is due, made the following Dispositions.

He left in Reserve upon the High Road to Bergen-op-Zoom, the Major of the Imperial Regiment of Waldeck, with 600 Men and four Pieces of Cannon, which were to observe the Garrison of Bergen-op-Zoom, and cover his Rear, and marched himself with the rest of his Troops, in three Columns, towards the Scheldt, to the High Road by which the

One thousand Croats took their Way through the Sandhills, a like Number of Fusileers, ranged in two Battalions, with the two Companies of Grenadiers, one of Botta, and the other of the Imperial Regiment of Waldeck, marched to the Right along the Sandhills; and the third Column, consisting of 400 Hussars, sustained by 300 Cuirassiers of the Imperial Regiment of Diemar, marched in Squadrons to the Right of the Infantry along the Plain. In this Order they arrived at the High Road about half an Hour past Ten in the Morning.

The Garrison of Bergen-op-Zoom having discovered our Troops at a Distance, and suspecting our Design, sent out a considerable Detachment, as well to sustain the Convoy, if attacked, as to put General Haddich between two Fires.

The Detachment which was headed by the Deputy Governor of Bergen-op Zoom, Count de Vaux, got the Start of our Troops by about a Quarter of an Hour, in taking Possession of a very advantageous Post, which it was absolutely necessary for us to have, in order to attack the Convoy. This Post was in a little Hill, which formed in the Inside a kind of natural Entrenchment, wherein the Enemies were quite covered. General Haddich seeing the Importance of the Post, and that it must be taken before the Convoy should come up, ordered it to be attacked in such Manner, that the Croats were to pass quietly amongst the Sandhills, whilst the two Companies of Grenadiers, sustained by a Battalion of Men, should attack the Enemy on the Left; and the Hussars sustained by the Company of Carabiniers of Diemar, fall in upon them in Flank and Rear.

This Attack was executed with so much Spirit and Expedition, that the Enemy had scarce Time to make four Discharges of their Cannon. The Infantry, which was headed by Major d'Elmendorff, of Botta's Regiment, an Officer of Merit, and who has particularly distinguished himself on this Occasion, broke thro' immediately; as did likewise the Croats commanded by Captain Caskowitz, who has now signalized himself for the third Time in attacking Convoys. They made themselves Masters of two Pieces of the Enemy's Cannon, who being driven from this Post, retired in very great Confusion towards the Ditches and broken Ground; but before they could reach them, fell in among the Cavalry and Hussars, who cut the greatest Part of them to pieces, and made the rest Prisoners.

The great Convoy having come up during this Interval as far as the Sandhills, their Van Guard advanced with great Precaution, and the Convoy followed close after, intermixed with Platoons of Infantry.

As fast as the Waggon came out of the narrow Way, they were ranged in a Barricade, and the Escorte put themselves in order at the Head of them.

General Haddich immediately ordered his second Battalion to advance, under the Command of Major Lorenti of the Hanoverian Regiment of Soubiron, sustained by Major Seckendorff, at the Head of 200 Cuirassiers of Diemar, in order to take Possession of the Heights of the great Road and of the Downs; and in the mean Time a great Number of Prisoners, and the two Pieces of Cannon were sent to the Reserve.

After having rallied his Troops from the Pursuit of those that fled, he attacked the Convoy in one Place with 800 Foot, and at another with the Bannalistes, whilst the Hussars put it in Pieces, and their Infantry at the same Time dispersed among the great Number of Waggon, of which many were taken, and the greatest Part destroyed, the Peasants having fled with their Horses, and the Time being too short to get others.

During this Action, General Haddich received a Report, that a large Detachment of the Garrison of Antwerp, with a considerable Body of Horse, had joined the Rear of the Convoy. And as this Reinforcement might easily have intercepted his Troops, that were pretty far advanced between the Schelde and the Sandhills, by forcing its March over the Heaths, under Favour of the then Fog, General Haddich resolved to assemble his Troops, and retire to Rosendal; which was accordingly done in very good Order, the Battalion of Reserve and the Cavalry bringing up the Rear.

We have taken from the Enemy a great Number of Horned Cattle, Hogs, and Sheep, and a large Quantity of Salt Meat.

The Number of Prisoners is as in the following List. On our Side we have had 12 killed, 89 wounded, and 27 missing. Among the first, are the brave Rupp, Captain of Grenadiers of the Imperial Regiment of Waldeck, a Captain of the Regiment of Bethlem, and Ensign Schlepegrel of the Hanoverians. Major Lorenti, who distinguished himself much, as also Captain Grothusen of the Hanoverians, are mortally wounded.

General Haddich cannot sufficiently express the good Conduct of the Officers, and the Valour and Bravery with which all the Troops of every Nation fought for above three Hours without Intermision, notwithstanding the Difficulties of the Ground, and the Fatigue of the March. He gave great Praises to the Bannalistes, as likewise to the Hussars, who distinguished themselves much, under the Command of Count Teleki, as well as the 200 Cuirassiers under Major Seckendorff, and Captain Hoffman, who at the Head of his Company of Carabineers made a large Body of Infantry lay down their Arms.

These are the Circumstances which General Haddich has reported to me of this successful Action, which does him much Honour, and in which Prudence and Courage were equally required to overcome an Enemy by much superior to him in Force, and sustained by the numerous Garrisons of the neighbouring Fortresses.
