

Imposts in this Province, they are to be exempted from contributing any Thing at all to the Publick Revenue, have refused to pay the Passage-Money, the Tolls for opening the Sluices, and other Duties, to which all Vessels are subject, it has been found necessary to send a Detachment of the Guards to curb their Insolence and bring them to Reason. Notwithstanding the Declaration of the Deputies of the Council of Guelderland, that they would continue their Taxes upon the old Footing, the People are again in Motion every where in that Province, and refuse to pay all Manner of Taxes or Duties, even those levied for the Maintenance of the Dykes, and for other publick Uses of the Province. In Overysell, the States have been obliged to suppress all the Farms to quiet the Uneasiness of the People; on the other Hand, the Hanckes, or People who come yearly out of Germany and other Parts, to make Hay, and work at the Harvest, have assembled in great Bodies, and committed several Disorders in that Province. Count Bentinck set out Yesterday in the Afternoon for Aix la Chapelle.
