Dublin, September 22.

ON Thursday last His Grace the Lord Lieutenant left Kilkenny, and came that night to Mad-dinston, and the next day arrived here, being met at some distance from the City, by a great number of the Gentry with their Coaches, and upon his entrance into the Town by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, the Militia's being in their Armes on each side of the Streets through which he passed. The next day His Grace signed a Proclamation for a Fast to be kept throughout this Kingdom, on the same day as in England, and a Committee ordered to consider of the speediest and readiest way of assisting such as are more particularly distressed by the late Fire in London.

Sunderland, Sept. 23. A Dutch Man of War falling in about Whitby, into the midst of a Fleet of Colliers, who are since arrived here with their Convoyes, was so well received by a Lyn Collier of ten Guns, that he was forced to Tack about, and lay by to the Windward, where he was again attacked by a Ketch that belonged to their Convoy, who broadsiding him, forced him again to stand off: But afterwards the third time falling into the Rear of the Fleet, The Ketch still pursuing him, and the Zealand Fregat another of their Convoyers powring in a Broadside into him, forced him to make away with much damage, the Fregat and Ketch continuing the Chace of him, till the night coming on, they lost sight of him.

The Drake and Colchester Fregats coming on Thursday last into Tynmouth Haven, brought in with them a prize of about 100 Tuns, laden with Sack, Soape, Brandy-wine, and some Bone-lace, together with another Vessel that pretends to be a Swede.

Barnwick, Sept. 26. This week we are informed, were brought up into Leith Road four Hollanders, one laden with Ballast, two with Wine and Brandy, and the other with Spanish Wool and Treake: Captain Browne an English Privateer hath brought in here a Vessel with Spanish Salt and Gummes; and several others are reported to be now in the Frith, taken by Captain Erown.

West-Coves, Sept. 26. On Monday last Captain Gunn main in the Orange, brought in a French prize with 150 Tuns of Salt, which belonged to the Grand party.

Norwich, Sept. 26. This City is in a very deplorable condition, by reason of the continued raging of the Sickness, and is become a very fit object of Charity. Mr. Anthony Mingay at the Pinctree in Red Cross-street, is by the Magistrates appointed to receive what shall be contributed for the relief of the poor in that City.

The Bill of Mortality for this last week runs thus, buried in all 130. whereof of the Plague 139.

John Phillips His Majesties Auditor for the Counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, Huntingdon, Cambridge, Essex, Hertford, Middlesex, and the City of London, hath settled his Office at Mr. Watts at the Rose and Crown over against the New Exchange in the Straund: where also is the Office for the Receipt of His Majesties Revenues within the Counties of Essex, Hertford, Middlesex, and the City of London.

Naples, Sept. 7. This morning arrived here our five Gallies which have been six months out attending the Empress. The seven Gallies of the Spanish Squadron which made some stop at Legorn, to take up necessaries, are every day expected. The Malta Gallies keep out at Sea, and are upon their return home; those of Sicily lie at present at Genova to wait for the Duke of Albuquerque, who after he has ended his attendance on the Empress, designs with the Convoy to pass to his Government of Sicily.

Vienna, Sept. 16. The Interpreter sent lately from his Imperial Majesty to Offen, to complement the new Visier, and to treat of other affairs between the two Empires, is returned hither with eight Christian prisoners, which the Visier freely released, making very rich presents to the Interpreter. Monsieur John Van Wicha has received his Instructions in order to his speedy dispatch from this Court to France, where he is to remain, as is said, in Quality of Resident from his Imperial Majesty.

His Imperial Majesty, besides the four Regiments of Horse formerly designed from Milan, to attend and Guard the Empress, is sending likewise five Regiments of Foot, viz. Lieutenant General Heisters, who commands in cheif, Colonel Zeist, Schmid, Gonsaga, and Portia's. The other Regiments about Neustat have order to be in readines like-wile to march.

The Court is much troubled at a stop upon the confines made of several Commodities and Suits for the Commediens that were by order bought in Italy, with other necessary provisions for the reception of the Empress, and may possibly retard it for some time.

The difference between the two Electors, Palatine and Mayence, grows every day wider; but this Court is not at all pleased with the procedure of the Elector of Mayence, in bringing in the Lorrainers; of which, the Elector Palatine has made a sharp Remonstrance to his Imperial Majesty.

Rome, Sept. 21. The despair men generally have of the Popes recovery, induces Cardinal de Resz to delay his journey into France, which the French Ambassador will by no means seem to desire; and therefore 'tis thought, that at the last his Eminency will finde himself obliged against his will to make his voyage, having some time since made his visits in order thereunto.

We are informed, that the Duke of Parma in his return from Loreto, whither he went post incognito, in a Vow upon the death of his Dutchess, coming in this posture to the Gates of Bologna, the Officers of the Sanita denied him admission, which he very ill resented; and passing round the Town, took the way to Modena, but the Cardinal Caraffa, Legate of that Province, being informed of it, immediately dispatcht the Master of his Chamber with some Coaches with six horses after him, to invite him back, and to inform him of the imprisonment of the Officers of the Sanita, which abundantly satisfied the Duke, who nevertheless proceeded on his journey.

The Count de Finsitzgratz, employed from the Empetor for the composing all differences between the two Duchies, is now arrived from Mantua, at Modena, but finds both parties so exasperated, that 'tis generally conceived, he will be constrained to return without effecting any thing, the differences being probably like to continue as they are, during the minority of the two Dukes.

Ditto. The Cardinal d'Este, Uncle to the Duke of Modena, who is nearly allyed to the house of the Barbarini, the Dutchess his Mother and Taurice, being sister to the Prince de Palestrine, has caused a Remonstrance, as is said, to be given in by the Abbot of Orillac to the French King, shewing reasons why his Majesty ought rather to assist then exclude the Cardinal Barbarini in the next Conclave, as being a person very fit, in the opinion of all Christian Princes, to succeed in that holy Chair; which, it seems, is not well taken by the Kings Council, who have required him to meddle no farther in that design: In the interim, the Cardinals of the Squadra are openly engaging for the exclusion of all Pope Alexanders Cardinals, and consequently of Farnese, whom the French seem most to aim at: The generality opposing all ways possibly the French design.

Don Sigismond, his Holinesses Nephew, who went with the Legat into France, hath lately taken the habit of a Prelate, in order to a Cardinals Cap, which 'tis thought will be conferred on him the next Promotion. 'Tis likewise discoursed, that the Prince Mathias of Flogence, and the Duke de Mercoeur, may stand fair for the same Dignity.

Dantzick, Sept. 18. Letters from Poland inform us of a difference between the Swedes Envoyé Extraordinary (his Credentials stile him) and the Elector of Brandenburgs Ambassador, occasioned by the latter taking the upper hand in his own house, upon a visit given him by the other; which the Envoyé telling him was not civil, the other replied, He would not in complement give away his Masters honor, which put an end to the visit with much discontentment. The Swedes Envoyé intends (as 'tis said) very suddenly to leave the Court, and to go for Livonia, the Polish Agent being likewise expected home.

The Treaty betwixt the Poles and Muscovites is not like to have its effects; but that betwixt the Swedes and Muscovites is so far advanced, that there is no doubt made but a Peace will be suddenly concluded between them.

Elbe Stream, Sept. 18. The Swedes Troops ordered for the Dukedom of Bremen, approach very near; and since they cannot be suffered to pass through the Country of Lauenburg, 'tis said, part of them are to come by water, in order to which, all the Boats on the Swedes side are under an Embargo for that service, the other part of them to march by Land to Blanckenfels; the Artillery lies ready for them at Wismar.

Several Passengers arrived from the Swedes Leaguer before Bremen, report them to be extraordinarily well fortified, and in the lowest places of it so deeply intrencht about, and so well drain'd by their Engines called Schaken, an invention of the Fieldherc Wrangel, that they are kept very dry in their Trenches, and intend to lie all the Winter before the Town, keeping always a Light Body ready to oppose the Sallies of the besieged.

On Munday morning last, a party of Horse commanded by a young Swedes Cornet, took the Sieur Van Ufflen, Master of the Artillery, with a Major called Hammerstein, and about forty foot coming from Niemberg, intending for Bremen, and brought them prisoners to the Leaguer, which every day grows stronger; their Levies going on vigorously on the other side of the water in Westphalia, and the Neighboring Countreys.

The Plague continuing still very dangerous at Cambridge, Peterborough, and other places near the City of Ely, The Lord Bishop of Ely hath thought fit to prohibit the holding of the Fairs of St. Luke and St. Audrey at Ely this instant October.

Genoa, Sept. 15. The 11 instant arrived a Gally of this place from Alecant, having made some stop at Barcelona, to dispose of a Brigantine prize she took by the way, and brings with her 100 thousand pieces of Eight for this place: The Dutch ships in this Port, finding it very hazardous for them to adventure homewards, and the season too far spent, have altered their designed Voyage, and intend to drive a Trade between Spain and this place.

The Empress is now arrived at Milan, having from Bosco where she lay the 5th night, after her parting from Finale, arrived the 6th at Castelnovo de Scrvia, the 7th night at Voghera, the 8th at Pavia, the 9th at Certosa, and from thence reached Milan: but her publique entry in that City will not be till the 28 Instant. The two Envoyés designed thither from this City, intend now to wave that place, and to complement her at her arrival at Vienna, towards which place they are to set forwards in 8 or 9 daies with a very splendid Equipage, each of them attended by 6 pages, and 8 Footmen in rich Liveries, being Gentlemen of the best note.

Paris, Sept. 29. The Duke de Beaufort with his Fleet of above 50 Sail, great and small, accounting his Fireships and Advice Vessels, arrived at Diepe the 23 instant; and the very next day according to Order he there found from his Majesty, returned for Brest, dismissing the Merchants under his Convoy for their several Ports; some of which, had it seems, the misfortune to fall amongst the English Fleet, by whom divers of them were sunk and destroyed.

We are likewise informed from Diepe, that two Vessels arrived there the 26 instant, with the news, that five of the eight Dutch ship, which accompanied our Fleet from the Streights, and had proceeded on from Diepe, intending to join de Ruyter, were met by some of the English Fleet about the height of Elogne, by whom, two of them were sunk; nor can they yet have any good account of the other three.

We are in no small apprehensions for our Fleets, upon the news brought us of their engagement with the English, which we are the more inclinable to believe, upon advice we have from Diepe of the appearance of the English upon that Coast. The Duke de Beaufort has not reinforced his Fleet with these fresh men sent out of the Guards thither for that purpose, fearing they might not be fit for Sea service, whereupon they have orders sent them to return.

Harwich, Sept. 27. This day arrived here the Fansan from the Fleet, whose commander gives us this account, that on Tuesday last the Prince with the whole Fleet sailed by Dungeonness, keeping without the Goodwins on purpose to look for the Dutch; the wind then at S. S. W. that in the afternoon they discovered them, and made them between 70 and 80 sail great and small, standing large away; and were then to the N. R. hwards of the Knock, and ours to the Southwards, but the Wind blew such a stiff, that they were in no possibility of Engaging, whereupon our Fleet bore under the Kentish Knock, where they came to an Anchor in much safety, and in the night lost the Dutch, whom they suppose to be to Leeward of the Gaber, or keeping Sea to the Northwards; when he left them, the Fleet was in a very good condition, not a Mast amiss, only some few of their boates missing. He adds that he was at the taking of the great French Man of War, and that he saw four more burnt; who despairing of making their escapes, got themselves into Bylanders, and there let fire to their own ships: he knows not what guns they carried, but saies in his judgement he never saw nor heard a greater blatt then they made when their Powder rooms took fire, which makes him conclude them Men of War; the same account is confirmed by his Boatwain, and others in his Company.

Alborough, Septemb. 18. On Wednesday at 4. the Fansan came from the Fleet, then at Anchor near the Kentish Knock, the Dutch, with some French ships, riding near the Galeser Sands, the foulness of the weather at that time hindring their Engagement: About 4. hours after the Amity came off from the Fleet, to repair some small Damages received by the Storm.

This night the Revenges Ketch came into this Harbor, speaking the good Condition of our Fleet, being very Healthy and full of Courage; and that the Red Flag was out, both Fleets in sight of each other, expecting every hour fit weather to Engage, if so, we shall in few days hear more of them.

Harwich, Sept. 29. This day at noon were discovered from our Beacon, though the weather were very hazy, 12 sail, and after them, as they seemed a whole Fleet, which we conclude to be our own, steering S. W. and by W. the Wind between North and West, in few hours we expect to hear more of them.

Whitchel, Sept. 29. This day by a Warrant from his Majesties principal Secretary of State, the Person of Valentine Knight was committed to the custody of one of His Majesties Messengers in Ordinary, for having presumed to publish in Print certain Propositions for the rebuilding the City of London, with considerable advantages to His Majesties Revenue by it, as if His Majesty would draw a benefit to himself from so publick a Calamity of his people, of which His Majesty is known to have so deep a sense, as that he is pleased to seek rather by all means to give them ease under it.
